AMERICANS BEAT BRITISH TEAM IN FIRST POLO MATCH

King and Queen of England, King of Spain and Other Notables See U. S. Team Defeat Opponents, 11 to 4, in Contest for International Trophy.

MILBURN AND WEBB STAR FOR U. S. TEAM

After Watson Webb Scores First Tally for Victors, Britishers Fail to Tie Count—Americans Wear Home Players Down.

By Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
(Copyright, 1921.)

LONDON, June 18.—America has won the first polo match in the rubber for the international cup and won it well. Not only were they the better side by all odds, but they inflicted on the Britishers a defeat which may be described as humiliating. The score of 11 goals to 4 accurately reflected the play.

Hurlingham field looked like a gigantic garden party with the guests, instead of strolling about the lawns, composedly installed in a huge grand stand.

The 10,000 who saw the play presented an imposing picture of British and American society, led respectively by King George and Ambassador Harvey, followed by a host of silk-hatted, frock-coated men and gayly clad women, many of whom turned out in Ascot gowns, for what finally proved to be a brilliant sunshiny afternoon.

As might be judged from the nature of the attendance the crowd was most properly behaved, though the British were rather surprised that the Americans did not show more vocal enthusiasm. After the ninth American goal or so there was an attempt at an American college yell, but apparently the decorous English atmosphere sped it to an early death. In due equality the British and American flags flew at either end of the long stand on the King's side of the field.

Royal Family's Arrival.

Shortly before the arrival of the royal party practically all the spectators were seated and their impatience was somewhat restrained by the parading guards and the bands playing a potpourri of British and American airs. Royalty's arrival was soon heralded by the cheering in the streets and then throughout the stands as the King and Queen and the royal family drove up in open carriages, preceded by scarlet-clad outriders. The King of Spain had already taken his place in the royal enclosure in the middle of the long stand.

After royalty's installation in the box, the two team captains were presented, with their men, and as they backed away from the royal presence after a cordial handshaking, they got hearty cheers from the stands.

Then followed a parade of beautiful ponies up and down the field. Boy Scouts carrying the American flag proudly led the procession of 37 delicately stepping animals, their coats glistening in the sun, followed by the British flag and 25 equally splendid English mounts.

Britishers joined with the Americans in a pleased and relieved cheer when Devereux Milburn showed up.

Then the game began. From the stands the English four gave the impression of being older, slimmer and more wary. The Americans gave a display of fiercer and more impulsive energy.

Notables in Crowd.

It is almost impossible to convey the variety and internationally representative character of the assemblage. Indian Princes in brilliant turbans, headed by Maharajah Holker of Indore; diplomats from every embassy and legation in London, Ambassador and Mrs. Harvey, Butler Wright, Baron Hayashi, Baron Moncheur, the French Ambassador; the Countess de Saint Aulaire, the Spanish Ambassador and Mme. Merry Del Val among a brilliant coterie.

There, too, were Earl Beatty, Earl Haig and many high officers of both services, Lady Curzon of Kedletone, Lord and Lady Birkenhead, Mr. and Mrs. Churchill, Lord Wimborne, Capt. P. Guest, Capt. Ritzon, W. H. Buckmaster and Duke Penaranda, with all the leading polo experts and hundreds of Americans, visitors and resident, all wearing miniature stars and stripes.

Seldom in the history of polo test matches has there been one more

LONDON NEWSPAPERS PRAISE AMERICANS FOR VICTORY AT POLO

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 19.

THE Sunday morning newspapers are generous in their compliments to the Americans for their polo victory. For the most part they are not oversanguine that Britain will be able to retain the cup. Devereux Milburn and J. Watson Webb are given the lion's share of the praise, but the Americans are commended generally for their horsemanship, aggressiveness and accurate hitting. The universal verdict is that the Britishers were "outpointed and outplayed."

Summing up, the News of the World says: "Our stodgy orthodox game was of no avail with the hard-hitting, hard-riding tactics of the Americans." The Sunday Times says: "Our congratulations are due to the winners; they played on ground and under conditions which did not favor them and with the disadvantage of uncertainty whether their captain would be able to last out the game. But, in spite of that, they were all over us."

MAN WHO TOOK THE PLACE OF BERGDOLL KILLED IN ARGONNE

Russell C. Gross Cited for Bravery in Action Before Dying a Hero.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—The man who took Grover C. Bergdoll's place when the convicted draft evader, now a fugitive in Germany, failed to answer the call, died a hero in the Argonne Forest after being cited by the commanding General of his brigade for bravery in action in one of the most noteworthy battles of the world war.

He was Russell C. Gross of this city, a private in Company E, 328th Infantry, who was killed by bullets from a machine gun nest which later was captured by Company G, of the same infantry, headed by Corp. Alvin C. York of Tennessee.

This was revealed tonight by the Overbrook Post of the American Legion after an investigation. The post announced it would change its name to that of the fallen hero, and was planning a memorial to Gross, "who was forced into service ahead of his turn by the slacker, Bergdoll."

Gross, who was 23 years old, was the first man called by the Draft Board after Bergdoll failed to respond.

WARNINGS TO PEDESTRIANS STENCILED ON THE STREETS

Automobile Club Joins Department of Streets and Sewers in the Movement.

Signs to safeguard pedestrians were stenciled at street crossings throughout the congested district yesterday under the direction of the Automobile Club, co-operating with the Department of Streets and Sewers.

The signs are printed in large white letters on the surface of the street just off the curb and bear the advice "Cross Here," under which appears the names of the Department of Streets and Sewers and the Automobile Club.

It was explained that this is a move on the part of the Automobile Club to discourage the habit of crossing streets in the congested district at points other than corners where lines are drawn for the safety of pedestrians.

WORK OF LAST LEGISLATURE HELD UP BY REFERENDUM

Virtually Every Important Law Passed Nullified Until the General Election in November, 1922.

NEW LIABILITY LAW PROPOSED

Petitions Under Initiative Will Require Vote on Measure Declared to Benefit Damage Suit Lawyers.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18.—Through the filing yesterday and today in the office of the Secretary of State of petitions referring to a vote at the general election in November, 1922, 15 laws passed by the last Legislature, virtually every important action of the Legislature has been nullified and virtually the entire legislative program of Gov. Hyde and his administration has been scrapped.

In addition to this result, the wholesale filing of petitions and unusual use of the referendum provisions of the State Constitution has aroused among Republicans in the Hyde administration, talk of an effort to find some means by which the "referendum abuse" as they term it, can be prevented in the future.

While technically the petitions were received by the Secretary of State only for examination, and not for actual filing until they shall have been found to comply with the law, there is little probability that any of them will be thrown out.

Checking Over Begun.

Immediately after they were filed yesterday, clerks in the office began checking over the names to eliminate from the total count any duplicates, and to eliminate petitions which were not properly verified by affidavits. Several days will be required to complete this work.

The bills suspended by the filing of the petitions, and which will become effective only if approved in a State-wide election, were:

County unit school bill, referred to by Gov. Hyde as the most important bill in his legislative program. Its purpose was to improve educational facilities in rural schools by providing a system for county taxation for all schools in a county instead of school district taxation for the schools of each district only.

The workmen's compensation act, long sought by organized labor to provide compensation for injured workers without compelling them to conduct long litigation.

Court Redistricting Held Up.

An act abolishing all judicial circuits in the State, legislating out of office all Circuit Judges and giving to the Governor power to appoint their successors.

The act creating a State Department of Agriculture, under which it was proposed to consolidate the work of the State Board of Agriculture and all other State agricultural activities.

The act creating the State Department of Public Welfare, under which would come the food and drug, beverage, oil and hotel inspection departments.

The bill under which beverage inspection is now made.

The bill under which oil inspection is made.

The bill creating a State Department of labor, under which would come the present labor department, boiler inspection and the mine inspection bureau.

Budget Bill Also Included.

The bill creating a State Budget Commissioner, who would have supervisory powers over all State expenditures and who would perform duties of the present tax commission.

Two bills, abolishing the Criminal Courts of Jackson County and the office of County Marshal, transferring the duties of the Criminal courts to the Circuit Courts, and creating the Circuit Judges, a County Board of Pardons and Paroles, thus increasing the salary of each Circuit Judge $1500 a year.

In addition to these there were offered for filing petitions to refer four bills, passed at the instance of Senator Proctor of Kansas City, abolishing the offices of Justices of Peace in Kansas City, abolishing the office of Constables, and creating new Justices of the Peace with one acting as Presiding Judge and creating one Constable.

Some Petitions Held Up.

Secretary of State Baker refused to accept these for filing on the ground that they contained clauses declaring they were immediately necessary for the preservation of the peace, health and safety of the citizens of the State. The Constitution provides that measures immediately

Machine Guns to Be Used by "Night Riders"

Weapon of a New Type Will Be Carried in Autos to Stop Criminals' Cars—Search Lights Also Ordered.

Machine guns, sirens, which can be heard above the noise of other traffic for several blocks, and powerful searchlights are to be added to the equipment of the police "Night Riders," it was announced yesterday. The purpose is to deal effectively with criminals who use high-power automobiles.

Fifty machine guns of a new type, operated either on a swivel or from the shoulder or the hip, have been ordered. The police automobiles will be equipped with these guns, and a number of them will also be held in reserve at headquarters for use in any emergency. Policemen will be trained to operate them from a swivel.

Will Be Used as Hand Guns.

When the machine guns are used by the "Night Riders," they will be fired from the shoulder or the hip, being used as hand guns.

Fired low at a pursued car, the machine guns are expected to tear the tires to pieces, puncture the gasoline tank, and bring the car to an immediate stop. Fired higher, they will be highly dangerous to occupants of pursued cars.

Up to this time, the only weapon of the "Night Riders," in their chase of cars, has been the revolver. In a pursuit three weeks ago, the car ahead was not stopped until it had knocked down and injured three or four persons.

The siren, which is operated by hand, is intended to make the "Night Riders'" speeding cars less dangerous to the public. When the siren is sounded, all street traffic will be expected to stop, just as in the case of the approach of fire apparatus. With other traffic stopped, the fleeing machine will be conspicuous, and can be more easily overtaken.

To Be Mounted on Front Seat.

In each automobile the siren will be mounted on the back of the front seat, between the driver and the man accompanying him, and will be operated by the central man in the rear seat.

About 40 automobiles are now in the service of the Police Department.

Experiments have been made in alleys and buildings near headquarters, with large hand search lights, operated by storage batteries, and weighing about 25 pounds. These lights will illumine an alley clearly for a distance of a block, and will make it difficult to escape from a building or neighborhood which is being watched.

10,000 Gun Barrels Being Made in Danzig for Mexico, Council Learns

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, June 18.

THE disclosure that 10,000 gun barrels are being made by an arms factory in the free city of Danzig for Mexico caused a mild sensation at the meeting of the Council of the League of Nations today. M. Hanotaux, the French representative, expressed in sharp terms his surprise that a municipality under the protection of the League of Nations was making war materials.

Herr Sahm, president of the free city, explained that the order had been received last October, before the Constitution of the city was adopted. He said it was difficult to change the factory immediately for the manufacture of other articles.

The Council passed over the question without announcing its decision.

MAN WITH BIBLE WAITS IN VAIN FOR 'BLACK HAND' WRITER

Dr. Domino Wanted to Read Scriptures to Author of Letter Demanding $5000 at Midnight.

Dr. Julius Domino of 4206A Castleman avenue stood beneath a viaduct at Clayton and Manchester avenues from 11:45 p. m. Friday until 12:30 a. m. yesterday with a Bible under his arm. A half dozen detectives were in nearby hiding places.

A policeman happened along at 12:30 a. m. and wanted to know what the doctor was doing. The latter said "Sh-sh." The policeman was about to arrest him, but just then the detectives stepped from their hiding places and explained the situation.

Dr. Domino received a "Black Hand" letter demanding $5000. He was to carry the package wrapped in paper to the place under the viaduct and if he failed "the end was near." Dr. Domino took the letter to police headquarters and was advised to carry a "dummy" package to the appointed place. Dr. Domino suggested wrapping the Bible. He said he wanted to read it to the writer of the letter. The letter said a man would be on hand at midnight to get the money. No one but the policeman appeared.

CASINO FOR CHATEAU THIERRY

Gambling Establishment to Be Moved There From Near Paris.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1921.)

PARIS, June 18.—Americans will read with mingled feelings that a gambling casino is about to be opened at Chateau Thierry. The spot where Uncle Sam's soldiers first proved their mettle and held the Germans across the bridge by the fire of machine guns may soon be the Mecca of all the adventurers of Europe.

The casino is due to a law just passed by the Chamber of Deputies forbidding gambling houses with 100 kilometers of Paris. This law closed the casino at Enghien and it is that establishment which it is intended to move to Chateau Thierry.

DISARMAMENT BILL DELAYED

Resolution Not to Be Called Up on Monday as Planned.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Because of the absence of a large number of members, House Republican leaders decided today not to call up the Porter disarmament resolution on Monday as planned. No date for its consideration was fixed.

BUST OF PRESIDENT HARDING IS UNVEILED AT NILES, O.

Bronze Piece Uncovered at McKinley Memorial; Will Have Place in Court of Honor.

By the Associated Press.

NILES, O., June 18.—Impressive ceremonies marked the unveiling here today of a bronze bust of President Warren G. Harding at the McKinley Memorial. Addresses were made by Vice President Coolidge, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, Gov. Harry L. Davis of Ohio, and Congressman John G. Cooper of Youngstown.

The bust of the President, veiled by a large American flag, stood at the entrance to the pergola, the large marble statue of the late President McKinley forming an impressive background. Following the address by the Vice President, Mrs. J. D. Wadell, wife of the president of the Niles Chamber of Commerce, pulled the cord that released the flag and revealed the life-size bust of the President.

The bust later will be removed to its pedestal in the Court of Honor, between those of David Todd, former Governor of Ohio, and Cornelius N. Bliss, former Secretary of the Interior. On the marble pedestal is this inscription:

"Warren G. Harding, born Corsica, Ohio, November 2, 1865. Twenty-ninth President of the United States. Elected November 2, 1920."

HENRY IV DANCED THE SHIMMY, SAYS PARIS BALLET MASTER

Leo Staats of the Grand Opera Declares "New" Dances of Americans Are "Old as Methuselah."

PARIS, June 18.—Americans have been pluming themselves on new dances in the belief that they invented them, but Leo Staats, ballet master of the Paris Grand Opera, says:

"Not at all. Henry IV danced the shimmy and the others are as old as Methuselah. Modern! Nonsense. The fox trot is the denatured Scottish highland fling, the one-step is a march with wriggling from the Orient, the shimmy is a humorous dance beloved by Henry IV. Everything is old. It makes me laugh when I hear the 'new' dances called American."

M. Staats considers the Boston the finest ballroom dance and declares it is ridiculous to think of reviving the gavotte and the pavanne.

"Danced by amateurs those would make a highly ridiculous spectacle, which makes me both laugh and pity. To dance them properly requires long training and sure technique. The crowd knows what it can dance and what it cannot. That is why it fox trots, shimmies, one-steps and tangoes. These dances are simple and in them people are not unbearably ridiculous."

PRESIDENT AND MRS. HARDING ON CRUISE ON MAYFLOWER

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—President and Mrs. Harding left here late today aboard the yacht Mayflower for a week-end cruise on the Potomac.

The party, which is not expected to land at any point, will return Monday morning. It includes Myron T. Herrick, newly appointed Ambassador to France; Under Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry P. Fletcher, Senator and Mrs. New, Senator Cummins, Senator Knox, Representative and Mrs. Longworth and Brigadier-General Sawyer, the President's personal physician.

A wireless message from the Mayflower at 7:30 this evening, when the yacht was off Indian Head, said: "Fine weather. All well."

SEARCH FOR AID OF MAN "HIRED TO KILL KABER" FOR $5000

Indictment of Vittorio Pisselli Based on Salvatore Cala's Story He Held Publisher While Other Stabbed Him.

SIX NOW UNDER MURDER CHARGE

Emphatic Denial Made by Mrs. Kaber's Daughter to References to Her in Man's Confession.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, June 18.—A search that may reach across the country has been started for Vittorio Pisselli of Cleveland, indicted with Salvatore Cala of Cleveland, by the County Grand Jury today for first degree murder of Daniel F. Kaber in his Lakewood home nearly two years ago.

Cala was arrested near Buffalo, N. Y., yesterday and is being held there awaiting extradition.

Today's indictments followed presentation to the Grand Jury of County Prosecutor Edward C. Stanton and Detective Mooney of a signed confession obtained from Cala in Buffalo last night and other evidence gathered by Mooney.

The indictment of the two men today places the number now charged with first degree murder of Kaber at six, the four others being Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, widow of the slain man; Miss Marian McArdle, daughter, and Mrs. Mary Brickel, mother of Mrs. Kaber, and Mrs. Erminia Colativo, a midwife and alleged poisoner.

Emphatic denial to parts of Cala's confession were made today by Miss McArdle and Mrs. Colavito.

Mrs. Kaber said she was not interested in Cala's confession and had no comment to make. She did say she was glad Cala was arested and that the truth would come out in her coming trial.

Another development today was the holding by Judge Maurice Bernon of Urbano Di Corpo under a $7000 bond as a material witness. He is alleged to have introduced Mrs. Kaber to Mrs. Colavito.

Confessed Slayer Says He Hasn't Seen Other Man in 15 Months.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 18.—Salvatore Cala, confessed slayer of Daniel Kaber, was arraigned in the City Court here today charged with being a fugitive from justice and was remanded to jail pending arrival of extradition papers from Ohio.

Cleveland officials continue to question Cala in the belief that he may know the whereabouts of Vittorio Pisselli, named by Cala as his accomplice in the Kaber murder. Cala maintains, however, that he has not seen Pisselli in 15 or 16 months, and does not know where the man went when he left Cleveland.

Moore refused to make public Cala's alleged confession, but he gave out what he termed a summary of the essential facts in it. This in part was as follows:

"Cala said that the subject of the murder of Mr. Kaber was first brought up by Mrs. Colavito, a midwife. She told him that Mrs. Kaber wanted to get rid of her husband, as she was getting tired of him. The midwife told Cala that she had tried to kill Kaber by administering poison to him on several occasions and had failed. Mrs. Kaber would pay $5000 to him if he would kill Kaber, the midwife told him.

"Cala and Piszlli met Mrs. Kaber several days after this. They went to the Kaber home and Mrs. Kaber showed them the room in which Kaber would be asleep. She told them that she would let them know when they were to kill her husband and also agreed to pay them $5000.

"Several days later Cala was notified to come to the Kaber home. When he and Piselli arrived there they found the front door open. They heard the sound of women's voices, but they walked into the house and into the room where Kaber was asleep.

"Cala said that the man was slightly aroused, but he held him while the other man cut him up with a knife. Kaber struggled with them and Cala's partner in the crime cut several times again. Kaber may have tried to shout but his mouth was muffled by Cala's hand. They left him dead in bed before they left the room.

"The men left the house without seeing a person. The door was open for them and they heard women's voices when they went out.

"Cala did not receive the money and he thinks the Colavito woman 'double-crossed' him. That is the substance of his confession."

Cala, today said he was glad to be caught.

"I am ready for the electric chair," Cala said. 'My only fear is about the future of my wife and children after I am dead. In the last two years my hair has turned gray from worry."

MILLMEN'S AND LUMBER ASSOCIATIONS TO BE PROSECUTED

Antitrust Proceedings Against St. Louis Concerns Likely to Be Begun Wednesday as Result of Attorney-General's Building Materials Inquiry.

BARRETT PROMISES STATEMENT THEN

Will Review Testimony Given in Investigation Which Was Result of Post-Dispatch Expose of Conditions.

Civil proceedings, under the State anti-trust statutes, will be brought against members of the St. Louis Lumber Trade Exchange and the St. Louis Millmen's Association by Attorney-General Barrett, the Post-Dispatch has learned, as it announced exclusively in its later editions yesterday.

The proceedings, which, it is stated, will be begun Wednesday, will be based upon testimony at the recent inquiry into the building materials situation conducted by the Attorney-General in Jefferson City, together with additional information gathered under his direction.

Attorney-General Barrett was in St. Louis yesterday. He declined to verify or deny that he contemplated action against the two associations, but stated that on Wednesday he would issue a formal statement reviewing the testimony given by five groups engaged in the building materials industry and would indicate his intentions with regard to each.

He said he would indicate whether, in his opinion, the practices of each group did or did not warrant prosecution or whether it would be necessary to take more testimony to establish clearly whether the statutes had been violated.

The Attorney-General's inquiry, begun in April, was into the practices of statistical and credit bureaus of lumber, millwork, cement, brick and other material manufacturers to determine if concert of action was responsible for prohibitive costs of building materials.

Followed Post-Dispatch Expose.

It will be remembered that the inquiry followed a series of articles in the Post-Dispatch which established that these associations existed for the exchange of production information, and in some cases prices, and the consideration of general problems. The Post-Dispatch articles also established that there was a uniformity in prices in some branches of the building material industry.

The Attorney-General examined the Post-Dispatch articles and declared that they justified an inquiry to determine whether violations of the law were occurring. Therefore, representatives of the various industries were summoned before the Attorney-General in Jefferson City and under oath recited the workings of their associations, in many cases being required to produce records of the associations.

The civil proceeding under the anti-trust law, which the Attorney-General will file against St. Louisans in the lumber and millwork end of the building material trade, will be similar to the antitrust suits instituted about 14 years ago by Attorney-General Hadley against certain lumber concerns which were found guilty of violating the anti-trust laws, and which were fined heavily, or both fined and ousted from doing business in the State.

Secretary Told How Millmen's Association Furnished Cost Guide.

Methods of the St. Louis Millmen's Association and the St. Louis Lumber Trade Exchange were subjects of testimony at a hearing in Jefferson City a month ago. This hearing was ordered by Attorney-General Barrett and was conducted by Assistant Attorney-General Otis.

John B. Larson of Webster Groves, secretary of the St. Louis Millmen's Association, testified that the association furnished to its members a cost guide and that if this cost guide was taken in connection with quantity figures also furnished by the association for each job, the planing mill would have to figure only its profit in making a bid. This cost guide and quantity figure service, he said, was used by concerns which did 50 to 75 per cent of all planing mill work in St. Louis.

Larson testified that while millwork prices were 40 to 50 per cent

IF rain falls in Jersey City on July 2, the Dempsey-Carpentier match for the world's championship will go over to Monday, July 4. The fact that it might keep right on raining over the Fourth has not been considered, so no arrangement has been made for any delay beyond that date.

BOY RESCUED AFTER RIDING LOG THROUGH NIAGARA WHIRLPOOL

Swimmer, Caught in Rapids, Clings to Driftwood Until Companions Throw Rope to Him.

By the Associated Press.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 18.—Edward Denny, 16 years old, was rescued from the Niagara whirlpool this afternoon after he had been in the water for nearly an hour. Denny saved himself by clinging to a drifting log which was whirled around and around in the outer eddy of the big pool.

The boy, with a dozen companions, was swimming near the old Maid of the Mist landing on the American side above the rapids. He was carried out into midstream and was in the grip of the swift current before he realized his plight.

Denny managed to catch a floating log and with it was hurled through the first of the lower rapids and into the whirlpool. Here he was swept around in the big outer eddy while the other boys, who had followed him on the bank, ran for aid. Some of them found a long rope and one ventured out as far as he dared and threw the rope across the path of the log. Denny caught it and was hauled ashore, badly frightened but otherwise uninjured.

MRS. LEWEN GETS LIFE TERM FOR KILLING 6-YEAR-OLD BOY

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich. June 18.—Mrs. Elizabeth Lewen, 58 years old, was by a jury in Recorder's Court late convicted by a jury in Recorder's Court late tonight in connection with the death last month of 6-year-old Max Ernest. She was sentenced to House of Correction.

Mrs. Lewen, who had stoutly maintained her innocence before and during the trial, collapsed when the verdict was read, and it was 15 minutes before sentence could be pronounced. The jury was out one hour.

The woman was arrested a week after the disappearance of the Ernest boy from his home on the West Side. His body was found May 11 partly covered with weeds and brush in an East Side marsh. Physicians pronounced death due to strangulation.

The prosecution introduced testimony at the trial in an effort to show Mrs. Lewen took the boy from his home and killed him to avenge an alleged wrong in a business transaction with the lad's father, Frank W. Ernest.

Mrs. Lewen was on the stand the greater part of the day.

She dramatically denied the charge, told of her business dealings with Frank W. Ernest, the dead boy's father, and testified to alleged third degree methods employed by police following her arrest.

By the Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 18.—For the first time in its 165 years, the New Hampshire Gazette, which boasts of being the oldest weekly newspaper in the United States, did not appear today. The compositors' strike that began in local plants last Monday was assigned as the reason.

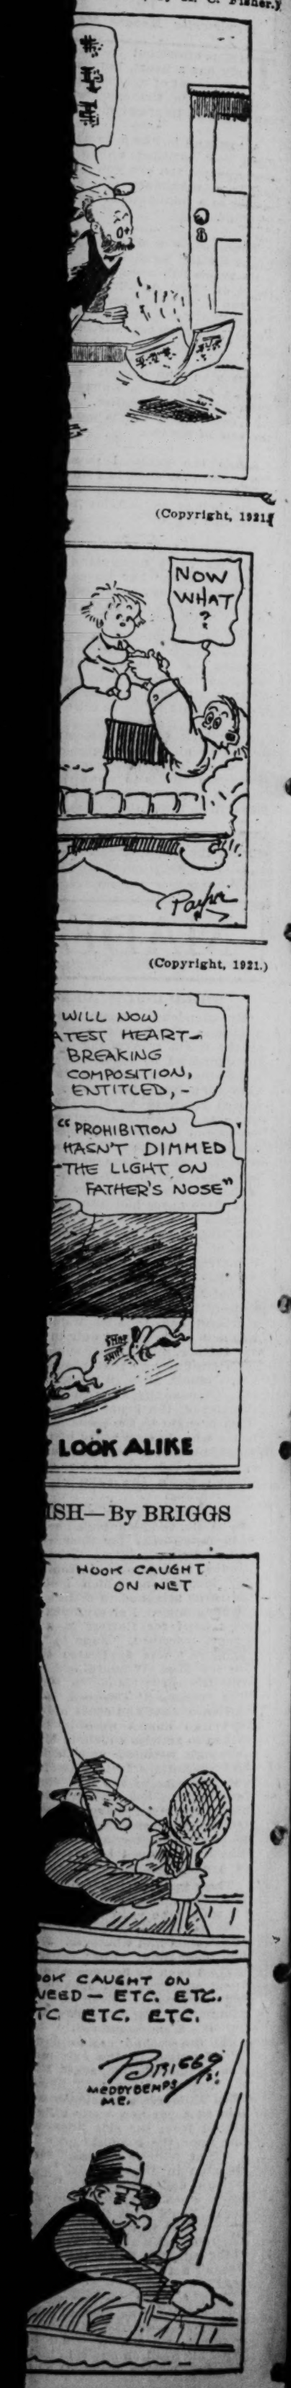
Eight-page editions of the Herald and the Times, this city's papers, were published today. The Gazette was first issued on Oct. 7, 1756.

OPERATES AIRPLANE WITH FEET

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 18.—Successful flight in an airplane operated by foot was unofficially credited today to Gabriel Poulain, the noted French bicyclist. The feat was accomplished in official tests for the Peugeot prize of 10,000 francs to the first person to succeed in leaving the ground and flying 10 meters with only human power.

Poulain is reported to have repeatedly fulfilled the requirements for the award.



LEAGUE COUNCIL WAITING ON U. S. IN MANDATES ISSUE

Allies Asked by Retiring President to Come to Agreement With America on Territories.

NOTE SENT TO STATE DEPARTMENT

Council's Work on Problem of Territories Blocked Until This Country Is Heard From.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, June 18.—Mandates, the first question before the thirteenth meeting of the Council of the League of Nations, was disposed of speedily when the retiring president of the Council, Dr. Gastoa Da Cunha, announced he had sent a note to the allies asking them to come to an agreement with the United States, so that the Council might act on the proposed terms of the mandates before the next meeting of the Assembly.

Dr. Da Cunha then turned over the presidency to Viscount Ishii of Japan, who, on taking the chair, expressed approval of the action of his predecessor. Herbert A. L. Fisher, representing Great Britain, voicing his approval, immediately pressed upon the Council the importance of the earliest possible settlement in the interests of the populations in territories under mandate.

Opening the session Dr. Da Cunha declared:

"Before handing over the presidency to my successor, I want to state that, having received no reply from the United States to the invitation to send a representative to discuss the terms of the mandates, I thought it advisable to suggest to the principal allied Powers that it is for them to come to an agreement with the American Government before the Council can act upon the proposed terms.

"I accordingly sent them a note asking that an accord be reached before the next meeting of the Assembly. I thought this method might advance final decision, so urged for the welfare of the territories under mandate. I hope the Council will approve."

There was no further action or comment other than the speeches of approval of Viscount Ishii and Mr. Fisher.

Council's Work Blocked Until U S. Is Heard From.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The State Department today received an official summary of the note addressed by Dr. Gastao da Cunha, president of the League of Nations, to France, Italy and Japan, announcing that it would be impossible for the council of the league to proceed with its work regarding mandates until the allied Powers have come to an agreement with the United States. Dr. da Cunha urges the necessity of reaching an agreement with the United States immediately.

This action by the league council was characterized today in authoritative quarters as very acceptable to the United States Government. It was pointed out that the United States all along has contended that differences of opinion regarding mandates should be worked out with the allies and not with the league council. This idea was in mind when the Harding administration refrained from accepting the invitation of the league council, forwarded to this Government March 2, to send a representative to participate in the discussion of mandate terms at the present meeting in Geneva. Officials were not prepared to hazard a guess today as to when an agreement with the allies might be expected.

Detroit Interurban Steel Car Telescopes a Wooden Car Near Ann Arbor.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSON, Mich., June 18.—Five persons were killed late today, six miles west of Ann Arbor, when a Detroit United Railways steel interurban car telescoped a wooden car at Finkbinders' Switch.

The dead: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pierec, Highland Park, Detroit; Miss Kouch, Chelsea; young woman, 23 or 25, badly mangled, unidentified; small baby, unidentified.

Some of the wounded arriving here were seriously hurt. Carl S. Smith, one of the passengers, says that those in the rear of the forward car had little chance to escape. About half of the forward car was completely demolished, while the second car was but slightly damaged, according to Smith.

satisfactory to America and the Americans, who were playing under the disadvantage of the uncertainty of whether Milburn would last out the game, and on ground practically strange to them.

The grade of play was poor and seldom attained the level of a good tournament match in pre-war times. Moreover, the polo of none of the players with the exception of Lord Wodehouse, was up to the form he could exhibit. Perhaps in consequence of the long drouth the ground had been over-watered in the anxiety to prevent it playing too hard. Anyway, it cut badly from the beginning and played heavily.

Milburn Star for U. S. Team.

The Americans got going from the very start and scored two goals in three minutes. The English side hardly ever seemed to be able to do so on the rare occasions when they showed any zip. All the players took a long time to find their form and the end of the game found the Britishers still chasing it. The game was won in the fifth period—that fateful fifth which has put the lid on so many a side's hopes. Thenceforward the Yankees wore down their opponents, who seemed to get dryrot, and went to pieces, leaving the Meadowbrook team to score at will.

About the middle of the game Milburn threw his injuries behind him and showed the crowd he could still drive with his old energy and length. Stoddard was cunning and quick; Hitchcock a real good hitter, and Watson Webb maintained consistently the high form of play he has shown on his side. Beyond question the Americans were all over their opponents, whom they squandered.

Today is the anniversary of one of the greatest battles in British history. England found its Waterloo in a different way from that of their ancestors 100 years ago. Still they took their whipping like sportsmen, and both sides were cheered impartially. Milburn must feel as fine as Napoleon, and he need not deny that potentate either of his empresses, for the former Miss Nancy Steele was absolutely radiating with happiness at having justified her role as mascot of the team.

Americans First to Score.

At 3:30 o'clock the sides lined up from the throw-in and the Americans immediately got possession of the ball and took it down the ground straight across the English goal line. From the hit-out, the first goal was hit for America by Watson Webb. Score, 1—0. From the throw-in the Americans took the ball straight upground, and goal was scored by Hitchcock. Score, 2—0.

England then hit the ball over the boards in the vicinity of the 50-yard line, but Stoddard then got in the way of a very fast pony and narrowly missed scoring a goal. After a rush by Hitchcock and a return by Wodehouse, England hit the ball across the boards into the center of the ground. From the throw-in the American team took the ball and a scrimmage in front of the English goal ensued. The goal was saved by Wodehouse, who hit the ball behind his goal.

Second period. The penalty was taken by Milburn, who hit the ball wide of the goal. After hitting, the American had a shot at goal, which was beautifully saved by Lord Wodehouse. Tomkinson made a cross shot under the pony's neck off a beautiful pass from Wodehouse. Score, 2—1. After the throw-in some sticky play ensued for a minute or two, when a goal was hit from a long shot by Watson Webb. Score, 3—1. England then took the ball up the ground, and hit it across the American line. After the hit-out, Earrett met the ball and passed it to Tomkinson, who narrowly missed scoring.

England pressed the Americans for some minutes, but eventually America took the ball and hit it across the English line very wide of the goal.

Hitchcock crossed Maj. Lockett an dbefore the penalty was taken the bell rang.

Third Period.

Third period. The 50-yard penalty was taken by Barrett, who scored a goal. Score, America 3, England 2.

When the ball was thrown in, Stoddard took it up, and passed it to Hitchcock, who scored. Score 4—2. Some fast play followed and Watson Webb crossed Lockett. The penalty was hit by Barrett, who just failed to score. From the hit-out, Lord Wodehouse met the ball and made a beautiful straight hit into the mouth of the goal. The ball was put through by Tomkinson. Score, 4—3.

Some fast up-and-down play followed. Lord Wodehouse, who had been doing some very fine hitting, temporarily went off his form, but Maj. Lockett readily took his place and made several fine returns. As the bell rang at the end of this period, Hitchcock scored off a good pass by Milburn. Score, 5—3.

Immediately after the throw-in, Maj. Lockett passed the ball to Tomkinson, who had a clear shot at goal, which he failed to take advantage of. From the hit-out, England again took the ball across the America line. England then pressed and the ball was hit across the American lines by Maj. Lockett.

After a beautiful combined piece of play by Lord Wodehouse and Lockett, Tomkinson missed an absolutely open goal. Out of the mill in front of the goal, Tomkinson scored. Score, 5—4.

England took the ball down, Milburn saving a goal wonderfully. From the hit-out England got the ball and hit across the American goal lines. The period finished with the ball being hit across the boards in the center of the ground.

Two Scores in Fifth.

Fifth period—The ball was taken down to the American goal. The Americans then retallated and took it up to the English goal. Some sticky play in front of the English goal followed, but the ball was finally cleared by a fine backhander by Wodehouse. The Americans continued to press, Maj. Lockett and Lord Wodehouse defending beautifully. Tomkinson then got the ball away, but missed, owing to bumpy ground, when taking his shot at the goal. The play then stopped, as the ball was broken. Lord Wodehouse nearly scored with a fine near-side shot. After a combined run, Milburn scored for the American team. Score, 6—4. After the throw-in, the Americans took the ball down ground, and Hitchcock scored from a pass from Stoddard. Score, 7—4.

Sixth period—This period opened with some sticky play beside the boards. England took the ball down and Milburn failed to return it, missing in his turn. The Americans then got the ball, and after a scrimmage and some inferior play in front of the English goal, Stoddard put the ball through. Score, 8—4. On throw-in, the ball was taken across the boards in the center of the ground. The English then hit it up toward the American goal. America immediately returned it and after some combined work, an easy shot was left to Watson Webb, who scored a goal. Score, 9—4. The ball was then taken back and forth. Milburn, off a pass across the ground, very nearly scored with a 70-yard shot under his pony's neck. This period was finished by the ball being hit over the boards in the vicinity of the American goal, England pressing.

Seventh period—From throw-in Stoddard got the ball away and it was taken up by Hitchcock, who scored a goal. Score, 10 to 4. At that period Maj. Lockett was off the ground and the Americans pressed again. England saved by hitting the ball across their line. From penalty Stoddard scored for America. Score, 11 to 4. From the throw-in the Americans got away with the ball, but were stopped by Barrett, who made a fine run, but failed to score with a near-side chot which went wide. The game after this was up and down until England hit the ball over the American line.

The teams lined up as follows:

America.	Position.	England.
Louis Stoddard	No. 1	Lieutenant-Colonel Tomkinson
T. C. Hitchcock	No. 2.	Maj. Barrett
J. W. Webb	No. 3	Lord Wodehouse

MILLMEN'S AND LUMBER ASSOCIATIONS TO BE PROSECUTED

lower than the high price peak of 1920 they were still 54 to 89 per cent higher than in 1917. He said the association, which has 17 members, was organized in 1915. His salary as secretary, he said, was $300 a month and he received an additional $300 a month as secretary of the St. Louis Wood Products Co.

He explained that funds to meet the expenses of the association were derived from the payment by members of one-fifth of one per cent of the cost of the mill work manufactured by them. He testified that in 1915 the association issued a cost guide for members. This was in a loose-leaf binding and had been added to from time to time.

The officers of the St. Louis Mill Men's Association as named by Larson in his testimony, were Chris Beckemeyer Jr. of the Gravois Planing Mill Co., president, and John M. Darr, treasurer.

The members of the St. Louis Millmen's Association, according to a list filed with the Attorney-General's office by officers of the association, are as follows; Carondelet Planing Mill Co., John M. Darr & Sons' Planing Mill Co., Gravois Planing Mill Co., Kirkwood Sash and Door Co., Thomson Planing Mill Co., Wellston Planing Mill Co., Crescent Planing Mill Co., Fox Bros.' Manufacturing Co., Huttig Sash & Door Co., Mechanics' Planing Mill Co., North St. Louis Planing Mill Co., Reed & Steeger Sash and Door Co., Frank Schmidt Planing Mill Co. and Charles F. Puener Planing Mill Co.

Testimony on Lumber Prices.

R. S. Hoxie, manager of the St. Louis Lumber Trade Exchange, testified that retail lumber prices in St. Louis very closely followed the prices published in "Lumber," a St. Louis trade publication. He testified that the St. Louis lumber dealers added to these quoted prices a "fixed service charge," and that all members of the Lumber Trade Exchange were required, under penalty of a fine, to figure a uniform and definite "service charge" in making bids.

The members of the exchange, all using the uniform service charge, Hoxie said, were Boeckeler, Burns & Gest Lumber Co., Boeckeler Lumber Co., Cherokee Lumber Co., Clayton Lumber Co., Essig Lumber Co., Ganahl Lumber Co., S. J. Gavin Lumber Co., Goodfellow Lumber Co., Phil Gruner & Bros. Lumber Co., Hoelkamp Lumber Co., Mound City Lumber Co., Charles Naeber Lumber Co., O'Neill Lumber Co., Prendergast Lumber Co., Rapp Lumber Co., Rice Moran Lumber Co., Julius Seidel Lumber Co. (resigned, but resignation not effective yet), St. Louis Lumber Co., Shallabarger Lumber Co., Vandeventer Lumber Co., Wiles Chipman Lumber Co., Wilson Land Lumber Co., Hill Behan Lumber Co.

There are 13 St. Louis lumber companies which are not members. Lumbermen attending the hearing could recall the following 11 nonmembers: Darlington Lumber Co., Heim Lumber Co., Forest Park Lumber Co., National Lumber Co., Tudor Lumber Co., City Lumber Co., Waybeck Lumber Co., Etzken Lumber Co., H. F. Rice Lumber Co., Harris Lumber Co., Williams Barnes Zint Lumber Co., Moore Lumber Co.

Uniform Service Charge.

Hoxie explained that the uniform service charge was arrived at by having expert accountants learn from the books of the various companies the exact cost to them of handling lumber. This cost includes taking the lumber off the cars, piling it, selling it, insurance, delivery billing and collections. The 10 firms shown to be most efficient are then separated and an average of the cost of the 10 is taken.

The result, Hoxie said, gave the uniform service charge which all members of the association must include in their bids. Adolphus Boeckeler, president of the Lumber Trade Exchange and vice president of the Boeckeler Lumber Co., gave similar testimony.

Chicago Police Arrest 500.

Seven Civilians Wounded When Troops Are Ambushed—Soldiers Fire on Party Laying Road Mine.

TEACHER FOUND EXECUTED AS A SPY

Three Other Men Dragged From Beds and Slain in Street; Mother of One, 70 Years Old, Also Wounded.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, June 18.—Crown forces were ambushed tonight at the junction of Ryders Row and Capel street. The streets were swept with bullets, and three men, three women and one little girl were wounded. The casualties among the Crown forces were not reported.

Armed civilians were discovered late today laying a road mine at Coolbawn, by a party of soldiers who opened fire, killing one of them and wounding two others.

A police patrol was ambushed near Newmarket-on-Fergus. One policeman was wounded, one of the attacking party who had been wounded was captured and another member of the party is believed to have been killed. Phillip Duggen was dragged from his home at Grangeshiggen, County Kildare, by eight armed men and shot dead. His mother who is 70 years old, was seriously wounded.

Teacher Found Slain.

The dead body of Patrick Darcy, a school teacher, was found near Caraoler by a police patrol, it was labeled: "Sooner or Later We Get Them. This Spy Was Tried, Convicted and Executed by Irish Republican Army."

The Sinn Fein campaign against steamers carrying supplies to Crown forces, coast guard stations and residences on the countryside continues. The steamer Rostellan Castle, with supplies consigned to the military forces on Spikes Island, was boarded today by 20 armed men in boats at Black Rock, County Cork, and beer, potatoes and cakes were thrown overboard.

Coast Guard Stations Burned.

Four coast guard stations in County Dublin were burned, the Wexford County court house was bombed and destroyed and Ravensdale Castles in County Louth, one of the finest mansions in Leinster, was set afire this morning. The castle had recently been sold by Lord Arran to a Dublin merchant.

After the shooting of Constable Campbell near Dundalk last night, armed men early this morning entered a saloon and took two sons of the proprietress, John and Patrick Watters, from their beds and shot them on the street. A third son escaped.

Compromise With Moderate Sinn Feiners Suggested.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 18.—Adjournment of the debate in the House of Lords, Thursday, after weighty arguments by Lord Buxton and Viscount Bryce in favor of amending the home rule act and entering into negotiations with the moderate Sinn Feiners, together with the announcement that the Government would reply on Tuesday, has brought out new peace rumors.

Suggestions are also made that advantage should be taken of the presence of the Dominion Premiers in London to make renewed efforts to reach a settlement of the Irish difficulties.

The idea generally favored is that some prominent men like Jan C. Smuts, Premier of the Union of South Africa, Viscount Grey and the Earl of Derby should be designated by the Government to meet a delegation representing the Northern and Southern Irish Parliaments and endeavor to negotiate an acceptible compromise.

NO MEETING PLACE FOR RENTERS

A meeting of renters, which was to have been held at Central High School last night, turned out to be an outdoor indignation meeting when 75 persons who gathered there at 8 o'clock discovered that the auditorium was closed.

Alfred W. Henry, president of the Rent Relief League, knocked on a rear door and aroused a janitor, who said he knew nothing about the meeting and couldn't do anything, anyway, as the lighting system was turned off. Henry told the gathering all arrangements had been in the hands of a member of the league who had informed him only the day before that everything was in readiness.

Henry will speak tonight at the Fourth Baptist Church, Thirteenth street and Sullivan avenue.

Thomas M. Osborne to Speak.

Thoma Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing, who will be an adviser to the new Missouri Prison Board, will speak before the City Club and the Missouri Welfare League at a luncheon at the City Club at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday and at 8 p. m. Wednesday will speak at a public meeting in the lecture room of the Second Presbyterian Church, Westminster place and Taylor avenue, under the auspices of the Welfare League.

Kaber Evidence Gathered by Woman Detective

Reported Confession of Man at Buffalo First Damaging Evidence Against Widow Not Furnished by Woman.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, June 18.—The confession of Salvatore Cala, arrested near Buffalo yesterday, that he took an active part in the murder of Dan Kaber at Lakewood, a suburb of Cleveland, on July 18, 1919, brings into the list of those accused of complicity in the Kaber murder plot the first male participant. Up to now the only damaging evidence against Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, under indictment for instigating the killing of her husband, has been given by women.

One of the women is her 69-year-old mother, Mrs. Mary Brickel, who accuses her directly, and is under indictment as a co-conspirator. Another is her 20-year-old daughter by another marriage, Marian McArdle, also under indictment, who has made no direct accusations and has expressed a belief in her mother's innocence. Mother and daughter occupy the same cell in the county jail.

A third woman is Mrs. Erminia Colavito, under indictment as a co-conspirator, accused of procuring two men who are alleged to have stabbed Kaber to death for $5000.

Mrs. Emma Sauers, who was arrested for complicity in the crime, but was later released, has made a statement implicating Mrs. Kaber which corroborates certain features of the accusations of Mrs. Brickel. Mrs. Wade and Mrs. Matthews, fortune tellers, have given corroborative testimony to the prosecutor which serves to establish motive rather than participation in the actual crime.

Women Detectives on Case.

Virtually all the evidence has been directly gathered by women detectives.

Prosecutor Edward Stanton of Cayahoga County, expects to put Mrs. Kaber on trial on June 28. He considers the confession of Cala the needed element in the prosecution to round out his case.

Francis W. Poulson, counsel for Mrs. Kaber, professes to look upon the Cala confession as of slight advantage to the prosecution, because he is a fellow conspirator under the law. All the evidence against Mrs. Kaber, he holds, has come from persons who have found it to their advantage to accuse her. He does not attach much importance to the statement made by Mrs. Kaber in New York that she hired two men to "frighten" her husband, because this admission was made at the conclusion of six hours of third degree grilling when the woman was physically and mentally exhausted.

Poulson declares his intention of going to trial—but reserves the right to do anything else which may seem to him to be for the best interests of his client. If Mrs. Kaber is tried, the most intricate murder mystery in the history of Ohio, and, in respect of the wholesale feminine participation therein, a murder mystery without precedent anywhere will undoubtedly result in a sensation and keenly interesting contest.

Women Eligible as Jurors.

Women are eligible to jury duty in trials of accused murderers in Ohio. They have served in such cases in Cleveland. Mrs. Kaber's counsel could insist on a jury of women.

It is up to the prosecutor to decide whether or not he will put Mrs. Kaber on trial for her life in the event that she offers to plead guilty to a minor degree of murder. Poulson positively denies that he has made any overtures looking to such a procedure.

The case is complicated by peculiar relations which exist between Mrs. Brickel, Mrs. Kaber and Marian McArdle. Mrs. Brickel feels that her daughter, by a course of headstrong waywardness throughout her life since girlhood, has forfeited to a great extent the right to expect consideration from the parent she has bullied and drawn into trouble. Mrs. Kaber is not overflowing with love for her mother, while Mrs. Brickel cordially hates Marian McArdle, and the feeling is returned by the girl.

For instance, Mrs. Brickel accuses her daughter and Marian McArdle of setting fire to the Kaber home in Lakewood, in December, 1918, with the purpose of burning Kaber to death and, incidentally, collecting insurance. Mrs. Brickel declares that on the night of the fire her daughter and Marian McArdle stopped at a hotel, leaving Kaber alone in the house. The fire was extinguished before it did much damage and Mrs. Kaber collected between $500 and $600 from an insurance company. Mrs. Kaber says her mother started the fire. She is corroborated by Marian McArdle.

Pathetic Figure in Case.

A pathetic figure in the Kaber murder case is Miss Anna Baer of Lakewod, a niece of former Mayor Herman Baer of Cleveland.

Miss Baer was a school chum of Marian McArdle. On the evening of July 18, 1919, Marian telephone her an invitation to spend the night at the Kaber home. Miss Baer went to the Kaber hoouse. At about 10:30 o'clock she went with Marian to the latter's room. Never had she seen Marian McArdle more lively or mischievous, she says. The girls had a pillow fight and were sitting on the bed laughing when they heard the shouts of Kaber.

Miss Baer recalls that Marian was hesitant about leaving the room. She said she was afraid there were burglars in the house. When the girls finally went into the hall the household had been aroused and Kaber was found on the floor of his room bleeding from stab wounds.

When Chief Christenson of the Lakewood police reached the house he found Miss Baer hysterical. The shock broke her down mentally and physically. She was slowly recovering her strength when the whole case was reopened by the indictment of Mrs. Kaber and the other women in the alleged conspiracy and she is again seriously ill.

EDISON'S SON DEFENDS HIS FATHER'S LIST OF QUESTIONS

They Test Applicants for Positions in Manner Desired by Inventor Says Charles Edison.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Charles Edison, son of Thomas A. Edison, today defended his father's list of questions put to applicants for employment in his factory.

"The questionnaire actually tests the man in the very manner my father desires," said young Edison.

"My father conceived the questionnaire when he started to rebuild his technical staff, which was broken up by the war. He corrects every paper turned in and marks it. This system is bringing about the very result he desired. One of the men who received A marks in the test is now working in the plant and making good. Some of the men who received lower marks were tried out but failed.

"My father did not make the statement that the questionnaire showed that college men are amazingly ignorant. What he said was: 'The answers show that many college men are amazingly ignorant about the common things of life with which they are in daily contact.'"

Says She Was Knocked Downstairs.

Mrs. Marie Spross of 1121 Dillon street was taken to the city hospital at 11 o'clock last night suffering from internal injuries. She told the police that she had been knocked down a stairway at her home by a man who had tried to induce her to leave her husband, Barthold Spross.

Nationalists and Communists Scrimmage in Discussion of Murder of Socialist in Munich.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 18.—A hand-to-hand scrimmage, the first in the history of the Reichstag, interrupted that body's discussion late yesterday of the murder of Herr Gerela, Bavarian Independent Socialist leader, in Munich recently. The participants were Nationalists and Communists. When Herr Mittelmann, the Nationalist leader, was alleged to have approved a statement to the effect that it would be a "good thing for Bavaria if 5000 Communists were lined up and shot," Deputies Remmle and Thartz, Communists, ran over to the Nationalist section and assaulted Herr Mittelmann. Other deputies rushed up and tried to separate the combatants and two women deputies became involved in the melee.

The session was automatically brought to a close by President Loebe deserting the chair.

SLAIN WOMAN'S HUSBAND AND TWO OTHERS SOUGHT

Persons Who Were With Mrs. Gilliland on Fishing Trips to Be Asked About Alleged Beatings.

ST. LOUIS POLICE WANTED GILLILANDS

Liquor Disappeared When They Left Home Where They Worked — Fingerprints on Paper Clew.

A coroner's verdict of homicide was returned at the inquest yesterday into the death of the woman identified as Mrs. Serena Gilliland, whose body was found Thursday afternoon in a three-foot grave in a wheat field near Granite City.

The only witnesses were Andrew Hoffman and Henry Spree, farmers, who told of finding the body. The report of the autopsy surgeons was that the probable cause of death was cerebral concussion and hemorrhage following fracture of the skull. They also reported that discoloration about the neck and marked protrusion of the tongue and eyes indicated strangulation.

The police have information that the woman and her husband, Thomas Gilliland, George Woods and Theresa Busche of East St. Louis formed occasional fishing parties at Chouteau Slough, near where the body was found, and on such occasions liquor was imbibed. After one of these outings Mrs. Gilliland is said to have complained that she was severely beaten. The police theory is that at a more recent outing the woman was struck and choked, causing her death, after which she was buried in the wheat field.

Search for Three Persons.

Search is being made for Gilliland and Woods and Miss Busche so that they can be questioned.

Gilliland has not been about East St. Louis for several days, but Woods is said to have been questioned by East St. Louis detectives Friday night, and Miss Busche was one of the persons who helped identify the dead woman.

A scrap of paper with red stains and finger prints on it, found near the spot where the woman was buried by Martin Stark, a Granite City City boy, is expected to aid in the identification of the murderer. When the boy found the paper, with a list of groceries on it, about two weeks ago, something which he cannot explain, prompted him to place it under a stone. After the body was found he regained it and turned it over to the police. It will be compared with the finger prints of a suspect whose arrest is momentarily expected.

Another piece of paper found yesterday served as another connecting link. It was a fragment of a grocer's billhead on which the letter "G" and the number 2239. This was found to be the billhead of William Gattung, 2239 Illinois avenue, the nearest grocery to Chouteau Slough, where camping parties make purchases. Gattung will consult his records tomorrow.

The woman's body was turned over to an East St. Louis undertaker employed by her grandmother, Mrs. Martha Hull of 305A East Broadway, East St. Louis. The funeral will be held this afternoon.

The Gilliands have been wanted by the St. Louis police since April 15, when they disappeared from the home of C. H. Krause, 4454 Forest Park boulevard, where Gilliland had been employed as yardman and his wife as cook. Krause reported to the police that liquors valued at about $1000 disappeared at the same time.

Were Seen in East St. Louis May 6.

The Gilliands were seen in East St. Louis May 6 and told friends they were going to Vandalia, Ill. June 14 Chief of Police Neville of East St. Louis informed the St. Louis police they were at Vandalia.

On May 6 Woods, who lived then at 1604 Division avenue, East St. Louis, and a girl who said she was Theresa Boschenreither, or Busche, of 441 North Tenth street, East St. Louis, were arrested and brought to this side and questioned about Gilliland, with whom Woods was said to be on friendly terms, but nothing was learned and they were released.

Acting Lieut. Walton and members of the St. Louis homicide squad, and a Granite City policeman canvassed the East St. Louis dentists with the plate worn by the dead woman. At the office of the Dr. Forestner Dental Co., Missouri and Collinsville avenues, it was found that a plate was made for Mrs. Gilliland, then Mrs. Collins, in July, 1919, the treatment extending from the 11th to 16th. Dr. Forestner was away and the work was done by a Dr. Rogers, now of Springfield, Ill. The plate was returned to Chief Clark with the suggestion that he send it to Dr. Rogers for identification or have Dr. Rogers come to Granite City.

Grandmother Positive.

Mrs. Hull said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday:

"I presume my granddaughter was the wife of Thomas Gilliland, 22 years old, who is the son of a man at 448 Columbia place, East St. Louis. Gilliland was sent to the reformatory at Pontiac, Ill., from Mattoon, Ill., four years ago for larceny, and was paroled after a year to Alexander Flannegan, an East St. Louis lawyer. He has been living in East St. Louis, St. Louis and nearby since then.

Divorced From First Husband.

"My granddaughter's first husband was Jesse Collins, who divorced her. About two years ago, after the divorce, she went to Jackson, Mich., where Gilliland was. She wrote her mother from there that she had married him. Last November the girl wrote me from Detroit that she had been sick in the hospital and was going to leave Gilliland on account of his treatment of her. The letter was dated Nov. 18.

"She changed her name to Mrs. Jesse Herlt to avoid Gilliland. Herlt was the name of Jesse Collins' stepfather. I sent her some money and she came here.

"In January she went to St. Louis to visit some girl friends. A couple of days later Gilliland called me on the telephone and I talked to him and Serena. She told me Gilliland was going to do differently in the future, but I told her she was wrong in going back to him. She had told me before that he treated her brutally."

TWO IN SOLDAN CLASS PENALIZED

Not at Graduation Exercises Because of Fraternity Activity.

Two of the students who were graduated last week from Soldan High School were not permitted to receive their diplomas at the graduation exercises because of fraternity activities, it was learned yesterday.

Following the decision of the Board of Education to eliminate fraternities from the high schools students were asked when they registered to sign cards stating that they were not members of fraternities. It was announced that students not complying with the board's ruling would be penalized by being denied the privileges of participation in athletics, school organizations and formal graduation. R. F. Holden, assistant principal of Soldan, yesterday said that one of the two students penalized had signed a card but afterward was active in promoting a fraternity dance.

POLICE CAPTAINS IN TRANSFER

At their own request, Capt. William Doyle and Capt. Seth Singleton of the Police Department were permitted to exchange districts yesterday by Chief O'Brien. Doyle leaves the Deer Street District for that of Wyoming street, while Singleton gives up the Wyoming Street District for that of Deer street.

The Captains, each of whom lives near his new station house, represented that the transfer would enable them to save time in riding to work on the street cars. Doyle has been in command of the Deer Street District for only three weeks, having been transferred thither from the Central District during the recent police shake-up.

SEAMSTRESSES CENSOR BATHING SUITS WITH PINS AND STITCHES

Staff on Duty in Chicago Beaches to Enforce Strict Regulations.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Seamstresses with pins, needles, thread and other requisites of the ladies' tailor, were stationed at Chicago beaches today to censor the bathing suits worn by women, and sew in those wearers who violated prohibitions against the display of legs and shoulders, were made effective this year.

Last year the style of costumes worn at the beaches was left almost entirely, it was explained, to the conscience of the wearer. The result led to the adoption this year of strict regulations which are now being enforced with needles and thread.

Hundreds of women who appeared today in last year's "conscience" suits kept the beach tailor-censors busy.

Feet All Important in Selection of Models for Fall Fashion Show

Judges, in Quickly Rejecting Some of the 300 Who Responded for Tryout, Apparently Looked No Farther Than Ankles.

By Marguerite Martyn.

MANY were called and few were chosen. To be exact, 300 beauties and would-be beauties responded to the advertisement asking for "50 beautiful girls" to model in this year's fashion show. But the 250 who walked their prettiest for the judges—and then—walked the plank—may console themselves with the knowledge that failure to qualify as fashion models does not argue them hopelessly hideous from every point of view.

They still may have a few good points left, such as a pretty face or a pretty figure, hair, eyes, teeth and other accepted essentials to beauty. Indeed, their failure as beautiful in this season of knee-length skirts is likely to be due to one single detail, that of feet.

Feet All Important.

Those aspiring to wear the new fall modes at the Style Show were asked to gather in the assembly room of the Municipal Community Center, Grand and Vista avenues, Friday evening, and no sooner had the group of 20 girls come upon the stage to walk with the mincing, swaying glide that has become the established fashion model's walk, than it became apparent from their selections that in many cases the judges were looking no further than the model's feet before they called in chorus, the fateful, "Excused!"

Little was said about feet. "How do those shoes strike you?" was the way in which the judges conferred, so far as was audible, but a glance over the shoulder of the score keepers at the table revealed that a perfect Class A grade required, millinery 15 points, carriage, figure, walk, 40 points, and feet alone, 25 points. And under the heading, "feet," it was to be noted that the perfect score included a shoe number 4-B, an ankle 7¾ inches round, and a calf 14 inches.

Nothing was said about a pretty face as a qualification for style, you see. Under the heading, "Millinery," was something about a face that "frames well in a hat."

The Style Show, as it is properly called, is planned on a larger and more elaboarte scale this year than ever, one is told. The subjects of the pageant which also is being organized and rehearsed at the Municipal Center, are to be Mirth, Strength and Youth.

In far greater numbers and far prettier, according to the judges themselves, though bored as they were, they hated to admit it, are the girls applying as models this year. Certainly 300 of them, all dressed with an eye to making the most of their good points, produced a colorful and lively scene. To the disinterested observer, then, it was, at first, a shock to hear "Excused" yelled at a girl who had spared no pains to look her prettiest for this trial. Many were in becoming organdie frocks, which were cool and comfortable as well as smart, but many also were trying to look cool in tailored suits or tightly fitting silk gowns, the smartest things their wardrobe afforded, perhaps. It didn't seem exactly chivalrous to yell at these carefully got up beauties, "Excused," with sometimes an added admonition to get off the stage.

Some Slip in for Second Trial.

But circulate a little among those who had been thus unceremoniously rejected and you found no cause for commiseration there. The judges were all wrong or it was lack of experience at previous Style Shows or because they were not tall and skinny enough, never because they were not just as beautiful as their mirrors had told them they were, that they had failed to qualify. There were no indications of wounded vanity. They were ordered off the stage and out of the way, but many of them lingered on. Possibly the judges would find they had made a mistake. Perhaps they would reconsider, and so many remained on the stage, posing, pirouetting, just waiting around, while still others, dismissed with one group, would return with another group, walking more slowly this time, and with more of the swaying saunter, to give the judges another chance.

Vanity! Thy symbol should not be the peacock, but the fashion show model. And even she could learn something from the supposedly most frivolous of birds. For the peacock when strutting and displaying the splendor of his plumage, is wise enough to seek the tall grass to hide his ugly feet. He would not have the effrontery to have the merciless glare of the footlights to walk up and down in knee-length skirts today.

HEARING ON SUIT FOR $400 HORSESHOE PITCHING PRIZE

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, June 18.—A replevin suit brought by C. C. Davis of Columbus to collect the stakes of $400 as winner of the recent horseshoe pitching contest over the National champion, Frank Jackson of Kellerton, Ia., will be heard here Monday afternoon. The stakeholder refused to turn the purse over to Davis on presentation of evidence by Jackson that the pegs were 41 feet apart instead of 40 feet, as provided by national tournament regulations, and as agreed to by the contestants.

Davis, who won the match, 300 to 175, admits that he measured off the distance of the pegs with James Jackeon, president of the Polk County Horse Shoe Pitching Association. The fact that the pegs were more than 40 feet apart was not disclosed until the day after the contest. Davis says that if the stakes were 41 feet apart they were moved after he placed them.

Polk County's preacher Sheriff, W. E. Robb, is said to be interesting himself in the case. There are rumors that there may be arrests on gambling charges.

STATE CLOSES CASE AGAINST MRS. ORTHWEIN

Newspaper Man Testifies She Told Him That Ziegler Never Struck Her.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Mrs. Cora Orthwein heard today the last words which the State will say against her until the prosecution goes before the jury. Before Judge Wilson in the Criminal Court the State closed its case against her for the shooting of Herbert Ziegler. Monday her own attorneys will begin their presentation of evidence that she shot Ziegler in order to protect her own life. The State closed its case with the testimony of a newspaper man substantiating in part that of Detective Moffat.

"Mrs. Orthwein told me the events connected with the night's shooting," the newspaper man said. "She told me that she picked up her revolver from her dressing case when Ziegler was pounding at the door. 'If you come in here I will kill you,' she said she shouted to him. 'He came in the doorway,' she said, 'and the first thing I knew I had shot him.'

"'Did you know you pulled the trigger?' I asked her. 'No,' she said, 'but the revolver was in my hand and the first thing I knew I shot him.' 'You loved this man?' I asked her. 'Yes,' she said. When I asked her why she killed him she answered, 'Because I thought he was going to kill me.'"

In their questioning of the newspaper man the State prosecutors attempted to forestall by his testimony the coming defense argument that scars on Mrs. Orthweins' face prove that Ziegler had struck her. A long white scar streaks across Mrs. Orthwein's temple and up to her hair. "Ziegler's mark," the defense attorneys call it.

"I asked Mrs. Orthwein if Ziegler ever struck her," the newspaper man testified, "and she denied it. 'He often threatened me,' she told me, 'but never actually hit me.' 'How did you get that scar then?' I inquired. 'Ziegler gave it to me,' Mrs. Orthwein said, 'but it was in an auto accident. The flying glass cut me, but Herbert used to say that it was his mark on me.'"

It is expected that testimony and arguments in the case will close by next Thursday or Friday and the jury will have returned its verdict by next Saturday.

MOB BURNS NEGRO AT STAKE AFTER HE IS SENTENCED TO HANG

By the Associated Press.

MOULTRIE, Ga., June 18.—John Henry Williams, negro slayer of Lorena Wilkes, 12 years old, a white girl, was burned at the stake today by a mob after he had been convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to be hanged July 8.

The prisoner was taken from the officers as he was being escorted from the courtroom and was rushed to the scene of his crime, where he was tied to the stump of a tree.

Williams smoked a cigarette as a match was applied to the fuel around him, and he made but little outcry as the flames slowly burned him to death. It was reported that he made a full confession.

The mob quietly dispersed after the lynching. No arrests have been made.

WIFE'S COUNSEL TO GRILL STILLMAN ON MODE OF LIFE

Plans Laid for Counter Attack at Resumption of Hearings in Divorce Suit on June 28.

50 WITNESSES TO BE CALLED

Mrs. Stillman, After Spending $8000 in Effort to Find Mrs. Leeds, Orders Search Continued.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Mrs. James A. Stillman's lawyer will begin her counter attack when hearings in the divorce suit are resumed in Poughkeepsie on June 28.

Counsel for the banker have practically completed their versions of the two main issues of the case—the Mrs. Stillman-Fred Beauvais episode, the legitimacy of Guy. Mrs. Stillman's counsel will plumb the past history of the banker, his mode of life, his financial condition. This will be Stillman's first story since his examination early in the suit was merely perfunctory.

In Mrs. Florence Leeds, one of the three co-respondents named, Mrs. Stillman's counsel have an enigma. Apparently authentic report has it that she has broken with the banker. His alleged attachment to "Helen," described as a woman of social standing, is advanced as the cause. Thus far investigators have failed to trace the elusive show girl. Mrs. Stillman has spent $8000 in the effort, and today she authorized a renewal of the inquiry.

50 Witnesses Against Stillman.

Fifty witnesses will be called by the defense against Stillman. The possibility was indicated that if Mrs Leeds has discarded the banker, she may appear to testify against him, although this is not regarded as likely.

Of "Clara" little is known. "Clara" is said to have been found in this city. But her status has not yet been fixed definitely and will not be until the defense begins its counter-attack.

From present indications Stillman will not be spared under cross-examination. Counsel for the wife will not only seek to bring out old associations in his private life, but will question also his motives in doubting the legitimacy of baby Guy.

Testimony of Dr. Hugh Russell, Buffalo physician, who told of Mrs. Stillman's "confession," is regarded by lawyers as distinctly favorable to Mrs. Stillman's forces. Those not associated with the case, but who have followed it closely, point out that Dr. Russell was not permitted to tell Friday what Mrs. Stillman told him of Guy during his visit to her in New York. It is regarded likely his entire testimony will be discarded.

Conferences Tuesday.

Counsel for Mrs. Stillman will assemble at Yonkers Tuesday for a series of conferences in connection with forthcoming plans. John F. Brennan, chief of counsel, and John D. Mack, legal guardian of Guy, will center most of their efforts in outlining the course of Stillman's cross-examination.

Talk of a settlement, buzzing since the case got well under way, was discounted today. The only basis seems to be Stillman's dislike of publicity and the ordeal of an inquiry into his private life.

Mrs. Stillman motored into this city today to visit friends. She will attend commencement exercises at Princeton Wednesday. Relatives and friends of Mrs. Stillman have been assuring her of their support. James Brown Potter, her father, has again and again told her and his friends he deemed her a "wonderful woman and a good wife."

Referee Considers Motion to Strike Out Doctor's Testimony.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 18.—The feeling of triumph with which Mrs. Anne U. Stillman left yesterday's hearing of the suit of her husband, James A. Stillman, the banker, to divorce her and repudiate the paternity of her youngest child, Guy, seemed powerful enough to buoy her up until the hearings are resumed June 28. There was no question but that the legal advantage of yesterday's skirmish was all with her.

While the testimony of Miss Mary Gilligan, the trained nurse who attended her when Guy was born, that she had, at Mrs. Stillman's dictation, sent a telegram to Fred Beauvais, the Indian guide alleged by Mr. Stillman to be Guy's father, announcing that "the little brown bear has arrived" as told in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, was not exactly favorable and was not convincingly explained away by her counsel, the manner in which the defense tangled up Dr. Hugh Russell was much to her advantage.

Dr. Russell is the Buffalo chiropractor who testified that Mrs. Stillman told him, before Guy's birth, that Beauvais was the father of the expected child. Not only was he compelled to deny his own memorandum book record of his practice at that time, but Referee Gleason took under advisement a motion during the day, made by John Mack, guardian ad litem and attorney for Guy, to strike all of Dr. Russell's testimony, both here and in New York from the record.

Dr. Russell's cross-examination yesterday was a savage one. They trapped him into a contradiction of his own memorandum book. They showed his numerous conferences with the financier. They caused him to give utterance to what his inquisitors terms "stump speeches," and a long list of energetic "I don't knows."

Long Examination of Doctor.

Dr. Russell's examination continued for six hours. In its course he told of visits to Mrs. Stillman and Fred Beauvais in Canada and his anger at the guide because of his negligence. He told of visits to Mrs. Stillman in the hospital and conferences with her husband. He was an irate witness. When he had done, counsel for Mrs. Stillman appeared confident his entire story would be discarded. Daniel J. Gleason, referee, will decide upon this issue by June 28, when the hearings are resumed.

"What did Mrs. Stillman tell you about the baby?" Col. William Rand, for Stillman, asked.

Mack, legal guardian of Guy, objected, on the ground of privilege.

Dr. Russell explained he did not regard Mrs. Stillman's statement as confidential, since it bore upon her mental condition.

The referee observed he was not satisfied that Dr. Russell should be permitted to disclose the statement of Mrs. Stillman. Then Col. Rand withdrew the question. "The little black book"—a memorandum of his patients—caused Russell many irritating moments during cross-examination. Dr. Russell kept in this book a record of his visits to the Stillman family. He read from it the date Jan. 6 and Jan. 27, 1918. It has been the contention of Stillman's lawyers that their client did not see his wife during the period preceding the birth of Guy.

But in the two entries the doctors read, he included among the patients treated the financier, his wife, Frankie Beauvais and Alexander Stillman. On Jan. 6 Fred Beauvais was not mentioned, although his name is included in the latter date, and above the date was the line, "Mondanne, Pleasantville, N. Y.," the Stillman estate.

"Doctor, is it not a fact, to the best of your recollection, that James A. Stillman was not treated in Pleasantville, but in New York?"

"To the best of my recollection he was treated in New York."

Mack demanded whether he could remember that on both these occasions he had motored into New York from Pleasantville with Mr. Stillman.

"I wouldn't swear, but I have no recollection."

Doubtful About Entry.

"Then," demanded Mr. Mack. "How did Mr. Stillman's name to be recorded in the memorandum book?"

The physician hazarded it was due to a mistake. He refused to produce the book for examination, but agreed to read from it. Mr. Mack observed that under both entries was visible erasion. He was asked to examine it closely.

"Couldn't he make out a capital P?"

Didn't he know that the name of H. Phelps Clawson, Buffalo, poet and friends of Mrs. Stillman had been entered there? If he had treated Clawson, would he have included his name?

He would not.

"When was it erased?

"I can't tell."

"Why?"

"I don't know."

"How?" But under redirect examination he recalled that he must have treated Mr. Stillman in New York. He could not swear, however, that he had not motored into the city from Pleasantville with the financier.

The physician first told of a visit to Canada. There he met Mrs. Stillman and Beauvais. There had been some difficulty over the acquisition of a title to property. Beauvais had obtained an option in his own name and Mrs. Stillman's. The option had lapsed.

Dr. Russell portrayed himself as angry with Beauvais for neglecting the camp and for signing an option. Mrs. Stillman, he said asked him not to be "too hard on Fred." But later he lectured Fred, and the guide was angry. When the real estate matter had been cleared up, Dr. Russell continued, all three went back to camp. There the guide discarded his city clothes and donned deerskin shirt and trousers, and obtained a revolver. Mrs. Stillman asked the physician to accompany the guide into the woods, but he declined.

Dr. Russell admitted he had been frequently in consultation with Mr. Stillman and Cornelius J. Sullivan, his lawyer. At one conference Dr. Russell dictated a long statement which he did not sign. He was represented by N. J. Kenefik of Buffalo. Those who know the lawyer say he has expressed himself as opposed to the divulging of confidential information, and that had he represented the doctor at the previous hearing he would not have permitted the "confession testimony."

Dr. Russell's seeming tangle under cross-examination is peculiarly significant in view of Mrs. Percy Rockefeller's testimony last Monday. She said her brother had not left her home in New York at the time Dr. Russell's memorandum book placed him in Pleasantville.

Mrs. Stillman today received a telegram from "Bud," her oldest son, and a letter from her mother, Mrs. James Brown Potter.

"Bud's" telegram came early in the day. It read: "Treat them rough, mother. Lots of love."

"Isn't that just like him?" she asked of friends. "He knows how to say a great deal in a few words."

Letter From Mother.

The letter from her mother, addressed "Dear F." (Fifi) and signed "A.," read:

"I am wondering about you. What are your plans? You have scored heavily and won hands down. What a fine name Bud has carved out for himself. He is a real hero. And has made his name in the world and in every country at 17. Everyone is talking about him and singing his praise and glory.

"I do hope you are keeping your health through this terrible strain and ordeal. Your picture in the papers cooking and holding little Guy is absolutely loveiy. Flosso; send me one. He has such a delightful appearance. Dear F., your three boys are jewels and it is fine to think you will have three splendid sons always to lean on. The papers say Anne is engaged to be married to young McCormick—is it true?

"I shall be glad when I know all is settled and you can have a let-up of care and worry. You have secured great admiration from everyone, the way you have worked through and scored. I always felt you would come out on top and that everything would be always all right for you. This is just a line to send you all my love and tender thoughts."

ROOSEVELT CAMP FOR BOY SCOUTS OPEN

Outing Grounds at Greenia Springs, Near Irondale, Mo.

Camp Roosevelt, for the Boy Scouts of St. Louis and vicinity, opened the seventh annual encampment yesterday at Irondale, Mo., on the Missouri Pacific Railroad about 74 miles from St. Louis, in the foothills of the Ozarks at the Greenia Springs.

From the waters of these springs a swimming pool is now under the course of construction. The pool will be 180 feet long and 80 feet wide; it will have concrete walls and will be finished about June 28, when it will be dedicated. Heretofore the boys, while in camp, walked one mile to the Big River for their swimming instructions, which are given by special swimming instructors.

200 Boys at Opening.

The camp opened with 200 boys. There are approximately 45,000 Boy Scouts in St. Louis, and Scout Commissioner Simmons says that the camp is of sufficient size to permit every Boy Scout to spend a two weeks' vacation. The camp is equipped for accommodation of 200 boys at a time. There are 40 large 12x14 tents with flies, board floors, double deck cots for the accommodation of eight boys per tent, including a leader. The dining hall, screened and comfortably equipped, will accommodate 200 boys. The year of 1920, 1427 Scouts took advantage of the summer camp and 977 mothers and fathers visited the camp at that period.

The food is wholesome and well balanced meals are served. The boys are not permitted to leave the table until they have satisfied their hunger. "James," the chef, has been cooking for the Boy Scouts for the past six seasons. The boys are allowed to cook under proper supervision in order to give them experience in this branch of scoutcraft.

The camp is located on a high plateau on which there are over 5000 cedar trees, which makes the camp free from mosquitoes and other insects. It has a splendid athletic field and baseball diamond and approximately 8000 acres of wild, interesting country, well adapted to scouting purposes. The camp has an altitude of 1400, the air is cool and invigorating.

Swimming Lessons Given.

Last year 521 boys were taught how to swim. During their stay at the camp the boys at no time are allowed to go swimming unless accompanied by one of the swimming instructors. Medical attention is given to all Scouts through the summer by the resident physician; instructions in first-aid subjects, included in the first-class, second-class and merit badge requirements and campfire talks on general hygiene and health, are also given by the resident physicians.

Everything connected with scouting is a part of the camp life. Special attention is devoted to the boys' advancement in scout work. Scouts who have passed the second-class and first-class requirements will be decorated in camp with the badge of their advanced rank.

Instructions will be given this year in a variety of subjects, including nature study, natural history, campcraft, woodcraft, astronomy, handicraft, signaling and wireless telegraphy.

FINED $200 ON CHARGE OF TRANSPORTING LIQUOR

Fred End, a service car driver, of 6640 Bartmer avenue, was fined $200 by Justice of the Peace Ladd at University City yesterday afternoon on charges of transporting liquor. His wife, Mrs. Stella End, who was jointly charged, was freed on a demurrer.

Testimony was that at 11:40 P. M. May 8, three policemen, who were looking for End on information from the St. Louis police, saw an automobile without lights, with two occupants, going east on Chamberlain avenue at Sixty-sixth street, and called for it to halt. Someone answered, "Don't shoot; we'll stop." The car slowed, passed the policemen, and then speeded up and turned north on Sutter avenue, in a fusillade of shot from the policemen. They followed and found it stopped, with the lights on and the engine running, just south of Bartmer avenue. Mrs. End was arrested in a yard near by, and nine cans containing 45 gallons of 90 per cent grain alcohol were found in the machine. End surrendered the next day at Clayton. He testified that he went to Cincinnati at 9 p. m. May 8. William E. Preiss, proprietor of a garage on the Olive Street road at Westgate avenue, testified that End took his car from the garage at 11 o'clock that night. End appealed.

CITIZENS TO RAISE ROAD FUND

That the St. Louis-Chicago paved highway may not have a gap of a quarter-mile in it five miles below Edwardsville, citizens of that place will start tomorrow to raise a fund of $3000.

The heirs of the William Herman estate were so constrained under the will that they could not make a sale when the highway was laid out. Under condemnation proceedings the defendants obtained a verdict of $6000 for two acres taken, because of a 70-foot cut necessary in going through the farm to avoid a steep hill. The State Highway Department said the award was excessive and refused to pay it. The heirs are powerless under the law to accept a less amount. The pavement is built up to both sides of the gap. Edwardsville citizens propose to raise the difference between what the State is willing to pay and what the Court says must be paid.

AMUNDSEN AT NOME ON WAY TO SEATTLE

Explorer Arrives in Alaska After Wintering Off Siberian Coast —Ship Crippled in Ice.

By the Associated Press.

NOME, Alaska, June 18.—Roald Amundsen, the explorer, whose ship, the Maude, wintered off Cape Serge, Siberia, arrived in Nome yesterday and will depart for Seattle on the first steamer, he announced.

The Maude lost a propeller in the ice during the winter and will be towed to Nome this summer for repairs.

The explorer, noted for his discovery of the South Pole, and for his many Arctic and Antarctic voyages, said he would continue his efforts to reach the North Pole by drifting with Arctic ice floes as soon as repairs to his vessel were completed.

He spent the winter on board the Maude with one native and three white companions, and said the party experienced few vicissitudes. He reached Nome on the trading schooner Herman which had picked him up at East Cape, Siberia.

With the explorer were the daughter of Charles Carpenter, a Siberian trader, and a Chuchuk Eskimo girl, whom he will send to school in Norway.

Amundsen has been in the Arctic since 1918, when he sailed north from Norway aboard the Maude on what was expected to be a drift to the North Pole. He remained in the northern seas, unheard from, 19 months, making his way from the Atlantic to the Pacific along the northern coasts of Europe and Asia.

Bering Sea was reached by the Maude last summer and Amundsen visited Nome for supplies. After a short rest there, during which several members of his crew left, he again sailed north, just before winter sealed the Arctic, and was frozen in the ice, as expected, north of Wrangle Island, off Siberia.

An ocean current, believed by some explorers, to begin in the Arctic off Siberia and flow across the North Pole to Greenland, is being sought by Amundsen to carry him to the top of the world. Amundsen's fellow countryman, Fridtjof Nansen, noted explorer, in 1895 made a memorable attempt to reach the pole by following this current. He found the drift not as rapid as expected, left his ship and made a futile attempt to reach the pole over the ice.

First circumnavigation of the globe through the narrow waters between the Arctic icejack and the northern coasts of Europe, Asia and North America has been claimed for Amundsen as a result of his present trip. He made the first leg of the journey in 1906 when he discovered the northwest passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific around North America. The second section was completed when he journeyed between the same oceans, but around Europe and Asia between 1918 and 1920.

NEW OIL DEVELOPMENT BY U. S. IN MEXICO URGED

Shipping Board Member Points Out That Proven Fields Are Going to Salt Water.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—J. A. Phelan of the Shipping Board staff urged in his recent report on the Mexican oil situation, transmitted to Chairman Porter of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, that, since the proven oil field in Mexico "is fast going into the salt water," the American Government "either directly or in co-operation with American capital proceed immediately to develop new oil fields in that country, and added "that the potential production of Mexico is almost unlimited is beyond question."

Phelan discusses at length conditions in the present field, and presented the following under the head of "Recommendations:"

"That the proven old field in Mexico within a reasonable period is certain to go into salt water is a demonstrated fact, and this may come sooner than expected. Inasmuch as the consumption of oil in the United States increased from 500,000 barrels to 5,000,000 barrels in 10 years, it is certain that this country will have to depend upon foreign oil and principally Mexican onl for fuel purposes in the future.

"As the American merchant marine is fast going into fuel oil, it is necessary that this supply be assured. This means that the American Government either directly or by co-operation with American capital at once proceed to develop oil fields in Mexico. That the potential production of Mexico is almost unlimited is beyond question, but the proposition snould not be delayed until after the present fields are exhausted. It takes years of time and a fortune in money to develop an oil field.

"The United States is confronted with an oil situation in Mexico today. Now is the time for decisive action."

Phelan's report, under date of June 13, was prepared by direction or Rear Admiral Benson, former chairman of the Shipping Board, and transmitted to Chairman Porter at Porter's request.

"The report is based," Phelan says, "almost entirely on actual observations in Mexico, which includes a personal inspection of the proven and potential fields, study of developments, salt water encroachment, dry holes, pipe line transportation facilities, refining and topping plants, onl-tank transportation and other potent facts needed in the making of a definite and authoritative report."

LEWIS EXPECTED TO ENTER RACE AGAINST GOMPERS

Railroad Organization Reported to Favor Him, Increasing Probability That He Will Run.

WATERWAY URGED AT LABOR MEETING

Miners Favor Immediate Development of Mississippi to Give Employment to Idle Men.

By the Associated Press.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 18.—Probability that John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, would oppose Samuel Gompers for re-election as president of the American Federation of Labor increased today by reports that representatives of the majority of the railroad organization, at a conference last night, had decided to support his candidacy.

These reports, brought here today by delegates to the federation convention who came from Denver on a special train for an outing in Pike's Peak region, declared that Lewis would announce his candidacy for the presidency Monday.

The miners' chief, however, continued to maintain silence, but supporters were busily rounding up supporters for his candidacy. They claimed that Lewis had sufficient votes to win, if he decided to run.

Published reports that certain alleged anti-Gompers interests had representatives operating among the delegates with a hundred thousand dollar "slush fund" created considerable excitement. Several labor leaders asserted that the entire matter would be brought before the convention next Monday morning and a demand would be made for proof of these charges.

Representatives of Pro-Gompers have decline dto make any statement regarding the situation except to say that they are confident that the veateran labor leader will be re-elected. They, however, have been on the defensive and have been busy taking canvass of their strength and the situation in general.

Up to the present time, however, no international union has publicly announced which candidate it will support if a fight for the leadership takes place. Many of the international officers admit that they have not decided.

Immediate Development of Mississippi System Favored.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., June 18.—Immediate development of the Mississippi system as a deep waterway by the Government, in order to provide for the millions of unemployed, was urged by James Lord, president of the mining department of the American Federation of Labor, in his annual report made public today.

Besides relieving unemployment, Lord said, this gigantic enterprise, which would provide for extension of ship canals, would also prevent floods forever, would reclaim millions of acres of the richest land in the world and would do away with yellow fever and malaria.

"This would automatically do many other things," he said, "such as making valuable seaports of all of our inland cities. I believe that the system started, building from the headwaters of the Mississippi and the Missouri and to some extent the Illinois and Ohio rivers, down to New Orleans, La., it would provide an outlet by water for the products of St. Louis, Chicago, Kansas City, Pittsburg and other cities, direct to either coast of South America and Europe.

Would Put Unemployed to Work.

"It would require many years to do this job right. In the meantime, while the rest of the world is suffering in agony and uncertainty, this gigantic enterprise would be under headline in our country; our unemployed would be put to useful and productive work. They would require clothing, food, hosing, payrolls, steel, machinery, and in the meantime we would have an open field for thorough and complete reclamation."

Reclamation of desert and swamp land and the building of the Mississippi was also urged by the miners' department head to give work to the unemployed.

DENVER, Colo., June 18.—Immediate development of the Mississippi system as a deep waterway by the Government, in order to provide for the millions of unemployed, was urged by James Lord, president of the mining department of the American Federation of Labor, in his annual report made public today.

Besides relieving unemployment, Lord said, this gigantic enterprise, which would provide for establishment of ship canals, would also prevent floods forever, would reclaim millions of acres of the richest land in the world and would do away with yellow fever and malaria.

"This would automatically do many other things," he said, "besides making valuable seaports of some of our inland cities. Would Put Unemployed to Work.

"It would require many years to do this job right. In the meantime, while the rest of the world is writhing in agony and uncertainty, this gigantic enterprise would boom every line in our country; our unemployed would be put to useful and profitable work. They would require clothing, food, hosing, payrolls, steel, concrete and machinery, and in the meantime we would have an open field for a thorough and complete organization."

Reclamation of desert and swamp land and the building of railroads was also urged by the mining department head to give work to the unemployed.

Declaring that the Government knew of these "professional murderers," by its investigation in the upper peninsula in Michigan, the Paint and Cabin Creek outrages in West Virginia and the Colorado horror, Lord declared, "not one man, hired killer, coal operator, or corrupt Government official has been brought to trial and convicted, this good day."

He urged the workers to unite to their fullest capacity politically and economically and abolish "this problem of shame."

"We should initiate," he continued, "and fight for passage of Federal legislation competent to deal with this evil, either in its interstate features or the abolition of the charters of these professional murder enterprises."

Readjustment Hits Coal Miners.

Referring to the coal mining industry, Lord said:

"The industrial reaction which has set in has hit the mining industry possibly harder than any other industry. Thousands of miners are unemployed and they who can get three days a week are better off than the average. This question of unemployment also manifests itself in affairs of the international union financially, as idle members are exonerated from dues."

The Alabama coal strike, he declared, was ended by one of the most brutal decisions ever rendered within the remembrance of man."

Pupils Saved $36,333 and Invested It in Thrift Stamps in Year

PUPILS in the public schools saved and invested $36,333 in thrift stamps during the school year which ended Friday.

Thrift stamps were first sold in the schools December, 1917, and their sale has continued since that time to encourage saving. Previous to the inception of the thrift stamp campaign it was found that small amounts were spent by the pupils. A way was devised by which these small amounts could be diverted into thrift stamps and the pupils encouraged to save. The amounts which the pupils brought to school whenever less than twenty-five cents were credited toward the purchase of a stamp.

After the war thrift and saving were made a part of the school curriculum. Wise spending, avoidance of waste, intelligent saving and safe investment were the objectives. Thrift is stressed in the work in language, drawing and arithmetic. Many practical problems in arithmetic dealing with thrift stamp purchases and investments are given the pupils.

U. S. CHAMBER OPENS CAMPAIGN AGAINST A CASH SOLDIER BONUS

"$1135 Mortgage on Every Family as Result of War Is Enough," Says Statement.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The Chamber of Commerce of the United State opened today a campaign against the proposed cash bonus for former service men, sending a statement of its position to the President, the Cabinet, members of Congress and 1400 trade and commercial organizations. While insistent on the physical and mental rehabilitation of disabled men, it said, the organization seriously doubted benefits which might come from cash payments to physically capable veterans.

The World War has laid a "mortgage" of approximately $1135 on every family in the United States, the statement said, and the chamber could not subscribe to a program increasing this burden.

"The continual excess of Government expenditures over revenue represented by budget deficits is a serious obstable to economic rehabilitation, and our financial obligations are such that we must face the necessity of conserving our resources and lessening our burden of taxation," the statement said.

The statement calls attention to the fact that all except six states have enacted some kind of legislation providing relief or bonus payments and opposes Federal duplication.

MISS LOLITA ARMOUR WEDS BANKER'S SON

J. Ogden Armour's Daughter Becomes Bride of John J. Mitchell Jr. at Country Home.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Miss Lolita Armour, daughter of J. Ogden Armour, and John J. Mitchell Jr., son of the head of the Federal Reserve Bank of the Seventh District, were married at 4 p. m. today at the bride's country home, Melody Farm, Lake Forest.

The wedding was a simple one. Three hundred guests were invited. Simplicity marked the bride's costume, and there was no elaborate trousseau. Miss Armour spent the last two days personally packing her honeymoon trunks, and declined to take a maid with her on the trip. The hundreds of wedding presents were not placed on display, nor was their nature announced, with the exception of a golden key to the city of Chicago, the gift of Mayor William Hale Thompson.

Explaining her refusal to prepare an elaborate trousseau, Miss Armour said:

"Why should I stock up with a lot of clothes that I won't have a chance to wear? They would be all out of style when I got back in the fall."

The honeymoon will be spent in the Canadian Northwest.

necessary "for the peace, health and safety" are not subject to the referendum. Upon his refusal former Attorney-General Barker, acting for the Democratic State Committee, filed in the Supreme Court a mandamus suit by which he seeks to compel the Secretary of State to file the petitions.

There also was filed by Thomas J. McNamara, an officer of the Asbestos Workers Union in St. Louis petitions under the initiative to place on the ballot at the November, 1922, election a proposed liability law, which, it is declared, would work to the benefit of damage suit lawyers. This proposed act would take away from employers in personal damage suits the common law defense of fellow servant, would abolish the contributory negligence defense, would amend the assumption of risk defense so that in all actions assumption of risk would be a question of fact for the jury to decide, and would provide for the advancement on the dockets of the Appellate courts all personal damage suits.

Whitaker Circulated Petitions.

The petitions against the County unit school bill were circulated under the direction of Representative O. B. Whitaker of Hickory County, and Dr. N. R. Holcomb of Jackson County, a former member of the Legislature. Whitaker was the leader of the opposition to the bill in the Legislature. The petitions contained approximately 85,000 signatures from persons residing in 14 congressional districts. Only about 35,000 signatures were necessary under the constitution, which requires that to refer an act of the Legislature there must be filed petitions signed by 5 per cent of the voters in each of 11 congressional districts, the vote for Supreme Judge in the preceding election being taken as the basis.

The petitions against workmen's compensation and for the liability law were circulated under the direction of former State Senator Maurice J. Cassidy, secretary of the Building Trades Council in St. Louis, and McNamara.

Bills Opposed by Democrats.

Petitions to refer seven bills, known as the Governor's departmental consolidation bills and including the Circuit Judges redistricting bill, were circulated under direction of the Democratic State Committee. The effect of the bills would have been to legislate out of office all Democrats who were holding over from the Gardner administration, and according to the Democratic Committee would have enormously increased the cost of conducting the State Government. Gov. Hyde has frequently denied this assertion and has contended they were economy measures that by centralizing authority would have reduced expenditures.

As a result of the filing of the petitions the only bills which Gov. Hyde made an important part of his legislative programs which will go into effect are the measures repealing the present State Prison Board law and creating a new board of five instead of four members; an act creating a State department of finance in which will be consolidated the State Banking Department and the department of Building and loan inspection, and the bill creating a State eleemosynary board.

The real purpose of the finance department measure has been said to be a desire to increase the salary of J. G. Hughes, who was Chairman of the Republican State Committee when Gov. Hyde in January appointed him State Banking Commissioner. Under the new law he will receive an increase in salary from $3500 to $5000 a year, it being understood he will be named Commissioner of Finance.

Governor Absents Self.

An interesting feature in connection with the filing of the petitions was that Gov. Hyde, notwithstanding a statutory requirement that the petitions be filed in his presence, purposely absented himself, going on a two days' fishing trip to Osage County about 30 miles from Jefferson City.

When the referendum petitions were submitted Friday afternoon, the Governor was asked to witness their presentation. He refused, and, speaking to a Post-Dispatch reporter said: "No of course, I will not be present. Why should I witness the complete wreckage of all that to which I had pinned my faith and hope."

To comply with the law all those who had petitions to file had formally notified the Governor of the exact hour they would present the petitions at the office of the Secretary of State, and requested him to be present at that time. Late Thursday afternoon he departed from Jefferson City in an automobile with Senator William G. Irwin and Dr. Cortez Enloe of Jefferson City for the fishing trip.

Governor's Secretary Present.

It was held by the Secretary of State that notification to the Governor was sufficient to comply with the law, and that the provisions of the Constitution for referendum of acts of the Legislature could not be defeated by the arbitrary action of the Governor in failing to be present to witness the filing of the petitions. The Governor's secretary, T. N. Ormiston, was present.

Joseph B. Shannon of Kansas City, former chairman of the Democratic State Committee, commenting on the Governor's action, said:

"The law very clearly makes this one of the duties of the Governor. Why, I don't know, but it does just as makes many other things his duties. His absence will not have any effect, but he should have swallowed his pride and forgotten his pique and have been there."

Democrats of prominent who had a part in circulating the petitions, said today that no petitions would have been circulated to refer the bills if the Republican majority in the Legislature had been content to provide that elective officers could hold their positions for the full term for which they were elected.

Comment of Democrat.

"The Republicans had not been in office for many years," one said, "and there was evidenced an almost insane desire to immediately grab all jobs in sight. It made no difference that men had been elected to office for definite terms, elected by vote of the people. The Republican Legislature sought to legislate them out of their jobs for the sole purpose of permitting Gov. Hyde to name Republicans of his personal machine in their places. We have been accused of playing politics for jobs. We acted to defeat the cheap politics played by the administration, and in our act we are protecting the public from a very dangerous kind of cheap politics."

The Democratic State Committee, at the time the petitions were filed, issued a long statement defending its action, and accusing Gov. Hyde and the Republican administration generally of "an inconceivable partisan assault upon the integrity of the State's judiciary," of extravagance, and of an attempt to create a political machine at the expense of the State.

In part the statement was:

"At the conclusion of the regular session of the Legislature, which was characterized by unprecedented extravagance, and the use of arbitrary and coercive methods in controlling the action of Senators and members of the majority party in the Legislature a committee of able and experienced legislators, selected at a general conference, carefully reviewed the work of the Legislature and specifically recommended that certain bills be taken into the referendum.

"We recognize the referendum as an institution designed by the people for their own protection against unwise legislation of far-reaching effect. Our action is inspired by the firm belief that the use of the referendum in this instance is entirely proper and we have not at any time encouraged abuses of the constitutional privilege thus provided, we repudiate the suggestion that our move in this behalf is actuated in any sense or in any degree by any other consideration save that of the highest and most vital public interest.

Party Caucuses Criticised.

"The Legislature which enacted the laws we propose to take before the people was dominated by a party caucus in which decisions were arbitrary and intolerant. In the enactment of the bills referred to, this Legislature pursuant to the preemptory demands of the executive for enlarged power and centralization of official functions, ignored the pledges made to the people in the platform of its own party convention in such flagrant measure as to arouse general indignation. For instance, the Republican State Platform of 1920 contained the solemn pledge to bring about "a fair redistricting of the State on a population and not a partisan basis."

"In open repudiation of this specific assurance, the Legislature proceeded to rearrange the judicial circuits of the State, so as to reduce the number of circuits in territory hitherto Democratic, although increasing the number of circuits in the Republican city of St. Louis, endeavoring to make the entire measure effective immediately.

"Heretofore, Missouri Legislatures, in making judicial reapportionments, provided in all cases that the new arrangements should not become effective until the expiration of the terms of the incumbents, but this body, influenced by the most extreme partisan demands, undertook to terminate the tenure of all the Circuit Judges of the State, vesting in the Governor the authority to name new Judges to take the place of Judges elected by the people, all with the manifest intent of committing an almost inconceivable partisan assault upon the integrity of the State's judiciary. We have asked that this bill be suspended until the people are permitted to pass upon it.

Another Platform Pledge Cited.

"The Republican party platform of 1920 contained a pledge to bring about the 'elimination of useless offices,' but the Legislature impelled by inordinate thirst for authority on the part of the Governor, proceeded instead, to create new departments with vastly increased powers, augmented appropriations and enlarging staffs without the slighest regard for the party's promises to reduce State expenditures by eliminating useless offices. We have asked that these bills be suspended until a general inquiry into their significance and intention be carried on in a public forum without the intervention of a czar-like master of a party legislative caucus.

"Our procedure in this movement does not relieve the Governor and his administration of responsibility in any degree. This legislation was conceived by him, planned by him, and agreed to by a Legislature dominated by his will. We charge that the present State administration has urged the passing of these measures for the unquestionable purpose of establishing a political machine of great proportion at the expense of the State. We invite the most careful scrutiny of the work of the administration, of the public utterances of its head and his careless and reckless disregard of consideration of economy or fairness. We ask public observation of his frequent oppressive abuses of executive power.

Criticism of the Governor.

"In submitting these measures, which go to make up an essential part of an extensive party program we propose to take into issue before the people of Missouri both the conduct and the policies of the executive and bring about a thorough examination before the voters of the State of his whole program which constitutes in our judgment, a menace to the public interest and an open affront to the order and dignity of the State.

"No executive since reconstruction days has ever manifested such amazing contempt for the principles and provisions of the law; no general assembly has ever appropriated such great sums for the conduct of the State Government, and no administration in the history of the State has ever sought to impose tremendous tax burdens upon the people."

Judiciary Petitions Sufficient.

The checking of the petition on the judicial districting bill were completed by clerks this evening, and the petitions were found to be more than sufficient. They were officially filed. Particular haste was necessary on the checking of these petitions because if they had not been officially filed today, the bill would have gone into effect Monday and there might have resulted serious legal complications in many courts which are in session. The petitions having been filed, the courts will not be changed.

Petitions for Referendum on Medical Bill Are Filed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18.—The Missouri Public Health League filed referendum petitions on the medical bill, described as lowering the standard of medical education in the State, with the Secretary of State shortly before midnight. It was said that more signatures than the required 5 per cent from 11 congressional districts had been obtained, but supplemental lists will be filed tomorrow, the Secretary of State having ruled that lists would be acceptable until midnight Monday. It had been announced that 110,000 names were signed to the petitions.

It was discovered today that 56 names were lacking on the petitions from the Fourteenth congressional district. Friends in Popular Bluff of the proposal to repeal the bill by referendum were informed by telephone of the situation. W. R. Robertson, an aviator in St. Louis, was employed to fly to Poplar Bluff where he found 200 additional signatures, awaiting him. He took these signatures and flew with them to Jefferson City, arriving at 8:30 p. m.

Senate bill No. 433 strikes from the old statute the word "reputable" as it relates to medical colleges, graduates from which apply for licenses to practice medicine. It also provides for an appeal by any aggrieved applicant from the examining board to the Circuit Court.

Thought Waves From the Stands May Depress Ball Players but They Never Seem to Bother Umpires

Braves Pummel 4 Twirlers and Spank Cardinals

Boston Collects 22 Swats, Battering Walker, Sherdel, Goodwin and Riviere.

SCOTT GIVES 14 HITS

But They Come With Two Down Usually and Rickeymen Drop Fifth in a Row.

The Cardinals could not hit John Scott yesterday when hits meant runs and the Boston Braves hit Walker and Sherdel and Goodwin and Riviere whenever they felt like it and the result was the fifth straight defeat for the Rickeymen, by the lop-sided and disgraceful score of 13 to 4. It was the fourth consecutive victory for the Braves, who will conclude the five-game affair this afternoon, when Joe Oeschger, who won the first game, will return to the hill, probably against Bill Doak.

To make the victory more one-sided the Knot Holers played poorly in the field on several occasions, but the pitchers who essayed to hurl for Branch Rickey were woefully impotent. The visitors clouted out 22 base hits, including two homers, two triples and two doubles.

They're Hitting Again.

The only bright spot in the whole affair was the hitting of the Cardinals. Of course they did most of their hitting with two out, or just before Scott mowed down three in a row, but they did hit. They collected 14 safeties. But the way they came really was exasperating.

It started in the first inning. After Jack Smith had grounded to Ford and Heathcote had filed to Powell, Stock singled over second base and Hornsby poked a one-bagger to right, sending Stock to third. The demon Ford, who has fielded here like the best second-sacker in the world, scooped up Fournier's grounder and threw to Barbare, forcing Hornsby.

In the second frame, after McHenry and Lavan had filed to Nicholson, Dillhoefer doubled to left. Sherdel, who had relieved Walker, fouled to Gibson.

The Cardinals reversed things in the third inning. Smith and Heathcote singled in order. Stock, who with two out and none on had singled in the first inning, now with two on and none out, fouled to Gibson. Hornsby was called out on strikes and Fournier lined to Powell.

Needed 2 Errors to Score.

In the fourth the Rickeymen were retired in order and in the fifth they scored two runs. Niebergall batted for Sherdel and was safe on Barbare's fumble. Smith lined to Powell and Heathcote walked. Stock forced Heathcote, Barbare to Ford and when Ford, trying for a double play, threw into the Boston dugout, Niebergall scored and Stock went to second. Hornsby walked and Fournier beat out a hot grounder to Holke, filling the bases. The scorer was lenient when he called McHenry's grounder to Barbare a hit. Barbare fumbled and Stock scored. Lavan ended the frame with a fly to Nicholson.

In the sixth, with two down, Jack Smith singled, only to be forced by Heathcote. In the seventh, with two down, Fournier singled to right, only to be forced by McHenry. In the eighth with two down, Clemons walked and Smith go his third hit, a single to center. Ford then threw out Heathcote.

If that isn't hitting when it means the least, then the Cardinals have a great pitching staff.

In the ninth the Rickeymen put on a storm, but Scott had a big lead and took it easy. Stock opened with a single to center, and Hornsby put one in left. Fournier doubled to right, scoring Stock, and Hornsby scored on McHenry's fly to Powell. Lavan singled to center, but Fournier feared the ball would be caught and stopped at third. Mann batted for Riviere, and popped to Ford. Clemons ended the tilt with a foul to Boeckel.

There were 14 wallops, and it took two errors in one inning to give the Rickeymen their first two runs, which is either excellent pitching in the pinches or miserable batting in the same.

Braves Start Early.

The Braves started early, and scored in seven of the nine frames. In the first they counted two on three singles, a sacrifice and Dillhoefer's error. Pickles dropped a low third strike, and then hit the runner going to first. Two were down at the time.

In the second Gibson's triple and Scott's single scored one. In the third, three singles and a triple counted two runs. The first hitter was nipped trying to advance on a passed ball. The triple was a single on which Smith missed an attempt at a shoestring catch.

In the fifth Nicholson hit into the left center field bleachers for a homer. In the sixth, three singles and a two-base passed ball by Niebergall gave the Braves three. In the eighth a single and Boeckel's homer to right accounted for two. Two singles, a double and Smith's fumble gave the visitors two in the ninth.

Glory be that they play only nine innings.

How to Cure Golf Ball Shyness

Vaile Advises Practice of Short Shots

Strive to Reduce Your Waggle

By P. A. Vaile,
Author of "Modern Golf," Etc.

Everybody has seen the solemn gent—I use the word advisedly—who performs weird incantations and makes cabalistic signs every time he settles himself opposite a golf ball, but very few people know why he is doing it. Even he himself is usually ignorant of the true reason.

It is in the vast majority of cases merely moral cowardice and a desire to put off the evil moment when he must put his fortune to the touch, and strike the ball, or muss the turf. The consequence is that he generally musses the turf.

These men are really suffering from that dread golf disease, ball shyness.

You know what a gun-shy man is. Well, even as the gun-shy man dreads the report and recoil of the gun, so does the ball-shy golfer fear the moment when he must "swat" the supine "pills."

Now, there are ball-shy men in many games. One can understand it in baseball, where such a thing as the beanball is known, but to many it would seem incredible that anyone could be ball-shy in golf, where the ball lies inert, awaiting the player's pleasure—or, as frequently happens, pain—chiefly mental, of course.

It is not, however, so unreasonable, when one gets down to the true psychology of the matter, to find the golfer, in thousands of cases, actually "shy" of the moment when he has "to connect" properly or fail.

The two outstanding causes of ball-shyness are the widely preached dictrine of concentrating on the ball and the almost as widely practiced habit of starting golf with the driver.

I have dealt fully areadv with overdoing the concentration stuff and I have also referred to the bad effect of starting golf with a driver. We may, however, profitably look into the matter further.

Very few people realize that the golf club has the smallest striking surface of any implement used in field sports. Indeed, in the whole realm of sport or games, I cannot on the moment think of any smaller area of contact, except the billiard cue.

Then, again, the ball is undoubtedly the smallest used in any field game, and there is a third point of great importance, namely, that the ball is farther from the line of sight than it is in any other field game that is played afoot.

When one remembers that in any aiming operation in billiards, archery, shooting, throwing or volleying at tennis, one always tries to get the ball as nearly as possible in a line with the eye, one will see how difficult, comparatively speaking, the golfer's task is in this respect.

If one really has a bad attack of ball shyness the best cure is to get near the hole and practice the short shots, to forget about the ball as much as possible and to endeavor to make a heroic resolve to cut one's waggle in half—at least.

MULLIGAN'S DOUBLE WINS FOR WHITE SOX, 4 TO 3

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Urban Faber continued his splendid pitching here this afternoon and won his fourteenth game of the season, Chicago defeating New York in a close game by 4 to 3. Chicago scored what proved to be its winning run in the sixth, when, with two out, Meusel lost Mulligan's easy fly in the sun and Johnson scored. Score:

Records of Star Pitchers Suffer Terrific Slump

Seventeen Leading Major League Hurlers in Twenty Show a Decline.

A comparison of the 1920 records of the 10 leading pitchers in each of the major leagues, with the marks they have established in games this season brings out some interesting facts. Chief among these, however, is that in all but three cases the runs per game average is larger than last season. In many cases the figures are not even close.

For instance, consider Walter Mails and Grover Alexander, the leaders in efficiency in their respective circuits in 1920. Mails last year pitched 63 innings and in that time the enemy made just 18 runs and 54 hits, an average of 2.52 tallies a tilt. But a look at Mails' record for 1921 brings to light the following figures: Innings 80, runs 45, hits 79, average runs a game 5.04. That means that Mails in each contest so far this year has allowed 2.52 runs more than he did in 1920.

While Alexander's mark has not fallen so badly, Grover Cleveland has nevertheless slumped. However, there may be some excuse for Alex in that he has been suffering from a lame salary whip the greater part of the season. In 1920, Alex hurled 363 innings, gave 335 hits and 96 runs, or 2.43 tallies a tilt. This year his figures are as follows: Innings 25, runs 16, hits 31, average runs a game 4.14, an increase of 1.71 runs per game.

Only Two Hurlers Improve.

Just two hurlers who have been used regularly this season have better averages than they recorded last season. They are Urban Faber, the White Sox spitballer, who has won 13 and lost three for the White Sox, and Carl Mays, the submarine right-hander of the Yankees. Ponder, in the National, is under his 1920 figure, but has pitched only 17 2-3 innings.

Faber's work, considering the team he has behind him this year, is truly remarkable. He has pitched 130 1-3 innings and in that time has permitted only 44 runs, an average of 3.06 a game. His 1920 figure was 3.87. Mays' mark is 3.42 against 3.69 last season.

Except for these three pitchers every one of the leaders of 1920 has yielded an average of almost a run more a game. In fact, some of the marks for this season, compared to 1920, look all out of proportion, but are nevertheless borne out by the figures.

Vaughn Slumped Badly.

Take, for instance, the case of Jim Vaughn, the big left-hander of the Cubs. In 1920 Vaughn ranked eighth among the National League moundmen, allowing an average of 3.33 runs a game, hurling 301 innings. This year, this same southpaw has pitched just 57 innings, and in that time has permitted 59 runs, an average of more than one an inning. For every nine-round battle his average runs figure up to 9.36.

Then there is Walter Johnson, fireball king, and for years regarded as the best right-hander in the American League. Johnson went to the bad after hurling a no-hit game against the Red Sox in June, 1920, and since then has had little success in turning a "comeback." Johnson has pitched only 88 1-3 innings this year and has allowed 61 runs, an average of 6.01 a game. His 1920 figure was 4.23.

While the figures for this pair have shown the greatest upward jump, they are not the only ones. Stanley Coveleskie, who won three games for the Indians in the world's series, finished with 3.15 last year, while this season his record is 3.51. The mark of Burleigh Grimes, Brooklyn's star, has jumped from 2.97 to 3.24. Jim Bagby, who won 31 games in 1920, and was generally regarded as the luckiest pitcher in the business, finished with 3.24 runs a game last year, while to date he has yielded 5.12.

St. Louis Pitchers Suffer.

Pitching aces for the St. Louis clubs have suffered the same as those of any other club in the big tent. This is evinced in the records of Urban Shocker, Dixie Davis and Bill Doak, who were in the first 10 last season. Shocker's runs-a-game average has jumped from 3.51 to 4.77, Davis' from 3.96 to 5.76 and Doak's from 3.15 to 4.41.

That hitting has increased is clearly shown by these figures. However, for further proof, take a slant at the following: Of the 20 pitchers, 10 of them in each league for last season, only two allowed at least one hit an inning. They were Faber and Vaughn. Bagby yielded 338 safeties in 340 frames and Mays 310 in 312 rounds. These were the only other ones close.

But look at the 1921 figures: Faber, Mays, Coveleskie, Shawkey and Mails in the American and Cooper, Adams, Doak and Alexander in the National are the only ones who have been able it.

Major League Mound Stars' Records Show Effect of Swat Spree

Following is a table showing the pitching records of the 10 leaders in each league for 1920 and the figures on the same flingers for the 1921 campaign. In 17 out of the 20 instances it is found that the runs per game have increased.

Dempsey Displays Fighting Prowess In Fast Workout

Champion Batters Battling Gahee and Two Other Heavyweight Sparring Partners.

JACK FINISHES STRONG

He Tires Out Three Big Men and Apparently Is Fresh at End of Boxing.

By Robert Edgren.
(Copyright, 1921.)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 18—This little old town by the sea is still buzzing with the story of Jack Dempsey's first real workout on Friday afternoon, when Jack cut loose and showed what he could do with a clever walloper, by name Battling Gahee.

It's a fair bet that Gahee never saw so many boxing gloves or so many stars in six minutes before in his battling life.

Gahee came up from Memphis, Tenn., with a ready made reputation. He is a squat, husky negro, built for fighting and skilled in the art. He has met many ring masters of his own color, among them Sam Langford and Kid Norfolk, and they never caused him any great annoyance.

Yesterday his long arms flailed out and his twelve ounce gloves grazed Dempsey's head many a time. They use twelve ounce gloves for the training, because they don't cut like a smaller glove and there's less danger of a knockout.

But Dempsey was in there to do some hitting himself. He seemed to have partly abandoned his usual fighting style, the curious weaving that makes him so hard to hit. He stood nearly straight up part of the time, varying that by ducking low under blows, crouching for a moment, and moving straight in or straight away to confuse the enemy's range. With this method he drew Gahee's fire and then countered sharply. Once, as they were sparring at long range, Jack shot over a right hand punch that dropped the black man flat on the floor.

Another knockdown followed a sharp right counter thrown across by Dempsey and Gahee reached for his chin and a hard right. Dempsey was showing judgment and hitting ability.

Injured Eye Protected.

Gahee landed several punches over the injured eye, but Dempsey had a plaster on it, and a leather head gear like a football helmet, that came down to the edge of the eyebrow and provided at least a partial protection.

During the last half of the second round Gahee was all in from the hard thumps he had taken. He bluffed and lunged at Dempsey's body and was so heavy on his feet that he couldn't get around the ring any faster than just enough to keep away. Last time Jack dropped him with a short inside right he caught Gahee as he toppled and held him up. When the bout was over the Memphis terror wabbled to his corner shaking his head and looking a lot shopworn.

I'm going over these small details just to emphasize a few remarks about Dempsey's changed condition.

During the six rounds he didn't draw a long breath.

He didn't pay any attention to blows that got through his guard, and seemed not to notice them.

He was in great spirits, full of pep and speed, liked the going, and as soon as the boxing was finished went into a lot of workout exercises without waiting to rest.

He tired out three big men, and they didn't tire him.

He battered three good men in a row, and they didn't put a mark on him.

They all tried. Dempsey won't have sparring partners who are afraid of him and who won't hit him hard.

Looking over Dempsey's work, he has improved in condition astonishingly in the past two weeks. He has taken off the few pounds of extra weight and has regained his old speed. Drying out will make him still faster. Carpentier will have to be a streak to keep out of his way.

The Referee Argument.

Like Manager Kearns, Dempsey is a lot annoyed over the referee mix up.

"We agreed on a list of referees to choose from, and made our choice at the time the contract was signed," said Jack, "and I'll string with Kearns in insisting on having that agreement honored. When Tex Rickard took the bout to New Jersey he was assured that the conditions of the contract were satisfactory and that he'd have no trouble in going ahead. Now they want to force us to accept a referee we know nothing about.

"It is absolutely unfair. I don't want the slightest advantage or anything but an even break but it's the most important thing in the match to make sure both Carpentier and I have that. Picking a list of referees we know could be relied on was the most important thing we did in making the match. In championship battles the boxers and their managers always have had a word in selecting the referee.

"If Kearns is not satisfied that we are getting fair treatment I'll back any decision he makes."

The referee question comes up before the Boxing Commission in Jersey City Monday afternoon.

Carpentier Steps At High Speed in Boxing Workout

By Georges Carpentier.
(Copyright, 1921.)

MANHASSET, N. Y., June 18.—With no spectators or newspaper men present this afternoon I enjoyed the first real boxing I have done for 10 days. Knowing there was no one about to criticise or carry tales, I showed some of the fast footwork of which I am really capable.

Also I changed my style of boxing to that which I shall employ against Dempsey—a little more of the crouch with my jaw well protected behind my left shoulder.

Against Marcel Denys who faced me first I employed purely defensive tactics with fast footwork slipping away from the right as he tried to bring his right across. We went two rounds without my trying to hit him save twice in the second round when he left too nice an opening for my favorite "flying left."

Joey Gans then boxed a round with me and against him I used my best footwork to keep away from his left. In this way I got practice against both left and right hand hitters. Then Journes and I roughed it up a bit with Paul doing all the tactics. I made no effort to hit him, but slipped all his blows off my shoulder and let him pound me at close quarters. Descamps called a halt, but felt so good that I demanded another round.

I believe I was 100 per cent faster than on Thursday, the day of the public session and I can go still faster. I tried on a head guard this afternoon. We may box a little harder next week, although I do not believe in hitting my sparring partners hard.

Descamps and Capt. Mallot go over to Jersey City next Tuesday to inspect the ring and surroundings and make plans for my trip there before the fight. I would prefer that these would not be made public as I would like to avoid the crowd immediately before the fight. Tomorrow afternoon I am going for a trip on a 90-foot yacht on the Sound I am looking forward to this as a change from the monotony of the farm.

Is Dempsey a False Favorite? Betting Choices in Past Title Bouts Nearly All Overthrown

Analysis of Previous World's Championships Shows Public Choices Were Not Made on Form, but on Prejudice—Present Champion Is Logical C hoice Over Carpentier.

By John E. Wray.

IS pugilistic "dope" a delusion? Are past performances in the world of boxing worthless as an indication of future achievement?

In all other lines of sport Old Man Dope is king of the realm; but in pugilism—Ah, "eet is deefairant," as Monsieur Descamps might say. At least a superficial view of previous world's championships might justify him in such an exclamation.

For, in the history of heavyweight ring championships, beginning with James J. Corbett's victory in the first padded glove championship in history, we note with pained surprise that Dope appears to have been run down and backed over on a majority of notable occasions.

Of course every champion has defended his title in unimportant bouts where the result was a foregone conclusion; but taking the beacon fights of ring history since 1892, we find that Jinx has been on the trail of popular favoritism, which is generally considered synonymous with the "form."

Taking a Fall Out of "Dope."

Following is a list of the big fights in which titles were at stake, showing how favorites fell by the wayside:

John L. Sullivan, top-heavy favorite, was beaten by James J. Corbett.

James J. Corbett, favored, was knocked out by Bob Fitzsimmons.

Bob Fitzsimmons was favorite over Jeffries, but was knocked out.

Tommy Burns was given about an even chance, but was stopped by Jack Johnson.

Jim Jeffries, hot favorite, lost to Jack Johnson.

Jack Johnson, another popular choice, fell before gigantic Jess Willard.

Jess Willard was an 8 to 5 or 2 to 1 chance to stop Dempsey, but lasted only three rounds himself.

Of these fights, which were practically the only really notable title struggles in the period involved, Jack Johnson and Tommy Burns fought the only bout that resulted as the advance betting indicated it might.

Is the conclusion therefore logical that form in boxing means nothing? And may it be judged safely that the 3 to 1 being offered on Dempsey today is entirely out of line because previous form has been so?

Favorites Named by Prejudice.

Analysis of past events shows that the favorites were selected in spite of the facts in the case, not because of them; where as Dempsey is named favorite over Carpentier because every known method of judging men in advance of a test has favored him.

In past fights, according to true, available dope, Sullivan, old, worn out, dissipated, 25 pounds over his fighting weight, should have been second choice; but the title glamor that still lingered about his mighty wallop confused his admirers, and sent him to the post a public hope.

Jim Corbett faced Fitzsimmons a favorite, although he never had owned a punch and this was to be a finish fight. Corbett had not stopped Sullivan—the referee did that. Fitz, crafty and with the "bon soir" wallop, should therefore have figured even or better. Again, the glamor of having stopped the great "John L." blinded Corbett's admirers.

When Fitz fought Jeffries he was 37 years old, his hands were chalk and he was conceding 60 pounds weight to the youthful Big Bear of the Cordilleras. He was an unjustified popular choice.

Jeffries himself, after six years' absence from the ring, trained from gross obesity into the semblance of fighting appearance for Jack Johnson, and was made favorite, without any warrant at all, as he was just a shell. The memory of his previous retirement unbeaten made him public choice.

Jack Johnson was a favorite over Willard because he was champion. There was no other reason, because Johnson was 37 years old and weighed 228 pounds when he fought, although his normal fighting weight was only 196!

Willard a Giant "Ham."

Willard also was made favorite over Dempsey, despite the fact that Dempsey had been bowling over everybody in a punch or two, men of all weights and sizes, whereas Willard had never knocked unconscious a foe of even second rate merit.

Johnson was exhausted, not knocked out, at Havana. Dempsey was young, fast and a natural fighter who had been at it regularly; Willard detested fighting, and had fought but once in four years. There was no sound reason to make him favorite, except the fact that he held the title.

Thus, in almost every instance mentioned the popular choice was not the form choice, and Old Man Dope therefore really was not so badly fractured as first appears. In fact, the true dope came through without exception.

Coming down to Dempsey today there is every reason in the world why he should be made favorite over Carpentier.

Here are a few of the undisputed advantages he enjoys:

Weight, height, reach.

He is one and one-half years younger, hits harder and seems just as fast of hand, if not of foot, as Carpentier.

He has fought all his fights from mediocrity to the top since 1915, whereas Carpentier's important fights were all before 1915; 86 per cent of his battles (48 K Os in all) ended in knockouts, against the best men in America.

He has met one defeat—an accidental knockout by a man whom he whipped in a few seconds, a few months later (Carpentier has been stopped four times, and beaten on two or three other occasions).

He is supreme in American heavyweight class which has completely dominated the Carpentier boxing for nearly 30 years.

In addition it may be mentioned that he is in great physical shape, and will undoubtedly enter the ring without blemish or blame, barring accidents.

In short, this time the public and the form are in absolute agreement as to the ultimate victor.

Dempsey is no false favorite.

Paddock Beats 5 World's Records In Tryout Meet

Sprint Champion Negotiates 200 Yards in 19 Seconds, According to Timers.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., June 18.—Charles W. Paddock broke the world's records for the 90 and 110 yard runs and tied the record for 100 yards at tryouts held here today for the National A. A. U. championship meet, according to the official timing. He made 90 yards 8 4-5 seconds, 100 yards in 9 3-5 and 110 yards in 10 1-5.

The accepted records for the distance are 9 1-5, 9 3-5 and 10 4-5 seconds, respectively. The tryouts were held for Southern California athletes under the personal supervision of Robert S. Weaver, A. A. U. president.

Paddock's time for the three distances was caught in the 110-yard dash, tapes being stretched at 90 and 100 yards, as well as at the finish.

Paddock also broke records for 130, 150 and 200 yards distances, according to the timers, his times being 12 2-5, 14 1-5, 19 seconds, respectively. The official records for these are 12 4-5, 14 4-5 and 20 seconds. Paddock's time for these distances was made in the 200-yard dash.

Paddock strained a tendon during the last 50 yards of this race and came in limping. He said he did not think the injury was serious.

Cuban Polo Team Beats Americans

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The Cuban army polo team defeated the American team from Camp Humphries today, 6 to 3, in the first of a series of matches in the international military polo tournament arranged between the two countries. It is hoped to make the contest an annual event.

The next game will be played Monday.

Kearns Insists on Having Voice in Naming of Referee

Dempsey's Manager Threatens to Call Off Carpentier Fight if Commission Stands Pat.

REFERS TO TOLEDO BOUT

Asserts He Will Not Risk His "Million-Dollar" Asset Unless Official Is Competent.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 18.—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, tonight threatened to call off the championship match with George Carpentier at Jersey City July 2, rather than submit to the direction of the New Jersey Boxing Commission over the referee situation.

Kearns declared that he had no objection to the selection of a referee holding a New Jersey license, but that he would insist on having a voice in the selection.

"I will absolutely refuse to let Dempsey box if they insist on naming the referee," Kearns declared.

Members of the New Jersey Boxing Commission arrived here tonight ostensively to witness some boxing bouts, but it is probable they will have a conference with Kearns, Robert Edgren, arbiter of all disputes involving the two boxers, and Tex Rickard, the promoter. Commissioner Lyons said that a Jersey man would referee or there would be no fight."

"Million-Dollar Asset."

"If the Jersey people insist on a Jersey referee it's all right with me," Kearns said. "I am willing to take any Jersey referee, but I am not going to be dictated to as to which one it will be.

"I have a million-dollar asset in Dempsey. I am not going to stick him into the ring on July 2 with Carpentier unless assured the referee is unprejudiced, will let the men fight it out fairly and will be capable. Dempsey can take care of himself, but when I turn him loose I want him to fight one man, not two.

"I am willing to have the New Jersey commission put the names of all licensed Jersey referees in a hat and let Descamps, manager of Carpentier, and I draw for the referee. The fighters ought to have something to say, particularly the champion, who has much at stake.

"If necessary I will say 'no fight,' no matter what it costs Dempsey and me. If we don't box we still will have the title, and that is worth a whole lot in the hands of a great fighter like Dempsey.

"I am not insisting on Jim Dougherty of Philadelphia. Dougherty is all right and a good referee, and I would be glad to have him, but I am not demanding any one referee.

Recalls Toledo Affair.

"Look at the mess we got into at Toledo. When Dempsey is taking a chance like this he is going to be prepared to the extent of getting an even break."

Dempsey switched over to light sparring partners today after his strenuous workout with heavyweights yesterday. He boxed six rounds, two each with Irish Patsy Cline, Joe Benjamin and Eddie O'Hare, 165-pounders. The champion went on the road as usual and also went through the routine shadow boxing and other exercises.

Eddie Held Leads Field of 74 in City Golf Event

Forest Park Golf Club Star Strokes Sun-Baked Municipal Course in 77.

HIGH SCORES PREVAIL

Only Six Members of District Association Organizations Compete in Tourney.

Edward Held, the 18-year-old Forest Park Golf Club player, took first honors in the qualifying round of the fifth annual city championship tournament over the public links in Forest Park yesterday. Although the youthful caddy graduate has been playing with the "talent" for the past two years, his medalist honor comes as his first signal victory.

Held's score for the round was 77, six strokes over par; but an unusual mark considering that the fairways and greens like all other courses in the city are so baked that nobody but a magician can hold an approach or long putt. His card follows:

In ...—3 5 3 5 5 3 4 4 5—37—77.
Out ...4 5 3 6 4 4 5 4 5—40

This was the only card which broke the eighties, only six others coming under the 85 mark. As a matter of fact the ability of a 93 medal effort to get in the titular flight is something unusual for a city championship event; but this must be considered in the light of course conditions and the fact that the entry was almost limited to municipal course players.

Only 74 Entrants.

The tournament drew only 74 entrants, and only six of these were members of clubs which hold membership in the St. Louis District Golf Association. The failure of such stars as Manion, Bockenkamp, Kenney, Kossman and other notables to compete is due to a conflict with the State championship event which will be contested in Kansas City this week.

As has been stated the course was well baked due to the intense rays of the past few days; but every greenskeeper in the city is worrying over the same condition. The municipal course has been well cared for the past few weeks and with a little rain before match play will be in good shape. However, as it is now, every approach has to be run up to the green with the greatest of care.

Of the six district golfers who contested in yesterday's medal round, only three turned in their cards. These are Dr. Otto Wilhelmi and Dr. L. K. Canouse of Triple A and S. C. Wagoner of the Kirkwood Country Club. Percy Orthwein and A. Lee of Algonquin and George Rodway of Sunset tossed away their cards before reaching the eighteenth hole.

82 Is Second Best Score.

Runner-up honors to the medalist were tied between Eddie Kane, W. E. Schirmer and Frank Pep, municipal titleholder, each taking 82 strokes. All of the recognized public course players got into the championship flight; but a few did so by the hackneyed hair. H. C. Wilson, who was runner-up in the recent municipal championship, could do nothing better than a mediocre 93. Togo Hammamato, the Japanese regular, who usually shoots in the low eighties, took a 90.

First round match play is scheduled to start tomorrow. One match will be played each day except Friday, the final being set for Saturday. The first three rounds will be 18 holes; while the semifinals and finals will be 36 holes.

School Champions To Be Entertained

Benton Nine to Get Post-Dispatch Trophies at Fathers' Club Luncheon.

Benton School's baseball nine, winner for the second time of the Post-Dispatch team trophy and individual medals emblematic of the Board of Education Baseball League Championship, will be entertained at a luncheon next Thursday at the City Club, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. S. E. Dillon, principal of the Benton School.

The boys will be entertained by the Benton School Fathers' Club and besides the team members other guests have been invited. At this occasion the Post-Dispatch trophy, held by the Shaw School for the past three seasons—no title was decided in 1919 and 1920—will be turned over to Benton's management.

This is the second time Benton has won the trophy.

Benton is the only school thus far that has had its name engraved twice on the shield. Another victory for Benton and the trophy will become the permanent property of the school.

Individual medals will be presented to the 12 regular and substitute members of the team. In addition Prof. A. E. Kindervater, head of the Public School Physical Culture Department, will present the championship banner to the winning team.

The victory this year was harder than ever to win, 64 teams having entered the two series for white and negro schools. Fifty-four teams competed in the series won by the Benton team. Benton defeated Shaw School, 1—0, Thursday, in the title final. To win Pitcher Stanley Gerding had to let the Shaw batters down with a no-hit no-run game.

GIESSOW TROPHY RACE WILL BE HELD TODAY

A two-mile junior barge race for the Giessow trophy will be held under the auspices of the Western Rowing Club this afternoon. The trophy which has been in competition since 1914 must be won three times before it becomes the permanent property of any club. The Century Boat Club, which is the only club holding two legs, is making a supreme effort to win the third.

The Western No. 1 junior crew, which finished a close second to Baden's champion junior crew last Sunday, has improved wonderfully this past week and promises to shatter Century's hopes completely.

The race will start promptly at 4 o'clock at the foot of Cherokee street and will finish directly opposite the Western boathouse.

The Western entries are as follows; Crew No. 1—Wingenbach, bow; E. Brauch 2, Weilbacher 3, E. Reikenberg 4, Martin 5, Mandeville stroke, Mueller coxswain. Crew No. 2—Mummert bow, Holman 2, Weber 3, Dehmer 4, Mesch 5, Schenk stroke, Heublein coxswain.

WOMEN'S NET TOURNEY ENTRIES CLOSE TODAY

Entries for the Missouri Valley Tennis tournament for women to be played at the Triple A Club this week will close at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Any woman or girl tennis player wishing to enter may do so by telephoning Robert Ross, Triple A Club, Grand 154 or Grand 3662.

The names of five additional women players were received yesterday afternoon. They are as follows: Anita Wecker, Carol Jarvis, Eleanor Kroeger, Irma Mann, Glorinda Lucchesi.

Illinois Wins National Meet Without Gaining a First Place

Illini Score 20¾ Points, While Notre Dame Athletes Count 16¾—Earl Thomson Equals Own World's Record in the 120-Yard High Hurdles.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—An evenly balanced team which scored points in ten of fifteen events without capturing a single first place today brought national honors to the University of Illinois by carrying off first place in the National Collegiate Athletic Association meet at Stagg Field, a contest open only to champion athletes and entered by more than three score of the country's colleges and universities.

The Illini, through second, third, fourth and fifth place points, gathered a total of 20¾, Notre Dame was close behind with 16¾, and Iowa took third place, while fourth went to the five-man team of the University of Washington, which had been looked on as almost a sure first-place finisher.

While Central Western schools, with a preponderance of entries, outranked the East, Far West and South in point totals, the East and West furnished the individual stars of the meet, and it was their work which brought the greatest cheers from the 15,000 spectators, the largest audience that ever witnessed a track and field meet in Chicago.

One world's record was tied, another approached, and every event brought forth thrilling competition which many times left the spectators in doubt as to the winner, even after the event had been finished.

Thomson Ties World Record.

Earl Thomson of Dartmouth equaled his own world's record of 0:14 2-5 in the 120-yard high hurdles. The Eastern star might have beaten his record but for a poor start which left him slightly off stride at the first barrier and a slip which caused him to top over the fourth. Romig of Penn State, first in the two-mile, Earl Eby, of Pennsylvania U., half-mile winner, Shea of Pittsburg, first in the 440-yard dash, and Gardner of Yale, who tied for first place in the pole vault, were other Eastern track celebrities who more than lived up to their reputations.

The Pacific Coast, however, furnished the individual point winner in Pope of Washington, a weight man whose stature made Central Western and Eastern huskies like pygmies. Pope took first in the shot put and in the discus throw for 10 points. Hannah of Stanford took first in the javelin throw, with a mark of 191 feet 2¾ inches, 2 feet under the world's college record.

Welch of Georgia Tech, with a tie for first in the pole vault, and Skidmore of the University of the South, with fourth in the shot put, did the best work of the fourthern entries while Paulu of Grinnell and Wilson of Iowa were among the Central West's leaders.

Two-Mile Run Features.

Probably the greatest event of the day was the two-mile run which proved to be an East-West clash, with the East victorious. Romig of Penn State stepped into the lead from the start and held it all the way, with Wharton of Illinois 16 yards behind most of the distance. With 200 yards to go, Wharton started a dash that finally overtook the Easterner, but Romig, in a beautiful sprint, swept to the front again. Wharton staggered and fell across the line. He could not be revived for several minutes.

Aside from the javelin throw and the high hurdles most of the marks made were not particularly fast. A slight rain before the meet was declared by the runners at first to have left the track in good condition, but the water was found to have seeped through deeper than was thought and the track proved sticky. In the field events the men had difficulty in keeping their feet.

The elimination tryouts brought better time in several events than the finals and many stars were eliminated in them through being bunched in the same haet.

The Texas A. and M. team proved somewhat of a disappointment, obtaining only one point, whereas it had been considered virtually sure of eight to 10.

Following are the official point totals in the national collegiate track meet: Illinois 20¾, Notre Dame 16¾, Iowa 14, University of Washington 12¼, Wisconsin 10, Nebraska 8, Grinnell 7, Northwestern 6, Ohio State 6, Ames 5½, Dartmouth 5, Chicago 5, Kansas Aggies 5, Michigan 5, Pennsylvania University 5, Penn State 5, Pittsburg 5, Stanford 5, Minnesota 4, Oregon 3, Washington State 2¾, Yale 2¾, Georgia Tech 2¾, Knox 2½, Baylor 2, Sewanee 1½, Texas A. and M. 1, St. Olafs 1, Rice Institute 1, Ohio Wesleyan ½.

St. Louis Golfers Seek State Title

Big Field From This City Will Compete at Hillcrest, Kansas City, June 22.

More than 200 entries have been received for the Missouri Golf Association championship tournament which will be held at the Hillcrest Country Club, Kansas City, Wednesday to Saturday. It is believed that the event will draw a larger number of players than any of its predecessors except the 1918 tournament, when many of the entrants were attracted by the Red Cross appeal.

St. Louis will be well represented at the play, a number of the city's most prominent players having signified their intentions of competing. Among these are Richard Bockenkamp, District champion; Christian Kenney, State title holder; James Manion, a former M. G. A. winner; Walter Kossman, Clarence Wolff, Karl Bock and perhaps Edward Limberg. About a dozen less reputed golfers will also attend.

Jesse Carleton, W. F. Fahey, Karl Bock and Louis Josten, all members of the Sunset Hill Country Club, will depart tomorrow morning for the Jaskson County metropolis, making the trip by automobile.

Only One St. Louis Woman Going.

The women's State championship tournament, also sponsored by the M. G. A., will be started tomorrow morning over the Blue Hills Country Club course and will continue until Saturday. This event will not attract as many local players as the Hillcrest play. Mrs. L. M. Kohn of Triple A being the only St. Louis woman to send in her entry.

The failure of the District Association's feminine devotees has been a disappointment as Kansas City sent a large delegation to this tournament last year, when it was held at Bellerive.

Christian Kenney of Sunset Hill was the 1920 champion and will defend his title this week. The women's championship has been won for the past three years by Miss Carolyn Lee of Kansas City.

Legion Tennis Tourney.

Entries in the singles event of the American Legion tennis tournament will close at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Robert Ross, at Triple A Club, Grand 156, will receive entries for the singles or doubles today. Members of legion posts in city and county are eligible to compete. The doubles entry will be held open until 5 p. m. Monday. Players may send their names to Charles C. Reber, 921 Locust street, or Davison Obear, 390 Arcade Building, any time Monday. Pairings in the singles will be announced in all papers Monday.

13 Local Players Are Batting .300 At Present Time

Hornsby, Who Tops N. L. With .412, and Sisler, .392, Are St. Louis Leaders.

Latest unofficial batting averages of the two major leagues show that 13 St. Louis players, six of them members of the Cardinals and seven of the Browns, are clubbing over the .300 averages. What's more, all but one of the athletes can be considered as a regular. The lone exception is Pat Collins, the Browns' catcher.

The select-circle hitters for the Cardinals are Rogers Hornsby, who is still the leading regular in the National, with an average of .412; McHenry, .399; Mann, .388; Fournier, .359; Stock, .322, and Schultz, .315.

For the Browns, George Sisler, who is now in fifth place, with an average of .392; Severeid, .380; Williams, .371; Collins, .357; Ellerbe, .328; Tobin, .323, and Jacobson, .305, are clubbing better than .300.

The last set of figures shows 97 hitters over the .300 figure. This is a decrease of nine over last week. There are 56 A. L. men at this mark or over and 41 in the National.

Four clubs continue to hit over .300. They are Detroit, .332; Cleveland, .323, and the Browns, .302, in the American, and the Cardinals, .318, pacing the National. A .260 figure for Brooklyn is the lowest in the major league.

Grand Stand Thought Waves Cause Downfall of Philadelphia Teams

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 18.

As a baseball follower, Dr. James H. Penniman, brother of Dr. Josiah H. Penniman, acting provost of the University of Pennsylvania, is something of a psychologist; as a psychologist, he is a good deal of a baseball enthusiast.

Hence he has psycho-analyzed the Philadelphia baseball teams and the Philadelphia baseball crowds, and he declared yesterday that the crowds were as much to blame, if not more, for the continued defeats than the teams themselves. The truth, as he sees it, is essentially this: The Philadelphia baseball crowd is not a sport. It backs its teams only when they don't need backing; that is, when they are winning.

The other clubs in both leagues have only their opponents to beat. The Philadelphia clubs have to beat their opponents and the fans.

Therefore, a Philadelphia team has to be a lot better than another club before it can make a showing in the percentage column to equal that of others. It seems that the thought waves emanating from the stands have an unfavorable effect on the local players.

The Triple A courts were kept busy most of the afternoon with club tournament matches. According to several of the leading players the weather was a little warm, but the courts were fast.

Hess, while Ray Epstein will oppose Hal Cushman in another. Walter Finger and Ted Heuerman will meet in a third-round match which should be closely contested.

Fred Josties, present Triple A champion, will oppose Dale Morton, and Ted Drewes will play W. R. Schneider in third-round matches. The matches between Karl Wamsganss and Dr. C. Hixon should prove interesting.

MISS MILDRED FISCHER

SHAW'S TRICKS SO OLD THEY SEEMED DARING

Playwright Says He Used Moliere's Technique and Characters From Dickens.

NEW YORK, June 18.—George Bernard Shaw is up to his old trick of protruding his tongue at the pub- lic. His latest play, "Back to Methu- selah," which has just been pub- lished (Brentano's), has the usual lengthy preface, and in it he con- fesses the devices to which he owed success as a dramatist.

At an early period, he says, he made the discovery that as a play- wright "the surest way to produce an effect of daring innovation and originality was to revive the ancient attraction of long rhetorical speeches; to stick closely to the methods of Moliere; and to lift char- acters bodily out of the pages of Charles Dickens."

By reverting to the comedy of manners in the classic manner, in- stead of the Parisian tricks of "con- struction" then in vogue in the thea- ter, he achieved what the public re- garded as extreme audacity. For instance, in "Man and Superman," he took the legend of Don Juan in its Mozartian form, and made it into a dramatic parable of creative evolution.

In this play, he admits, he made a serious error. "Being at the height of my invention and comedic talent, I decorated it too brilliantly and lav- ishly." This, says he, was because "the worst convention of the criti- cism of the theater at that time was that intellectual seriousness was out of place on the stage; that the thea- ter is a place of shallow amusement; that people go there to be soothed after the enormous intellectual strain of a day in the city; in short, that a playwright is a person whose business it is to make unwholesome confectionery out of cheap emo- tions."

"The Dullest of Subjects."

At the outset of his career, he continues, "the fashionable theater presented one serious subject—clan- destine adultery; the dullest of all subjects for the serious author, what- ever it may be for audiences who read the police intelligence and skip the reviews and leading articles."

Shaw's new play ranges from the Garden of Eden to the year 31,920 A. D. It is in five parts, each con- taining one or more acts. The first part, entitled "In the Beginning," is set in the scriptural paradise of 4000 B. C. The second part tells the story of "The Gospel of the Brothers Barnabas," and its action takes place today in a house overlooking Hamp- stead Heath. The third part is called "The Thing Happens," and has for its scene the "official parlor of the President of the British Islands," in the year 2170. No less a personage than Confucius, delicately referred to as "the Chink," calls to pay his re- spects to the President.

"Bible of Evolution."

The fourth part has three acts, and is entitled "A Tragedy of an El- derly Gentleman." The year is 3000, and the locale of the first act is the south shore of Galway Bay, in Ire- land. The second act shows a court- yard before the columned portico of a temple, with Napoleon on the stage. The third act is in the inte- rior of the temple. The fifth and concluding part is called "As Far as Thought Can Reach." It is a summer afternoon in the year 31,920, and Adam, Eve, Lilith, Cain and the Ser- pent come to life again. The ending is a long speech by Lilith, at the close of which she vanishes with the words: "It is enough that there is a beyond."

The author describes this play as his contribution to a "Bible of Crea- tive Evolution," and in the conclud- ing words of the preface, "I with- draw and ring up the curtain," inti- mates that he now concludes his career as a dramatist. He is 64 years old.

"My sands are running out," he laments. "The exuberance of 1901 has aged into the garrulity of 1920. My powers are waning; but so much the better for those who found me unbearably brilliant when I was in my prime. It is my hope that a hundred apter and more elegant parables by younger hands will soon leave mine as far behind as the re- ligious pictures of the fifteenth cen- tury left behind the first attempts of the early Christians at iconog- raphy."

ST. LOUIS GIRL MISS ANGLIN'S UNDERSTUDY

Mildred Fischer, Daughter of Frederick Fischer, Made Debut in October.

When those addicted to reminis- cence foregather between acts at the Municipal Opera, there is often talk of Miss Margaret Anglin, who chris- tened the open-air theater in Forest Park with an unforgettably lovely performance of "As You Like It," and who holds indisputable rank as America's foremost heroic actress.

From such talks emerged the story of a St. Louis girl who played her first part on the stage last Oc- tober, and who achieved the re- markable advancement of becoming Miss Anglin's understudy in her latest triumph, "The Trial of Joan of Arc," which was presented at the Shubert Forty-fourth Street Theat- er in New York, beginning April 12.

The young woman is Miss Mildred Fischer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Fischer of 3664 Wash- ington boulevard. Fischer is assist- ant director of the St. Louis Sym- phony Orchestra; and orchestra manager of the municipal opera or- chestra.

Volunteered to Carry Spear.

Miss Fischer was educated at the public schools, Soldan High School and Lenox Hall, after which she studied elocution and dramatic art for eight months under Joseph Sol- ari. In January of last year, Miss Anglin appeared at the American Theater in "The Woman of Bronze." Miss Fischer attended a perform- ance, after which her father intro- duced her to the actress.

"If you ever need anyone to carry a spear," asked Miss Fischer, "will you think of me?"

In September Miss Fischer was surprised to receive a telegram from Miss Anglin, asking her to come to to New York to try a part in "The Woman of Bronze." She went East, arriving on a Saturday. She had two rehearsals, and made her debut at the following Wednesday matinee, in the role of Maud Randell. She had never before appeared on the stage, even in amateur theatricals. This character is required to sing a song during the play. Miss Fischer, though a member of a musical fam- ily, had never studied singing; so she began taking vocal lessons under a New York teacher. She played in "The Woman of Bronze" until it closed.

Replaced Star at Rehearsal.

When Miss Anglin produced "The Trial of Joan of Arc"—a tragedy in four acts by Emile Moreau, translated by Astrid Argyll—it was found to have only two principal feminine characters, those of Joan, taken by Miss Anglin, and Queen Catherine. Miss Fischer became a lady-in-wait- ing to the Queen, but was also cho- sen by Miss Anglin as her under- study.

Miss Fischer is expected to accom- pany Miss Anglin on a road tour with "The Woman of Bronze" next season, playing in Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Washington, and then an indefinite run in Chicago. On March 8 Miss Fischer was married to Ralph G. Kemmet, for many years Miss Anglin's stage director.

Of present interest also is the fact that William A. Parson, chorus mas- ter of the municipal opera company, was Miss Anglin's musical director during the presentation of "Joan of Arc." It was Parson who exhumed, in a San Francisco library, a forgot- ten score of Tschaikowsky's opera, "Jeanne d'Arc," and arranged and orchestrated excerpts from the par- titure to serve as incidental music for the play.

MOVIES AT STRATFORD IRRITATE JOHN BULL

Public Outcry Over "Desecration" of Shakspeare Memorial, Which Is "Broke."

(Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, June 1.—John Bull is emitting a roar just now over the decision to show motion pictures in the theater of the Shakspeare Me- morial at Stratford-upon-Avon. This is called a "desecration" of the bard's memory.

One of the governors of the Memo- rial has exercised an Englishman's privilege of writing to the Times about it. He is much in favor of the innovation.

"I cannot see," he argues, "any- thing vulgar in a photograph, even when it moves. There are dozens of photographs in the Memorial Theat- er already.

"Having been a patron of the Shakspeare Festivals for 24 years, I have seen performances of 'The Taming of the Shrew,' 'The Merry Wives of Windsor' and others of Shakspeare's plays which would make a Charlie Chaplin film seem in- nocent and beautiful."

The fact is that the governors de- termined to resort to moving pic- tures at the home of the poet, simply because the Memorial needs money. It is declared that unless the Gov- ernment or the public cares to en- dow the enterprise, the governors will be put to it to find means of keeping the big building scrubbed and dusted.

Not in 40 years, says an old-time manager, have the West End thea- ters shown such a beggarly array of empty benches. The present ter- rific slump in the London play- houses began with the threatened labor strike, and there was little re- covery when it broke down.

A few successful plays continue to attract large audiences; most of the rest are just struggling along, and not a few are at the point of death.

A Blushless Boudoir.

A bedroom play without a blush is one description of Keble How- ard's "Sweet William," which is playing at the Shaftesbury Theater. There is a boudoir, but its walls are decorated with scriptural texts and pictures. The lovers meet here at dead of night—to plight their troths solemnly over a Bible held in their hands.

William Crisp, the hero, has lost an arm in the war, and climbs into Audrey's window to tell her about it. She assures him that his artifi- cial arm will make no difference, and that what he needs is to be mothered.

"I'd like you to start that right away," slyly insinuates William, whereupon Audrey produces the Bible. The play is full of fun, and on the opening night laughter rang loud and long.

A court scene in the third act is the most delightful part of a com- edy, "Emma," by Herbert Thomas, which was recently put on at St. James' Theater. The plot concerns the adventures of a wealthy young widow, Lady Emma, who falls in love with a penniless but ambitious actor, and, without even the formal- ity of an introduction, promptly pro- poses to him in a balcony scene sim- ilar to that in "Romeo and Juliet," save that it is the lady who does all of the wooing.

The two presently are engaged, and then, suspecting the loyalty of her fiance, Lady Emma resolves to put him to the test by demanding that he abandon his career, and con- tent himself with the modest role of her husband. This Montague Leroy indignantly declines to do.

Thereupon Lady Emma breaks off the engagement. Montague, believ- ing that there is some "catch" in her announced decision, declares he will bring an action for breach of prom- ise, and so we arrive at the joyous incident of "Leroy vs. Jones," con- ducted on the humorous lines of up- roarious farce, and ending with the requisite explanations and reconcili- ation of the contending parties.

DEFENDANT IN GRENNER SUIT DENIES CHARGES AGAINST HIM

John L. Nelson Shows Letter From Petitioner's Lawyer Agreeing to Dismiss Action as to Him.

John L. Nelson of Wichita Falls, Tex., one of the defendants in the suit of Henry C. Grenner, former Collector of Internal Revenue in St. Louis, to recover $6322 invested by Grenner in stock of the United Drilling & Development Co. of Wichita Falls, called at the Post-Dispatch office yesterday and denied the charge made in the petition, that he was a party to a conspiracy to in- flate the value of the stock. He ex- hibited a letter signed by Randolph Laughlin, attorney for Grenner, agreeing to dismiss the case as to him (Nelson), the letter reciting "that an investigation of the facts satisfies me that you are not and were not a party to the conspiracy charged against the defendants and that you are not liable for the acts alleged against them in the case." Nelson was formerly general super- intendent and foreman of the com- pany and was also a trustee. He said he disposed of his holdings last February.

A statement from Devereux Hen- derson, attorney for George Georges, proprietor of the Standard Catering Co., another defendant in the Gren- ner suit, was also received by the Post-Dispatch. The lawyer said Georges did not receive any money or other property at any time, di- rectly or indirectly, from the United Drilling & Development Co. or any other source except money he re- ceived from the sale of stock which he owned personally, and which he disposed of at a great loss. The law- yer said: "Georges is not now and never has been a trustee of the oil company, or connected officially with it or any of its committees or sub-committees. He was simply in- terested, as were many other local Greeks, as a stockholder."

Henderson said that W. A. Mele- tio of St. Louis, president of the company, has been given a free hand through the election of his slate for a board of trustees. He predicts that the company will now make rapid progress and that all statements as to the value of the property will be substantiated. Meletio is one of the defendants in Grenner's suit.

CHURCHES TO TAKE OFFERINGS FOR PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION

It Is Giving Aid to More Than 5000 Individuals and Needs $46,000 for Work.

Many churches in St. Louis to- day will receive offerings for the St. Louis Provident Association, which requires $46,000 to maintain normal activities until Oct. 31, the end of its fiscal year.

The deficit has been created by the exceptional demand upon the as- sociation since the period of unem- ployment began. Since the begin- ning of the last fiscal year, 2534 families, or more than 10,000 indi- viduals, have received help from the association and at the present time the association is giving aid to ap- proximately 1300 families, or more than 5000 individuals.

Coupons will appear in the Post- Dispatch today for the convenience of persons desiring to make a con- tribution at some future date.

TIRE PATCH DISCOVERER GOES TO JAIL BROKE

"Tony" Moss of Guthrie, Ok., Convicted of Fraud in In- come Tax Return.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GUTHRIE, Ok., June 18.—The case of the Government against T. I. (Tony) Moss, charging him with at- tempting to defraud the Government in filing his 1918 income tax returns was ended Friday when Judge John H. Cotteral of the United States Dis- trict Court sentenced him to the Fed- eral prison for 14 months and to pay a fine of $1 on a plea of guilty.

The case has been of unusual in- terest and the Court delayed final sentence several days in an effort to get at the bottom of the matter. Moss, who has great mechanical talents, accidentally discovered a process of patching motor tires three years ago.

He started on the road salesmen who made a big success of his com- pany, known as the Moss Monkey Grip Tire Laboratories and he was rated as a millionaire at the end of two years.

His cash books showed that he had received $2,000,000 from his sales during the first two years of busi- ness.

He attributes his downfall to his head bookkeeper and a few sales- men who took advantage of his abso- lute ignorance of business accounts and financing. The Government raid- ed his office at Oklahoma City a year ago and found a false set of books on which his concern's income tax had been calculated. His arrest followed and he declared in court that his former employes had robbed him of all his patents, business and cash and that he would end his prison sentence without a dollar.

His case was the first in this court charging attempt to evade the in- come tax and attorneys declare that other cases will result in Moss' re- covering some of the losses he has sustained. The Court complimented his genius, but was astonished at his business methods.

WOMAN AN ALLEGED CARRIER OF TYPHOID

Unusual Case of Chicago Res- ident Taken to Illinois Supreme Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Efforts of Mrs. Jennie Barmore, 100 West 113th place, to free herself of quar- antine in her home because Dr. John Dill Robertson has decreed her a typhoid carrier, reached the State Supreme Court stage today after two years of litigation, when the Health Commissioner was ordered to appear forthwith to answer habeas corpus proceedings.

Mrs. Barmore came to the atten- tion of the Health Department in December 1919 when several cases of typhoid fever are alleged to have been traced to her. The Health De- partment asked her to comply with certain conditions to end the danger, and she refused. As a result she was taken to the county hospital. Later she was taken home and placed in permanent quarantine.

Boarder Refused to Move.

Mrs. Baramore, who is 67 years oud, supported a husband by keep- ing boarders in her home. She was ordered to cease feeding boarders, and refused. Some of the boarders also refused to move away from the place at the time.

The American Medical Liberty League instituted court proceedings before Judge Sabath in the Super- ior Court. The re was testimony by two famous bacteriologists, Dr. Ludwig Hektoen of Rush Medical College and Dr. E. O. Jordan of the University of Chicago. Dr. Herman N. Bundeson of the Health De- partment testified that three tests for typhoid taken at intervals showed that Mrs. Barmore carried typhus germs. Four glass jars con- taining 30,000,000,000,000 typhus germs were introduced into evi- dence.

In her Supreme Court petition, Mrs. Barmore says that Health Com- missioner Robertson has decided that she will always be a typhoid carrier and is therefore subject to his con- trol and orders as long as she may live. No one, she says, is permitted to see her except her husband.

Stayed Out His Week.

At the time the city took action against Mrs. Barmore, one of he boarders, W. A. McCormick of One- kama, Ok., refused to depart from the house. He was warned by the health authorities to move on ac- count of the danger of contracting the disease. "There's not a safer place to live in the city," he retorted. He had a week's board paid in ad- vance. "I want to eat this out," he told the court, "and then I'm willing to move. However, I do not believe there is any reason for me to move. I have been in Mrs. Barmore's house for several months and have not con- tracted typhoid."

"Well, we would like to have you stay," said the prosecutors. "Then we would be able to prove our con- tention that Mrs. Barmore is a germ carrier. We have seen other cases where people were sure nothing was wrong and remained in danger."

McCormick grew pale as the dis- cussion proceeded, but announced he would remain until his advance pay- ment of board had been eaten out and he did so.

ILLINOIS GOVERNOR GETS THROUGH ONLY PART OF PROGRAM

Legislature Broke With Executive Over Bill Taking Hundreds of Employes From Under Civil Service.

SUCCESSFUL IN HIGHWAY LEGISLATION

Building Investigating Committee Made Permanent and Bill Against Baseball Bribery Passed.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 18.—Successful with only part of his legislative program, Gov. Small watched his first General Assembly end its session out of his control. The House started to break away from the Governor's program while considering the Wheeler bill, taking hundreds of State employes from jurisdiction of the civil service.

The House tonight concurred in Senate amendments and passed the utilities bill, and then defeated the Wheeler civil service bill.

The Thompson Traction Bill was killed by the Senate.

When it started its night session the Senate adopted a joint resolution to adjourn when it finished the legislative day until June 30, when formal adjournment will be taken.

In highway legislation Gov. Small was successful. His bills changing the date of party primaries from September to April and his measure doubling inheritance taxes were also passed.

Some Killed by Committees.

Several Small measures were killed by committees without getting a chance on a roll call for final passage. These included the gasoline tax and stock transfer tax bills. The Governor's tax commission bill placing the entire taxing machinery of the State in the hands of the State commission, suffered overwhelming defeat.

Enmity between the Thompson and Brundage factions of the Republican party figured in many of the battles of the Fifty-second General Assembly, supporters of Attorney-General Brundage winning their greatest victory by killing the prohibition commissioner bill.

Digest of Dry Laws Passed.

As a result of the Assembly's work Illinois has the dryest of all dry laws ready to place on her statute books.

Creation of the deep waterway commission and action making the building investigation committee permanent were important features of the session.

As a result of the world's series scandal of 1919, the Legislature enacted in its last hours a bill providing heavy penalties for bribery of baseball players and other athletes.

Proposed legislation which fell by the wayside included the boxing bill and the motion picture consorship bill.

Four Rent Relief Bills Passed.

War on "rent hog" landlords was declared early in the session by Senator Kessinger of Aurora, who led a successful fight for four bills to give relief to tenants. His municipal rent commission bill enabling cities to create commissions to regulate rents for a period of two years was, however, defeated.

A bill to establish daylight saving in Illinois was killed.

Veterans of the World War received recognition by the Fifty-second General Assembly when several measures sponsored by the American Legion were passed. Principal of these was the $55,000,000 bonus bill which provides for a referendum on a bond issue proposition at the November, 1922, election.

Another bill sponsored by the Legion and adopted provides for rededication of the Illinois Soldiers' Orphans' Home at Normal to veterans of the World War. Vocational training is to be established and the children in the home are to be given scholarships to the University of Illinois and Illinois State Noraml University.

Highway Bills Passed.

Highway bills passed give the Department of Public Works and Buildings broad powers in connection with the construction of hard roads. At any time the Governor decides to put the State in the business of furnishing its own materials and building its own roads the legislation gives him the legal machinery to do so.

Refunds to counties for money spent in hard road construction were made. The Legislature also apportioned $61,000,000 for hard road construction, dividing the fund into various activities in connection with road building.

Renewed attention was given the Illinois waterway, the $20,000,000 bond fund being reappropriated.

PINNED UNDER WRECKED TRAIN

Several Men Believed to Be Harvest Hands, Injured in Kansas.

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., June 18.—Several men, believed to be harvest hands, are reported to have been seriously injured and several others pinned beneath the wreckage of a Missouri Pacific freight train which was derailed tonight near Tolerville, Kan. Rescuers were working late tonight to dig out one man who was believed to be dying, according to a statement made at railroad offices here.

The cause of the wreck is not known.

Pathetic Letters From Income Tax Delinquents

Many Tell Federal Collector They Are Out of Work and Have No Money to Pay Quarterly Installment.

A pathetic situation is disclosed in many letters which have been received within the last few days by the Collector of Internal Revenue. The writers say that during 1920 they earned wages sufficient to bring them within the scope of the income tax law, but that they are now out of work and unable to pay the tax. Most of them promise to pay later, if an extension is granted.

Officials say they appreciate the difficulty, but that they have no choice under the law except to proceed with the collection, by seizure of property, if necessary.

About 2000 Fail to Pay.

Of 30,000 Federal income taxpayers in the eastern half of Missouri, including St. Louis, about 2000 failed to pay the second installment of the tax, which was due last Wednesday. This announcement was made yesterday.

The number of delinquents is five or six times greater than ever before, and forms a reflection of general conditions of unemployment. Many wrote letters saying that they would gladly pay if they could, but that they have neither work nor money, and cannot pay.

The law takes no cognizance of the fact that anyone is out of work, but simply that he earned so much money in 1920 and owes a certain proportion of it to the Government. The idea appears to be that when the taxpayer was earning money, he should have put aside enough of it to pay his income tax.

Penalty for Delinquency.

In case of delinquency, the total sum of the tax for the year, which otherwise may be paid in quarterly installments, becomes due immediately. A penalty of 5 per cent on the total is also assessed, with a further penalty of 1 per cent a month for continued delinquency.

The payments will be checked up during the next two weeks. Ten days thereafter "warrants in distraint" will be issued, and Deputy Collectors will make personal visits to collect. They are empowered to seize property in order to meet the tax. No estimate of the amount of the delinquencies has yet been made.

BLIND COMMISSION CITES PENSION BILL

Calls Attention to Requirement of Law That Applicants Must Register.

The Missouri Commission for the Blind, with offices at 326 Metropolitan Building, Grand avenue and Olive street, calls attention to the passage of a pension law for the relief of the adult blind of Missouri and to the necessity of having the prospective pensioners register and make application for pensions.

The notice points out that all adult blind, 21 years of age and over, who have been residents of the State for 10 years or more, who have passed an ocular examination and who are unable to support themselves, and have no income, are entitled to pensions of $300 a year from the Missouri Treasury.

The blind pension act was passed at the last regular session of the Legislature at the instance of the blind of the State. The law provides for a special tax of 2c on every $100 taxable valuation. The pension becomes operative following the enrollment of the applicant on the pension list. Pensions will be paid out of the 1921 tax receipts.

Applications must be made through the Missouri Commission for the Blind or through the local Probate Judge. The commission will receive and register applicants for the blind pension every weekday from 10 to 12 a. m. at the office in the Metropolitan Building.

The passage of the blind persion act has demonstrated there are many more blind persons in the State than statistics show. The last Federal census gives 2500 as the number of blind in the State. More than 500 adult blind not listed in the various welfare agencies dealing with the blind, have applied for pensions or else sent in inquiries.

Many of these applicants live in the smaller communities of the State with relatives or friends. These adult blind, if they meet with the other qualifications of the pension act are entitled to pensions.

TUCK POINTER KILLED IN FALL

Timber Breaks When Contractor Tries to Swing on Scaffold.

John Jackson, 55 years old, a tuck pointing contractor, with an office in the Fidelity Building, Grand and Franklin avenues, was killed yesterday at 3 p. m. in a 35-foot fall from a house at 2205 Morgan street on which he was working.

He endeavored to swing on a timber from the porch to a scaffold. The timber broke.

CONCRETE VATS DESTROYED AFTER LIQUOR IS FOUND IN HOUSE

Two Men Arrested When 16 Cans Are Discovered—Saloon Man Accused of Resisting Arrest.

Policemen found 16 five-gallon cans containing liquor yesterday in the house at 4940 Shaw avenue, arresting Mannella Franzazza, 30 years old, and Carmello Catalano, 23. Two concrete vats under construction in a shed in the rear were destroyed. A shotgun and a loaded revolver found in the house also were confiscated.

When policemen entered the saloon of John Jankowski at 4056 Manchester avenue at 10:45 p. m. Jankowski was behind the bar with a quart measure in his hand. He ran upstairs, where, the policemen reported, he emptied the contents of the measure in a sink. The measure smelled of whisky. Two women were in a rear room with glasses that smelled of whisky before them. Jankowski was alleged to have endeavored to shove one of the policemen from behind the bar and later was taken to the city dispensary for treatment for a cut on his face.

15-CENT REDUCTION IN COUNTY GAS RATE LIKELY

A decrease in the gas rate for domestic consumers in St. Louis County from $1.65 a 1000 cubic feet, the rate since last July, to $1.50 a 1000 feet, to become effective Aug. 1, was recommended Friday night at a meeting of the League of Municipalities in University City.

Officers of the St. Louis County Gas Co. said they considered the decrease fair and it will be recommended to the Public Service Commission. The company reports monthly to the league on its expenses, capital and sales and changes in rates are made by agreement, although the Public Service Commission has the last word. About 60,000 persons are supplied by the company.

FUNERAL TOMORROW FOR CAPT. DUNCKER

Home of Parents in Brentmoor to Be Open to Visitors Today.

The funeral of Capt. Charles H. Duncker Jr., B Battery, 340th Field Artillery, who was killed in action near Thiaucourt, France, Oct. 17, 1918, will be held tomorrow. The body arrived Friday night and is at the home of Capt. Duncker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Duncker, 12 Brentmoor Park.

Funeral services will be held at Second Presbyterian Church, Taylor and Westminster place, at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow, and burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery. The American Legion will take part in the services and a firing squad from Jefferson Barracks will serve at the grave.

Members of Charles Henry Duncker Jr. Post, American Legion, and former schoolmates of Capt. Duncker will serve as pallbearers. The Legion post which was named for him was organized after the war by his former schoolmates at Washington University, where he graduated in 1914.

Member of College Fraternities.

Duncker was made a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi, national honorary classical and scientific fraternities, respectively, during his senior year at the university and he was a member of Beta Theta Pi, notional social fraternity. He was made a Second Lieutenant at the first Reserve Officers' Training Camp at Fort Riley, Kan., in August, 1917, and was assigned to the regiment of the Eighty-ninth Division with which he lost his life.

He was promoted to be a First Lieutenant and put in command of his battery. He was killed by a high-explosive shell which made a direct hit on the post of command of his battery on the front near Thiaucourt. Ten days after his death his promotion to a Captaincy reached the regiment.

Duncker married a schoolmate, Miss Ada Nicholson, of 6111 Pershing avenue, daughter of James Nicholson, on the day before he left to sail for France, in May, 1918. As is known, his parents and widow have authorized the erection of Duncker Memorial Hall of Commerce and Finance at Washington University in his memory. It will cost at least $250,000. Capt. Duncker's father is president of the Trorlicht-Duncker Carpet Co. Besides his parents and widow, Capt. Duncker is survived by a younger brother, Henry Duncker.

Other Bodies Arrive.

The bodies of the following three other St. Louis soldiers arrived yesterday:

Private Fred William Willenbrock, 22 years old, Headquarters' Company, Sixth Marines, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Willenbrock, 4461 Chippewa street. Died of meningitis, March 6, 1918. Funeral from an undertaker's at 3403 South Grand avenue, at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow, with burial in Memorial Park Cemetery.

Private Arthur L. Custer, 28 years old, B Company, Fifty-sixth Engineers, husband of Mrs. Ella Custer, 1930 Penn street, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hasecuster. Funeral at 10 a. m., Monday, from residence to Emmaus Evangelical Lutheran Church, Jefferson avenue and Armand place, with burial in Concordia Cemetery. Custer is survived also by two children, Lloyd and Shirley.

Corp. Jacob Henry Wolf, 27 years old, F Company, 354th (Missouri) Infantry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolf, 4231 Athlone avenue, was wounded by shrapnel near Flirey, France, Sept. 10, 1918, and died two days later. His funeral will be held June 26, being delayed for the arrival of a brother. Services will be at an undertaker's at Grand and Natural Bridge avenues, and burial in Memorial Park Cemetery. Mount Moriah Masonic Lodge and the American Legion will participate.

The body of David B. Barbee, a bugler in H Company, 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, a former St. Louisan, who died of disease in France, arrived at the National Cemetery, Jefferson Barracks, yesterday for burial. His mother, Mrs. Evelyn Shubbach of Tulsa, is stopping at 4551 Lucky street. The bodies of seven other soldiers from various Missouri towns arrived here yesterday on the way to those towns.

ARRESTED FOR SPEEDING, HE IS HELD ON FRAUD CHARGE

Homer Gore, Manager of a Thompson Restaurant, Aroused Suspicion While Telephoning.

Homer Gore, 26 years old, of 4364 Enright avenue, manager of Thompson's Dairy Lunch at 718 Olive street, took too much for granted Friday when Belleville police arrested him for speeding his automobile and for driving on the wrong side of the street, and he unwittingly let it be known that he had obtained money under false pretenses from his employers.

Gore and three countermen employed by the Thompson company were on their way to Cleveland, O., in Gore's touring car when they were arrested in Belleville on the traffic charge. He asked permission to call his superior in St. Louis and was heard to tell some one over the telephone that he had something wrong with his accounts, but would be "right back to straighten it."

He was held for St. Louis detectives, to whom he made explanation. He said that he had been rebuked because his lunchroom was not making as much money as others of the chain in St. Louis and that he had been despondent. He said he obtained billheads from two fruit companies, made out fictitious bills and obtained $57.10 on them from his cashier. He said he owes $500 on his car. A warrant will be sought against him. His companions will oe released.

DIRT ROAD ADVOCATES TO BE HEARD FIRST

Senate Committee to Begin Considering Highway Legislation Wednesday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18.—Senator Ralph, chairman of the Senate Committee on Roads, has announced that active work in preparation of road legislation in connection with the $60,000,000 bond issue, will be begun Wednesday, the date of the first hearing to be held by the committee.

Ralph said that J. O. Hudson of Columbia, advocate of highway legislation which would create county highway boards in all counties of the State, and would provide for an extensive system of dirt roads, "a road in front of every man's door," would be heard at the first hearing.

Road bills introduced during the past week will be returned by the printer tomorrow and will be assigned to the committees.

To Name Successor to Dyott.

Speaker O'Fallon said he would name another member of the House Roads Committee to succeed John C. Dyott, the chairman, who resigned because he had accepted a position as Assistant United States Attorney-General in charge of prohibition enforcement in St. Louis. O'Fallon refused to say whether he would designate the new member as chairman or whether Representative Bailey of Carthage, the ranking member, would be chairman. It is generally believed that Representative Vandeventer of Christian County will be the new member of the committee.

A meeting of the State County Judges' Association to be held here Wednesday and Thursday of next week has been called. A. R. Hurst, State highway engineer of Wisconsin, and C. B. Older, State highway engineer of Illinois, have been invited to speak on road questions. Gov. Hyde on taxation, Attorney-General Barrett on legislation recently adopted affecting counties. Former Gov. Gardner also has been invited to speak.

Gov. Hyde will be asked to submit to the special session of the Legislature now in progress, an anti-lynching bill brought to Jefferson City by Representative Moore of St. Louis, the only negro member of the House.

Features of Proposed Bill.

Moore's bill, which he said was modeled upon the West Virginia law, would provide for payment of $5000 to the members of a family of a person lynched and the imposition of a special tax upon the county in which the lynching occurs, to pay the sum thus provided for.

Miss Bertha Adcock, 18 years old, staying at the Euclid Home, 4364 Enright avenue, an institution for friendless girls, was severely injured at 10:30 o'clock last night when a rope she had made of sheets and on which she was descending from a third-floor window broke and she fell 25 feet. She was internally hurt and cut and bruised.

Miss Adcock had retired to her room after a prayer meeting in the chapel. She had been extremely nervous, attaches of the home said, and worried over a man with whom she formerly had kept company.

Disciple of Lenine Tells Why Soviet System Has Failed and Dream of World Revolt Is Ended

Russian Peasants Who Wouldn't Give Up What They Had Created With Their Own Labor Beat Communism—Future of Experiment Discussed.

FORMERLY sharing the ... ith of Lenine and Trotzky in communism and its future, Henry G. Alsberg, author of numerous articles on Russia, frankly is of another opinion now. He anticipates criticism from his former associates for this admission, but, nevertheless, no longer believes that Russia can be anything more than a highly socialized state retaining the principle of the revolution. The dream of a world revolution is gone. The communists are themselves proposing to meet capitalism upon middle ground. The peasants defeated communism in Russia by refusing to share what they raised on the land. Lenine has admitted it, and Alsberg admits it. The future, abounding with great difficulties, is, nevertheless, the hope of Russia. The following article by Mr. Alsberg is reprinted from THE NATION by permission.

By HENRY G. ALSBERG.

AFTER devoting pretty nearly three years to fighting for a particular cause and point of view, it becomes very difficult even to appear to go over to the opposition and run the danger of misinterpretation by all the somber elements of reaction. Then there is the further and keener feeling that one is taking leave of a good many old friends, of comrades, if the reader knows the full significance of that sacred word, comrades with whom one has felt very much at home, with whom one has hoped and feared and in a modest way suffered for lost causes.

I know the outside world often wonders what has come of all the Russian revolutionary ardor and fearlessness which shook Czarism to its foundations before the war, and which now seems to have disappeared almost entirely before the bolshevik dictatorship. The explanation is not far to seek. Formerly every real revolutionary could throw himself into the struggle against Czarism with a clear conscience and the assurance that he would die as a martyr for the cause of freedom, recognized as a martyr by the whole world.

Now, for one thing, the menshevik, the socialist revolutionary or the anarchist who works in opposition to the soviet government does so with a rather uneasy conscience. He is fighting his own comrades, after all, the men who fought and suffered with him against the old tyranny. He feels that he is engaged in a sort of fratricidal conflict, in the course of which whoever is the victor will at the same time be the vanquished of the lowering White Guard forces. For a second thing, this comrade who fights the bolsheviki no longer has the satisfaction of knowing he will die a martyr to the cause of humanity, acknowledged as such throughout the whole world.

Enemies Helped Soviets.

The soviet government, through its control of the press and also through its good luck in having had chiefly reactionary enemies, is in a position to brand revolutionary opposition as counter-revolutionary. If you are guilty now, in Russia, of anarchist agitation against the Government, you are arrested and sent to jail as a White Guardist, or, what is worse, as a speculant. If you are a counter-revolutionary you are apt to be pardoned very shortly, because White Guardist and cadet propaganda is not considered dangerous to the soviet government. I have met plenty of men who formerly took part in Kolchak's movement or Denikin's who now have jobs in the red army. I know a man who was formerly Chief of the secret police who now gets on excellently, in some rather mysterious fashion, with the Tcheko.

On the other hand, the sailors in Kronstadt, who never had any counter-revolutionary intentions, although their ill-timed attempt was taken advantage of by White Guardism lurking on the outskirts of Russia, those revolutionary sailors were branded and shot, 800 of them, as counter-revolutionaries. Sentimentally, therefore, opposition to the present Government by revolutionary elements has been made almost impossible except for the strongest minded.

So, to a lesser extent, of course, we on the outside of Russia who consider ourselves radicals and yet begin to criticise the soviets fall under the same ban of counter-revolutionaries, bought and paid for. How often was I told by communists that Bob Minor wrote what he did when he came out of Russia because he needed money and wanted to sell some articles! The mentality of Russian communists has become such that honest opposition is inconceivable to it. Didn't Radek tell me, in a burst of confidence, that really "Brailsford's articles were about as favorable as a man not one of us could be expected to write"?

Soviets Held Infallible.

How did all the Russian communists fall into this strange trance of belief in their own infallibility? The cause is not far to seek. Heretofore there have been two kinds of journalistic conspiracies against soviet Russia, the smoked-glass and the rose tinted spectacle conspiracies. The former, that insisted on seeing everything bolshevik in a darkened and distorted form, was very soon discredited. It committed suicide some time ago by overindulgence in lies. Some of its last convulsions were comic. While I was in Russia recently some American sheet printed a story that Trotzky had eloped with the premiere ballerina of the Moscow Opera and that Lenine had declared a love week. By this time even the Russian official press has acquired a sense of humor and Prawda reprinted the love-week item without any comment. It was just at the time when all Russia was deeply absorbed in a heated debate concerning the future of trade unions in the communist state, a discussion which was daily assuming graver aspects. Trotzky was touring the country, speaking against Lenine's program and in favor of his own; Lenine was calling Trotzky and the backers of other schemes not coinciding with his own "fools who rock the boat" and "syndicalists," one of the worst things you can now call a communist in Russia. At the moment nothing could have appeared more incongruous, more ponderously irrelevant and entirely out of the setting of contemporary Russian mentality than these fleshly lucubrations of a bourgeois press.

And I believe the outside world has quite come to realize that the reactionary press, when it writes about Russia, can claim no belief whatsoever from persons with a sense of humor. This appeared very clearly during the Kronstadt crisis, when many of the British newspapers, besides printing all the reports coming from the rumor factories of Helsingfors, Reval, Riga, at the same time published also the Moscow official version, and told their readers to take their choice. A prominent Soviet official said to me at the time, with a satisfied smile: "You know, I really believe that if our Government were to fall tomorrow and we were all shot, the outside press would not dare print anything about it for at least two weeks, believing the whole thing to be a White Guard lie." To tell the truth, the lying White Guard press has become a tower of strength to the soviets.

Through Tinted Glass.

So much for the smoked-glass conspiracy. But now for the rose-tinted spectacles. There has grown up an uneasy feeling among liberal-minded onlookers, and even among western communists, that Russia has been swallowed a little too whole, without any mastication whatsoever. The Russian revolution has been imposing itself on the Western world as the only true brand of revolution or radical activity. Various considerations have contributed to this amiable delusion. In the beginning, there were those who went to Russia determined to see only sweetness and light, no matter how dark the night or how unpleasant the odors in certain obscure corners.

I do not blame Lansbury, Goode and others. For the most part their testimony was given when Russia, at bay, faced the whole pack of European, American and Russian White Guards. It was a good time to swear a hole through the deal board if necessary. As between Denikin, with whose blood-soaked, drunken officers I had to spend over two months, and the soviets, the choice was clear.

Similarly, only a fool or scoundrel could have thought of allying himself with Petlura, who had no principles except Petlurism and who could not control his massacring hordes; or with Judenich, with his huddle of hard-drinking officers without ideas or principles, actively aided by our Red Cross and by our relief administration, which now complain that the Russians regard them with suspicion; or with the Northern government of Tchaikowsky, which suffered from senility almost from the moment of its birth and from the beginning, like all the other interventions, became a screen for White Guardism and an object of contempt both to the allied command and the native population; or with the Poles, who wrote themselves in blood across the Ukraine with their massacre in Jitomir and their sanction of massacre by their ally, Petlura.

But Denikin, Judenich, Wrangel, Tchaikowsky, Kolchak and even the Poles have passed away as active menaces to the Russian revolution. The need for heavily rose-tinted spectacles seems really to have passed. In retrospect one wishes that Lansbury had inserted a few more "ifs" and "buts" in his articles, that when he rejoiced that the churches were functioning he had at the same time stated that many of the church dignitaries, among them the Patriarch, whether rightly or wrongly, were under house arrest. And one wishes that Goode had keenly realized that Government pro-

"Federal Taxes Will Not Go Down for Four Years," Says Senator Smoot

"TREASURY WATCHDOG" TELLS WHY THERE CAN BE NO RELIEF

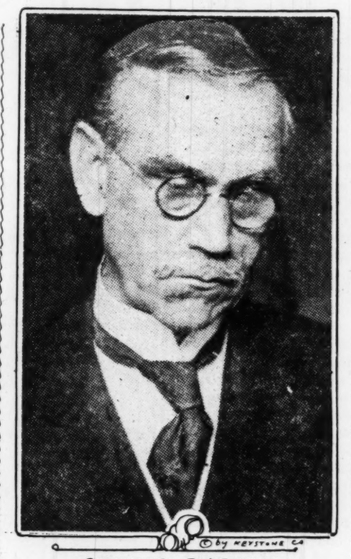
Government Will Be Unable for a Long Time to Cut the Annual Expenditures Under Four Billions, He Believes, Considering Present Obligations.

From the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.

MARK this forecast by a Republican "wheel horse" who knows more about the finances of the Government than any other man in Congress: Taxes are not going to be reduced this year, or next year, or the year after that; at the end of four years, it is possible there will be a slight reduction of expenditures that will reflect itself in a slight easing of the tax burden; at the end of three more years, if there has been a reduction in the meantime, taxes will go up again.

The prophet is Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, correctly known as the "Watchdog of the Treasury." When Smoot talks about finances he is heard with respect by both sides of the Senate chamber. He thinks and dreams in figures. Smoot lets others handle the job of voting the money out of the treasury; the task he has imposed upon himself is to check the flow wherever possible. His face reflects a genuine hurt in his soul as Congress votes away money—wastefully, as he thinks—for the purpose of regulating the packers or setting up some new social welfare agency. Smoot is of a religious faith that makes of thrift a cardinal virtue. He believes devoutly in the principle of economy in public expenditures. Alluringly though it may be painted, the picture of a benevolent Government bearing gifts in its hands fails to charm his attention away from the balance sheet.



SENATOR SMOOT OF UTAH ...

Smoot Looked on as Authority.

After every session of Congress, the leaders issue pronouncements from their several points of view, as to the amount that has been appropriated and the resultant state of the national finances. These statements have value for partisan purposes, but those who want to know what really happened to the Treasury await the summing up by Senator Reed Smoot. He speaks with authority.

Smoot is a conservative of the deepest dye—his political opponents would call him a hard-boiled reactionary; but there is general agreement among both Democrats and Republicans, as well as nonpartisan observers of the doings of the Senate, that his knowledge of finance and his sincere desire to save money for the people make him one of the most valuable members of that body.

Wherefore, when Senator Smoot predicts, as he did yesterday, in a talk with the writer, that taxes will not be reduced, his statement may be taken at 100 per cent of its face value. Taxes will not be reduced.

The reason that taxes will not be reduced is that Government expenditures will not be reduced.

When revenue matters were being discussed during the war, while McAdoo was Secretary of the Treasury, Smoot declared that not for 25 years would the expenses of the Government be under $3,500,000,000 a year. He was called a false prophet and was roundly criticised for making a statement that might interfere with the floating of Liberty Loan bonds. He stuck to the prediction and time, to date, has proved its accuracy.

How Smoot Figures.

It's all very simple, says Smoot, when you figure it out. We were a billion-dollar country before the war. The war more than doubled that expenditure. Tote up another billion for interest on the war debt, and another for the tremendous expansion of governmental activities along all lines, and for taking care of the sinking fund, and you have your four billions. David F. Houston, as Secretary of the Treasury, made the same sort of computation and arrived at the same conclusion—that is, that the Government, for an indefinite period, will spend some four billions a year.

It is with no jubilation in his voice or manner that Senator Smoot says we have progressed from a $1,000,000,000 to a $4,000,000,000 country. He says it as one might speak of the death of a friend.

"I wish I could prophesy otherwise," he said. "But I can't. No one who knows the facts can reach any other conclusion."

"Will not the proposed reorganization of the Government departments make for economy?" the Senator was asked.

"Some money can be saved in that way," he replied, "and there will be a great advantage in placing the Government's business on a businesslike basis. Ten million dollars can be cut off by dispensing with useless employes in the District of Columbia alone. Perhaps $50,000,000 a year will be saved altogether by reorganization.

New Government Expenditures.

"But," he added, "our experience of the last few years teaches us that the saving will be eaten up by new expenditures. People and organizations and states even come running to the Federal Government for everything. They want the Government to build roads, to establish all sorts of commissions, to pass a maternity bill, do a hundred and one things that the Government has no business doing.

"I never dreamed," continued the Senator, with sorrow in his voice, "that my own State of Utah would come begging, as it did the other day. Utah wants more tractors from the War Department. It is aggrieved because it didn't get as many tractors as the State of Idaho."

The only chance for any material slashing of expenditures, the Senator agreed, lies in some disarmament agreement among the great nations. He believes that from $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 can be cut from the annual budget in that way. But this belief does not alter his prophecy that the Government will go along spending about $4,000,000,000 a year for many years to come.

Collections From Europe.

To attempt at this time to collect the interest on the war debt owed the United States by foreign countries would be, according to Senator Smoot, the height of folly. Coming from the unsentimental Senator from Utah, that means a lot. Smoot views the matter of the foreign debt in an intensely practical light, thus: If we insist on payment now we lower the capacity of Europe to buy our goods. In other words, we throttle our foreign trade when foreign trade is what the country most needs to restore its economic equilibrium.

Only Chance for Material Reduction of Government Costs Would Be Through Disarmament; Only a Trifling Sum, Comparatively, to Be Saved by Reorganization.

Smoot was asked about his sales tax proposal. While defending the sales tax as correct in principle and declaring that sentiment for it was increasing as indicated by letters he had received, he intimated that he did not think it would be made a part of the next revenue bill.

"But," said Senator Smoot, "mark my words: The sales tax will come to this country in the course of time. That is as certain as that we are standing here. It will come because we shall have to resort to it to get the money we shall need.

"In the meantime, the next revenue law will probably provide for an increased tax on corporations, to take the place of part of the revenue we shall lose through repeal of the excess profits tax. Undoubtedly, the excess profits tax will go out. I believe the corporation tax will be a flat tax and will not include a tax on undistributed profits—the latter would be a dangerous device. For the rest of the revenue we shall have to hit here and there. I wish we could repeal all the nuisance taxes—the tax on ice cream sodas and the like. But probably some of them will have to be retained. The money has got to come from somewhere.

"It is a tremendous problem we are faced with. Sometimes I cannot sleep nights thinking about it."

Says Bonus Bill Will Pass.

The Senator was reminded that in the Senate, on the day before, Senator Gerry of Rhode Island, in the course of a partisan attack on the administration for nonfulfillment of campaign pledges, quoted him as having said at a hearing on taxation that he believed taxes would be increased.

"And the context," interposed Senator Smoot, "would have shown why I said that. I said that expenditures would be increased because we were about to pass the bonus bill."

"Then you think the soldier bonus bill will be passed?" queried the interviewer.

"I know it," said Smoot. "Nothing can stop it. And after it has been passed, we shall come to the sales tax.

"I make this further prediction," he continued, pointing to the wall of the Senate corridor. "It is as plain to me as if it were being written there by an unseen hand, that at the end of seven years—seven years from this month—Congress will be called upon to pass a bill for a service pension of $50 a month. I may not be here then; you probably will be; but put it down and see if I am not right. Seven years from this month."

"Useless Government Clerks."

The Senator had spoken with solemnity. He turned to his particular hobby—reduction in the number of Government clerks in Washington.

"You ought to see the mail that I get because of my efforts to take a few thousand useless clerks off the payrolls," he said. "Scores of anonymous letters come in, letters abusive and threatening, some of them to members of my family.

"Yet we all know that the Government service is encumbered with thousands of superfluous employes. The other day a woman came to my office and said she was in a division of the War Risk Insurance Bureau where there are 35 clerks.

"'Give me one stenographer and I will guarantee to do all the work of that division,' she said. 'If I don't, fire me.'"

The Senator smiled hopelessly.

"Then we may go right on figuring up our income taxes on the same old basis?"

"Yes," grinned the Senator. "You needn't be afraid you'll have to revise the estimate downward."

Spencer Has Lively Tilts With Walcott and Pomerene Over Admission of Newberry Evidence

Senator Torn Between Promises to Investigate Election Fraud Charges and Known Desire of Party to Have Matter Dropped.

WASHINGTON, June 18.

UNLESS Senator Newberry, voluntarily or otherwise, breaks silence, little remains to be added to the record on which Senator Spencer's subcommittee will base its findings in the Ford-Newberry contest. The public hearings of the subcommittee ended this week after the Ford attorneys had concluded their case and counsel for Newberry said they had no witnesses to call. It now rests with the subcommittee, three Republicans and two Democrats, to decide whether or not the testimony which has just been taken, after many months of effort by the Ford attorneys to compel an investigation, substantiates the charge of the automobile manufacturer that the election of Newberry in 1918 was secured by fraudulent means and should be declared void.

Counsel for Newberry announced on the last day of the hearing, Wednesday, that Newberry would not be summoned. Senator Wolcott of Delaware, Democrat, later served notice that he would probably move before the full subcommittee (two members of which were not present Wednesday) that Newberry in person be called. "Certainly," said Wolcott, "there are a great many matters that he should clear up."

It was agreed that counsel for Ford should have 20 days in which to file a brief and counsel for Newberry five days thereafter in which to reply.

Torn between his promise to investigate the Ford charges and the known desire of the old-line leaders of the Senate to have the whole matter dropped, Senator Spencer played as chairman a mentally disturbing role. During the hearing he had frequent tilts with Wolcott and Pomerene, the Democratic members, over the admission of evidence. If it cannot be said that Spencer used obstructionist tactics, neither can it be said that he showed enthusiasm for the development of facts prejudicial to the Michigan Senator.

Attention was called to Spencer's attitude by Senator Wolcott during a clash over the question of taking the evidence of Henry B. Joy, a brother-in-law of Newbery, who has admitted contributing $25,000 to the Newberry campaign fund. The hearing developed that Joy can clear up certain important points. Because Joy is suffering from heart trouble, the Republicans of the committee, Spencer and Watson, first ruled that he should not be required to submit to any questioning whatever.

Hot Protest From Walcott.

Wolcott protested hotly. He read from a statement by the physician who examined Joy for the committee that, while Joy must avoid excitement and overexertion, he might, nevertheless, if this could be eliminated, be questioned in Detroit without danger.

"There is nothing in that statement to indicate that it would be dangerous to examine Mr. Joy quietly in his office in Detroit, as counsel for Mr. Ford have asked should be done," said Wolcott.

"Mr. Joy is a very important witness," said Alfred Lucking, of Ford's counsel. "You have his checks and affidavits here alleging that he gave only $25,000, whereas Lyman D. Smith (a New York broker) testified here that he sent $7500 to the campaign committee for Mr. Joy. I think a difference between $32,500 and $25,000 is a discrepancy sufficient to warrant the committee in at least making an inquiry."

Spencer and Watson, after conferring at length, finally agreed that Lucking might submit written questions to the committee, which would decide whether they should be passed along to Joy to be answered by him before a notary. They refused to consent to a direct examination of the witness.

Emery's Testimony Brought Up.

Lucking then brought up again the matter of getting the testimony of the much-talked-about B. F. Emery of Detroit. Several witnesses had told the committee that certain questions about the Newberry bookkeeping methods and disbursements could only be answered by Emery. In the words of Attorney Lucking, they "passed the buck" to Emery. Emery, it appeared, could unravel a number of puzzles. As the office manager of the Newberry campaign committee, he received and paid out all its funds, maintained a secret money box in the basement of the building where the committee had its headquarters, and, according to testimony, directed the destruction of all the office records on the night before Treasurer Blair of the committee made his public report. Particularly, Emery was needed to clear up the confusion in the minds of some of the committee regarding four mysterious checks totaling $35,000.

Dr. Frank Sladin of Detroit, who was asked by the committee to determine whether Emery was able to come to Washington and testify, reported that he went to Emery's home and was told by Mrs. Emery that he was in Canada. She would not tell him where, the doctor said. From other sources it was brought out that Emery suffered a fractured skull in an automobile accident several months ago. Ford counsel agreed that he was very sick, and that he had gone to a friend's home in Canada only after he had understood he would not be called on to testify.

In a final effort to get Emery's testimony, Lucking called the attention of the committee to the fact that he had not submitted himself to an examination by Dr. Sladin or any other neutral physician.

"It is our information," replied Senator Spencer, "that Mr. Emery is in no condition either physical or mental, to testify."

Not Included in "We."

"Let the record show that when Senator Spencer uses the pronoun 'we' he does not include me," cut in Senator Wolcott, who was the only Democratic member present. "I have requested that these matters (referring to the testimony of Joy and Emery) be held open till Senator Pomerene can get back to Washington, but even that request has been denied. I do not know as to the condition of these witnesses, of course, but if it is possible that they might testify later I think the committe should wait for them. In view of the fact that the committee has spent two years getting started on this investigation, it is hard for me to see the reason for the effort to wind it up now within a week."

"The officer who attempted to serve a subpena on Emery said he was in no condition to testify," said Spencer.

"Why insist on taking the word of a process server, who may be a butcher, a baker or an candlestick maker, anything but a physician?" asked Wolcott. "I can't understand why the request that he be examined by a neutral physician should be denied unless there is desire to cover up something."

Spencer and Watson would not budge from their position, and the testimony of Emery will not be taken.

Ford Counsel's Request Refused.

They refused also a request by the Ford counsel for an order directing an examination of the bank accounts of John S. Newberry, the Senator's brother and the largest contributor to his campaign fund, and of Lyman D. Smith of New York, who gave $10,000 in his own name and transmitted $20,000 more for others.

"We have decided that the examination of these bank accounts would not be helpful," said Chairman Spencer.

"I can see no harm to be done to anyone in examination of them un-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The leading nations are racing warward, though they tell their people that colossal military preparations are an adjunct of Christianity, evidences of civilization and precautions against war. But formidable preparedness guarantees war instead of peace, according to history.

War will be no more—a crime impossible—when nations cannot fight for lack of armament.

Now it seems that each powerful nation is determined to maintain peace even if it has to go to war to do it.

Germany was forced to undergo disarmament by so-called peace-loving and war-hating nations. They wisely reasoned that a Government deprived of the instruments of war would practice peace. Why don't the countries that compelled Germany to disarm pursue a wise, patriotic and consistent policy of disarmament and solemnly covenant never to reconstruct military monsters.

Governments cannot be forced to disarm except through war. It can be done peacefully only by mutual and honorable covenant. Democracy seems to be safe and sane in Germany.

But is it so in America? We went to war to secure the safety of democracy. It is in danger, however, as long as the nations are scientifically prepared for hostilities.

Our own wild and extravagant militarism does not guarantee the safety of democracy. It seems we have concluded to be first in military matters regardless of present or future taxes.

The contest for naval supremacy is a new international sport. Those in authority propose to create a navy so formidable that other peoples will respect us. Such a policy will entail intolerable tax burdens, foster the spirit of militarism and cause jealousy and distrust among the other nations. Why do we hesitate to issue a call for a congress of nations to decide the question of disarmament?

The initiative for such a movement is up to us, it seems, since the other nations have called us to the League of Nations which provides for disarmament. What is the sense in pauperizing the people to build the foremost military machines and later launch a disarmament movement or join the league?

Is Uncle Sam preparing for war or about to engage in the junk business? Page President Harding.

The Lonely Widow.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have long wanted to ask you and our public, especially the lonely business men who make our woman's laws, what is to become of the widow who reaches the age of 45 years? Though she be charming, good looking, an excellent housewife, refined, cultured, she is lonely. She looks on while the man of her age is courting the young girl of 20 years, and she must take a back seat. It does not make any difference whether this widow has money to care for herself or earns her daily bread. She is lonely. And it shouldn't be. Companionship and a mate is her inheritance, and yet she sits in her room alone or goes to places of amusement with another woman. Why not start something? You try to feed hungry stomachs. Why not find a way to make the lonely woman happy? Nature never intended this to be this way. Why not have a get-together club?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Recently you published information to the effect that the State Supreme Court had upheld the Public Service Commission's denial of the collection of service charges on the part of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., and I accordingly requested the telephone company to credit me with such charges which I had paid previously.

Much to my surprise I was informed that the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. had had no official notice of the decision, and consequently were continuing to collect this service charge as heretofore.

Perhaps it would be well if all of the subscribers who paid this charge would form themselves into a committee to see to it that the telephone company receives "official notification." P. C. Z.

Tuberculosis Death Rate.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The death rate among the negroes is due to improper housing conditions. It is not because colored people want to be unclean. It is because they have to take what they can get.

Negroes are renting houses, as a rule, that white people no longer want. When the change is made the rents are raised, and the property is neglected. What is more unsanitary than trying to live in a house that hasn't been papered for three or four years? Being a good paying tenant for years doesn't help any. He knows these days if you can't buy a home you are handicapped to his negligence and high rents. In stamping out tuberculosis it would pay to see that the houses are papered and properly looked after. We pay enough rent to have these things. It would help to keep down the germ, which are no respecters of age, color or person. E. P. N.

CONSTRUCTION VS. DESTRUCTION.

Urging governmental development of the waterway system of the Mississippi Valley in order to provide for the unemployed, James Lord, president of the Mining Department of the American Federation of Labor, said in a speech at Denver:

> We do not hesitate to pledge the credit of generations to come for the purpose of war and carnage, and in pledging the credit of our successors to this constructive work we would also be giving them a legacy that they would all participate in with comfort and profit for all time.

This is a pregnant saying. We would not urge the Government to undertake vast expenditures on public works merely to provide for the unemployed. Any scheme of this kind is merely a temporary makeshift and entails heavy expense upon taxpayers. Incidental relief may be given the unemployed by necessary and valuable public work, but Mr. Lord gives a better reason for the work in his recital of the inestimable benefits it would confer upon the country.

Among the immediate valuable results, Mr. Lord says it would give an outlet by water for the produce of St. Louis, Chicago, Kansas City, Pittsburg and other cities directly to South America and Europe; it would provide for the establishment of ship canals; it would prevent floods; it would reclaim millions of acres of the richest lands in the world; it would do away with yellow fever and malaria; it would make valuable seaports of many inland cities. It would do all of these things and more: It would supplement inadequate railroad transportation and thus relieve congestion, which frequently ties up traffic and halts commerce.

A complete plan for providing the Mississippi River with a 14-foot channel from Chicago to the gulf, in a way that would not only defray every cent of cost, but would earn handsome profits with great benefits to the people, was developed by Engineer L. E. Cooley. He planned a series of dams, making deep channels and utilizing the water power of the river to produce electricity. The Keokuk dam shows the practical possibilities of the plan. The Cooley plan is revived by Henry Ford, who proposes to deepen and stabilize the channels of the whole system of Mississippi Valley rivers and utilize the water power for electric plants, supplying light and power for a great system of industries.

We quoted the special paragraph from Mr. Lord's address for the contrast he suggested between the attitude of the Government towards destructive work and its attitude towards constructive work, for a special purpose. "We do not hesitate to pledge the credit of generations to come for the purpose of war and carnage." Yet we have no money to spare for the great constructive, beneficent work which would mean millions in return to the country and immeasurable opportunity for industrial and commercial activities.

Of course, we must meet the debts of past wars. There is nothing more costly. The burden of war debts is crushing military nations. We can, however, bring about conditions among the nations to prevent war, which is the barbaric method of settling differences, and thus render unnecessary costly preparations for war. We can begin by obtaining an agreement among the three leading naval nations to curtail armaments. We can go farther and co-operate in the organization of an association of nations to guarantee peace by the substitution of law and arbitration for armies and navies in the settlement of international differences. We may not at once eliminate friction and clashes, but we can lay a foundation of agreements to insure justice and enforce law which would continually work for peace.

If the agreement to reduce naval programs were entered into by the United States, Great Britain and Japan, we could save enough money, which will be wasted on destructive engines, becoming obsolete in a few years, to begin the development of waterways on the largest scale.

The Mississippi Waterways Association asked Congress for $100,000,000 to maintain the work on the rivers that had been accomplished, to complete work already undertaken and to do necessary work of improvement. Congress refused the amount and reduced it to a small portion of that sum.

Congress, however, is willing to appropriate eight or nine times $100,000,000 for military purposes, not counting the enormous sums to pay war debts and pensions. Our total appropriation for military purposes last year was nearly $850,000,000. This sum would insure a magnificent system of waterways. One-eight of it, expended every year for 10 years, would carry out a complete plan to deepen and stabilize the navigable channels of the Mississippi Valley, prevent flood, reclaim rich lowlands and produce electricity for industrial purposes on an enormous scale.

How long will we have to bear the crushing burden of armaments? How long will constructive work that will produce billions be neglected for destructive work that will waste billions? How long will the administration in Washington be deaf to the cry of Americans, to the cry of the peoples of the earth, for the abandonment of costly, wasteful, war-menacing militarism and the establishment of law and peace and prosperity?

THE GOVERNOR'S PALADINS.

Gov. Hyde, it appears, is bountifully rewarding the faithful, which is not in ethical sequence to the fiery denunciation of the spoils system with which the Trenton evangel electrified Missouri a year ago. McJimseyism and all its sinister implications curled up and died in the red wrath of righteousness militant, after which followed the massacre of the symbolic mule. Efficiency in the public service, with noble disregard for politics or politicians—that was the talisman with which Candidate Hyde beguiled the chivalry and charmed the beauty of Missouri.

The practices of those predecessors who had been accustomed to bestow lagniappe upon the loyal were to obtain no more. On the site of our ramshackle, wabbly "peanut politics" was to be erected a structure of august outline and austere appointments. Continuing the architectural figure, the policy of administering our public affairs was to be solidly, unshakably Doric.

And now the press—or, more particularly, a member of our own staff—calls the roll of the Governor's paladins, every one of whom, it seems, was an original Hyde supporter and a member of the State Republican Committee. No such organization premiums, we are told, were ever before conferred in Missouri. Never previously was personal fealty so generously recognized.

Has the official treacherously violated the pure and lovely pledges of the candidate? Superficially, it might seem so. Profound research, though, will disclose a happier construction. In solemn truth, "peanut politics," against which Candidate Hyde inveighed, has been abolished. Other Governors gave their committeemen petty places. Hyde hands them the purple plums. The parsimony of a Richelieu has been supplanted by the munificence of the Grand Louis. It is the golden age upholstered in velvet.

THE LATEST IN UTOPIAS.

A Connecticut farmer with several hundred acres of land and a queer streak is going to try all over again the old, old experiment of Utopia. He is to invite 150 New York radicals to till his land and share with him its products. He desires, in the words of his will, "to make a permanent, practical and constructive contribution to the Socialist and radical movements by providing a haven of rest and play for aged, feeble and indigent Socialists, radicals or progressives, battle-scarred veterans of these movements, where they may spend the evenings of their lives in peace, comfort, rest or in creative work."

It is not a challenge that Peter Green is hurling at the apostles of a new order of society. He is not saying: "Now, here's your chance; put up or shut up." Notwithstanding that his formal education consists only in the ability to read and write, he apparently realizes some of the difficulties of working out the perfect state to which the doctrinaires aspire.

If the radicals whom Green approached through a New York Socialist school accept the offer they will, of course, commit themselves in the public eye to success or failure. This might give them pause were it not for the possibility of benefiting each in his own private interest, from the terms of the will. Apparently we can expect no instructive scientific conclusion from this rare undertaking, but we may get out of it what Henry Watterson would call a very "pretty fight."

HOW TO TRADE WITH MEXICO.

Upon the occasion of a recent visit of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce to Mexico Senor Luis E. Reyes of the Chamber of Commerce at San Luis Potosi told American business men how to do business in Mexico. A great deal has been said on the subject of Latin-American credits, but nothing has been clearer from the Latin-American point of view than this:

> Up to 1913 Mexican business was almost wholly absorbed by European concerns. The reason is obvious: while the American exporters would sell on cash or 30 days' basis, Europeans sold on open account, with a credit limit, reciprocal interest to be computed at 6 per cent per 365 days, under the system of numbers. It was understood that the time limit for any payment was 120 to 180 days.
> At that time there were great facilities for any dealer to get a six-months' loan from the banks at from 8 to 10 per cent, and any order sent to the United States took from 20 to 30 days to reach destination.
> At present all circumstances are against the Mexican importer.
> Money draws interest at 3 per cent monthly, and it is very difficult and even impossible to obtain it in many cases.
> Shipments by freight take an indefinite time to reach destination. I know of recent cases taking five months on the road.
> The dealer who calculates on a common-sense basis will add to the cost of his goods the interest on the amount invested, and if he furnishes the money he will have to add interest at 3 per cent.
> Let us consider now the profits: A wholesaler could not make any more than 10 per cent and the retailer 30 per cent on their imports.
> If, under the circumstances, interest is added, this item of expense, in case transaction is made cash with order, will amount to the exorbitant rate of 15 per cent!
> In the meantime, money draws interest of ½ of 1 per cent in the United States.

From the above facts it is a natural and obvious conclusion that money should be furnished by the United States bankers or exporters, and that longer terms of payment than 60 days must be given.

It is a curious fact that failures in business in this country are very rare; in fact, failures in Mexico are less than in any other country in the world, even after the very trying days of the frequent revolutions we have had. There are many cases where a man has lost nine-tenths of his property by fire, robbery or otherwise and yet has paid all his debts. This is a point worthy of consideration in extending credit.

There remains for study on the part of the manufacturer or exporter only one point: To whom credit may be granted and under what conditions.

Eighty per cent of the goods going into Mexico at this time are going in from the United States. That is a proportion worth maintaining.

UNCLE SAM TO MISSOURI.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH by Clark McAdams

THE OZARKS.

HAPPILY time and increasing population have discovered to the people of the Central Mississippi Valley their Ozark Mountain playground.

The attractions of the Rockies and the refreshing air of the seashore may not be enjoyed by all; there is a great interlying population which turns more and more to that which it has at hand and which needs only to be cultivated to unfold its charms.

The Ozarks have not lacked appreciation by many people as a popular playground. It has been known to lovers of the outdoors for years that in this uplift rising within a few miles of St. Louis and Kansas City and ranging southwesterly into Arkansas, there are many clear and beautiful streams, fine hunting and fishing, superb camping sites, picturesque locations for summer homes, great springs and caves, the restfulness of enfolding hills and escape from the devitalizing heat of midsummer.

What have been lacking and are now being supplied were resorts to which people could go; these were necessary for the great body of summer vacationists to locate somewhere not too far away.

Such resorts have sprung up wonderfully within the last few years. They are as yet for the most part undeveloped, but are by that sign not without a pastoral charm, and are less expensive to tourists than resorts in the Ozarks will be when the volume of tourist travel to this section becomes greater.

The Ozarks have more climatic attractions than are generally known. The mountains are from 800 to 1200 feet high in most of their course through Missouri, and beyond the Arkansas line they gain a height of 2200 feet.

Do you know this beautiful country? Have you ever been there?

Do you know the Gasconade, tumbling through forested hills; the Big Piney, the Niangua, the Osage, the Current, and those other sparkling rivers which are at once the glory of the Missouri hills and the paradise of those who fish for the rainbow trout, the jack salmon and that gamest of all sweet-flavored game fish, the small-mouth bass? Do you know the James River, the White River, the Black River and those other streams coming down out of the more southerly Ozarks, their high cliffs echoing the halloos of fishermen and hunters, their banks lanterned by the fires of campers, their deep pools furnishing some of the finest fishing in the world, and their resorts possessing all the charms of a virgin country?

Do you know about Eureka Springs with its sweet smell of the Southern pines? About the mean temperature of 76 degrees in summer in the mountains of the Bentonville section? About the picturesque roof of the Ozark uplift around Fayetteville? About the great springs at St. James, where a veritable river bubbles from the earth? About that great natural refrigerator, the Onondaga cave, which Enos Mills says is the most beautiful cave in the United States? About the hospitality of the Ozark people—their gladness to have you come and make you feel at home?

If you do not know these things, you do not know why more people go into the Ozarks each summer—an ever-increasing and always returning host—the host of those who have discovered their own playground.

AMATIVE PHILOSOPHY.

I approve the following sonnet taken from the June number of Harriet Monroe's Poetry—

AU REVOIR.

By John V. A. Weaver.

Don't kiss me! Not no more! Oh, can't you see?
Everythin's perfect now, the way it is.
Why do I hafta fight and beg like this?
It's been so sweet—oh, can't you leave things be?

Oh, now I hurt you! Dear, don't look so sad—
Oh, gee! I guess men ain't got ways to know
How a girl feels, and when it's time to go,
And how too much of even kisses is bad.

But it's the things you didn't just quite do,
And what's left over for some other day,
That makes her wonder and hope and cry and pray,
And tell herself, "Next time!" and dream of you.

Good night, dear—you must go—it's for your sake.
I'll dream about that kiss you didn't take.

—not because of its slang or eroticism, but because of its excellent philosophy which the girl in the sonnet has admirably expressed. As a rule, girls do not reason out this philosophy; it is a sort of intuition with them. They know, without thinking, when it is time to halt the too ardent lover; they know instantly when they come to the crossroads and which is the right and which the wrong road. Blessed are they who do not take all the kisses at once, but leave some for some other day!

The seven million majority against the League of Nations in our solemn referendum was no worse than the things Dean Inge is saying in the Quarterly Review. He makes our plight out to be a good deal worse than we suspect. The League of Nations, had we all gone into it and ended war, would have been the end of the white race. It has no survival value, says the dean. The yellow races can outwork and underlive it, and except by war they would speedily gobble us up. So California has been right all the time. She says the Japanese go to work at 5 o'clock in the morning and work until 10 o'clock at night. They don't require movies, automobiles, luxuries, rest. So California assumes a belligerent attitude. She will fight. Not the Japanese as such, but their economic plane. This also makes Borah right—and who should also turn up on the right side but our own Jamie Reed! Welcome, Jamie. May you turn out to be right on something else. It will boost your average. The dean says nothing about how we are to pay the bill. He only says we have this choice —to fight or to die. Nor does Bertrand Russell, who discerns things rather more clearly than almost anybody writing, see very much happiness ahead. His answer to Bishop Inge is that Asia is to be industrialized, and when that happens the Asiatics will have no survival value. He wishes for her sake that she could escape industrialization. Not having read the dean at the time, he did not know that our bacon is to be saved by the very thing he laments. Human greed, he says, will permit nobody to idle. Everybody will be put to work. The Japanese, the Chinese and the Hindus will all toil in the factories, precisely as the American and the European are doing. They will all want automobiles and luxuries. Somebody like Judge Gary will blow the whistle for everybody to start and blow it again for everybody to stop. It will be a while between blows, too, if we are to judge by the temper of what Brother Bertrand writes. So there we are, gentle reader. These are our prophets, such as we have. To work and to arms!

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

ARTISTIC MEXICO.

OLIVER MADOX HEUFFLER in North American Review.

THE guileless tourist who throngs European picture galleries because he is told it is the proper thing to do will some day—when he has got it out of his head that Mexico is a country entirely inhabited by murderers—find that there are artistic treasures just as worth while only a little way across the Rio Grande. There are a hundred great churches and cathedrals more beautiful than any yet dreamed of in his own country; there are pyramids that rival Cheops and bas-reliefs as striking as anything Nineveh could show; above all, for those in search of beauty in common things, there are a dozen handicrafts, the products whereof would drive collectors mad with rapture if they were bought in Naples or in Ispahan. The blanket serapes worn by the men are familiar, chiefly though machine-made imitations; less so the rebozos worn by the women; of a special interest showing the blending of East and West is the native pottery, as for example, the beautiful Talavera and Mudejar ware. Although the introduction of this is usually ascribed to the Dominican monks, its Spanish or Arabic influence is, in actual fact, merely overlaid upon the very much more ancient native craft of which examples are still preserved in the National Museum and elsewhere. It is safe to say that not one in a hundred persons if asked to name the three finest equestrian statues in the world would know that at least one of them is to be found in Mexico. It represents King Carlos IV of Spain and is said to have been the first bronze statue ever cast in America. It is without any question the finest, ranking second only to that of Bartolommeo Colleoni in Venice, yet I mention it here, less for what it is than for what it represents.

McCONE AND THE OPEN SHOP.

From the Editor and Publisher.

THERE are some men who are so constituted that when they become deeply interested in, and earnest supporters of a cause, they seem to lose all sense of justice and truth in its advocacy. The cause may be a good one and merit public approval, but because of their intemperate and sometimes untruthful statements they antagonize the very persons whose support they seek.

Such a man is E. J. McCone, general manager of the Buffalo Commercial, who is conducting a vigorous campaign in behalf of the open shop movement. Everybody connected with the newspaper industry knows that there are plenty of facts upon which sound arguments in behalf of the adoption of the open shop can be used. There is, therefore, no necessity for misrepresentation and lying.

Why, for instance, does Mr. McCone continue to assert in his platform speeches that the entire American press, with the exception of four newspapers, is controlled and its utterances on labor are censored by the labor unions through the International Typographical Union, when every one in the publishing business knows this to be absolutely untrue?

Mr. McCone in 1920 said he would pay $10,000 to any one who would produce a copy of a newspaper printed since July 1, 1917, with the exception of four, in which there is any indorsement of the open shop policy as such, or any criticism of the closed shop. When Archie E. McCrae of the Muskegon Chronicle submitted a copy of his own paper containing criticism of the closed shop and claimed the $10,000 why did Mr. McCone welsh on its payment?

Mr. McCone's vicious attacks upon the press and upon the unions are doing the cause of the open shop more harm than good. If those who are fighting for it could get Mr. McCone to retire to the seclusion of his own business office and stay there, newspaper publishers would be far more likely to favor the open shop principle.

Event in the Social World

Members of Social World Who Will Spend Summer Here Are Taking Up Various Diversions, With Golf One of the Most Popular.

WITH the summer exodus well under way and the number of weddings rapidly decreasing, the "stay-at-homes" are now directing their attention to the many forms of entertainment which their own city may provide. Golf has proved to be one of the most popular of these diversions. The Women's St. Louis District Golf Association has been holding weekly matches since the first of May at the country clubs, and these will continue once in two weeks during the hot months.

The officers of the organization are: President, Mrs. S. T. G. Smith; vice president, Mrs. C. C. Pangman; treasurer, Mrs. Albert T. Terry; recording secretary, Mrs. E. Lansing Ray; and corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lester Meyer. On the prize committe are Mrs. Charles C. Scudder and Mrs. De Witt Peterkin. Mrs. J. A. Corbett is sport chairman and compiles the programs with the aid of a committee consisting of a chairman from each of the clubs, as follows: St. Louis County Club, Mrs. Harry Langenberg; Sunset Hill, Mrs. Crawford Duncan; Bellerive, Mrs. Fred Newbury; Normandy, Mrs. Combie S. Chesbro; Glen Echo, Mrs. J. A. Corbett; Kirkwood, Mrs. J. C. Harvey; Westwood, Mrs. Louis P. Aloe; Algonquin, Mrs. Stratford L. Morton, and Midland Valley, Mrs. M. J. Isler. The clubs are represented by teams composed of the four members having the lowest scores. Matches will be played between these teams.

Among those especially interested are; Mrs. R. O. Kennard Jr., Mrs. Carrol Hill, Mrs. Walter Shepley, Mrs. William D. Becker, Mrs. T. P. Bates, Mrs E. Lawn, Mrs. Roy Atwood, Mrs. Charles Noel, Mrs. Maurice Obear, Mrs. L. E. Bendig, Mrs. W. T. Dooley, Mrs. C. T. Aid, Mrs. William Schmick, Miss Edith Taggart and Mrs. R. J. Kohn, who is the only woman to represent St. Louis in the Kansas City golf meet tomorrow. Mrs. Kohn recently won the woman's championship on the municipal links. The next meeting of the association will be a two-ball foursome at Triple A on Monday, June 27.

One of the notable engagements of the summer was that of Miss Mary Plant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Plant of "Easton Farms," St. Louis County, and Leicester Faust, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Faust of 1 Portland place, which was announced Wednesday afternoon. The wedding date has not been set.

Miss Plant was educated at Sacred Heart Convent, Miss Wright's School and Bryn Mawr, and was formally presented to society in 1919. In that year she was maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet Ball and special maid last year. She has been active in the Junior League.

Mr. Faust is a grandson of the late Adolphus Busch. He received his education at Yale and Washington Universities, and is a member of the Sigma Nu Fraternity.

Announcement was made Tuesday of the engagement of Miss Hadley Richardson, daughter of the late Mrs. Florence Wayman Richardson, to Ernest Miller Hemmingway of Chicago, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Hemmingway of Oak Park, Ill. The wedding is expected to take place in the fall. Miss Richardson is the sister of Mrs. Roland Usher. She was educated at Mary Institute and Bryn Mawr, and made her debut a few years ago. Mr. Hemmingway served with the Ambulance Corps during the war, and later attended the University of Padua. He was the first American to be wounded in Italy, and was decorated there by the King.

On Wednesday evening, at the Bethel Evangelical Church, the marriage of Miss Hildegarde Hanpeter, daughter of E. C. Hanpeter of 3214 Palm street, and Charles Cunliff Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cunliff of 15 Windermere place, was solemnized.

Dameron of Clarkville, Mo., and William Weakley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence O. Weakley of St. Joseph, Mo. The ceremony was performed out of doors at high noon on Wednesday at "Falicon," the country home of the bride's mother, in the presence of the immediate families, the Rev. J. K. Brennan of Louisiana, Mo., officiating, and was followed by a reception.

An altar was arranged with the litany desk from the Episcopal Church and placed between two large forest trees. Pink roses, delphinium and gladiolas were used for decorating. The music was furnished by the church organ. The bride's gown was of white satin, trimmed with quantities rose point lace which had belonged to her grandmother. She carried a white prayer-book, the gift of the bridegroom's younger brother. After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Weakley will reside at "Falcon."

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Theron Catlin, sister and brother-in-law of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence O. Weakley, Misses Virginia and Janet Weakley, sisters of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Milton Tootle and Duckworth Tootle of St. Joseph.

Another out-of-town bride was Miss Kathrine Adams Semple, daughter of Mrs. Henry Martyn Semple and niece of Mrs. Elmer B. Adams of 25 Westmoreland place, whose marriage to Brenton Crane Pomeroy of Pittsfield, Mass., was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at St. James' Church, Woodstock, Vt. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bridegroom's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Loomis. The couple will make their home in Honolulu.

Miss Frances Woods of 7069 Kingsbury boulevard has as her guest Miss Alice Heebner of Philadelphia. Miss Woods and Miss Heebner arrived Friday from Northampton, Mass., where they have been attending Smith College. Miss Woods entertained last evening in honor of her guest at the dinner dance at Glen Echo, and with her mother will be hostess at a bridge party Tuesday at her home. Other parties complimentary to Miss Heebner will be a buffet supper tonight with which Misses Margaret and Mary Delle Woods will entertain and a garden party Thursday evening at which Mrs. Frederick Hume will be hostess.

Direction Compasses

If all the roads ran north and south or east and west, one could drive satisfied that the north star was in its place and that the sun was setting correctly. But roads turn and twist and it is often a comfort to know in which direction the car is heading. Direction Compasses will prove a great convenience. Erker's has them in pocket watch form and also in wrist watch style.

Pocket Magnifiers

A perfectly innocuous small bug may be mistaken for a dangerous adversary to be avoided. One of these Magnifiers will save you much annoyance. Then again the roadside swarms with the most interesting insect life. A Pocket Magnifier will reveal activities of extraordinary interest. You should have one because, however short the tour, there is much more to be seen than just obvious scenery.

75c and Up

Flashlights

How often have you been caught without a flashlight and how you have wished for one of these simple helps! Erker's has a large line, covering every possible need. Even if you only drive to the park, you will find a Flashlight a cheerful companion in times of distress.

Invisible One-Piece Lenses

The only two-vision lenses with bifocal invisibility. The usual line between the reading lenses and the long-distance lenses does not appear, hence absolute comfort of vision. The cost for invisible lenses to take the place of the bifocals you may be using is trifling compared with the satisfaction experienced. If you will call early enough your new lenses will be ready the same day.

Odorless, greaseless and guaranteed absolutely harmless. Used easily at home. Applications are only required at intervals of from 4 to 6 weeks, depending on hair growth.

Sold and recommended by drug and department stores everywhere. Two colors, "Golden to Medium Brown" and "Dark—Brown to Black", 50c and $1.50 sizes.

REID'S REST CURE SHOES

Specially Priced $11.00

With Arch Built-in The Shoe For Women

They Relieve

Sore and aching feet and limbs—corns and bunions. The Arch Support is only one of the important features in the construction of Reid's Rest Cure Shoes.

Reid's Rest Cure Shoes are made wide at ball; roomy tip, giving the foot its natural position and freedom of the toes.

Reid's Rest Cure Shoes are made narrow in the heel and instep, giving the wearer an adjustable bandage that supports and prevents foot slipping, thus avoiding friction.

These and other requirements built in the Reid's Rest Cure Shoes, along with best quality of leather and fine workmanship, give relief to those suffering with foot troubles.

Reid's Rest Cure Shoes, worn during the day, relieve the feet to the extent that it is possible to wear your dressiest shoes with perfect comfort for evening wear or when the time presents itself, without suffering with your feet.

This Basement Dress Week is an annual event with us—and the values offered each day well deserve the term "remarkable." Our shoppers report that the dresses featured tomorrow far surpass anything shown in any other St. Louis store at anywhere near these prices and we earnestly advise all of our regular Basement patrons to take advantage of this rare opportunity to save.

Nugents

The Store for ALL the People

Women of St. Louis will remember the Week of Wonderful Dress Sales which we featured in our Basement during June of last year. Hundreds of St. Louis women visited our Basement Ready-to-Wear Section every day during this week of great values—thousands of dresses were sold at prices that in many instances did not cover the cost of the materials alone.

SECOND ANNUAL BASEMENT DRESS WEEK JUNE 20TH TO JUNE 25TH

3000 DRESSES

SECOND ANNUAL BASEMENT DRESS WEEK JUNE 20TH TO JUNE 25TH

Think of it! 3000 dresses to choose from—dresses that you'd never expect to buy for these low prices and which we could not afford to sell at these prices if several of New York's largest makers had not co-operated with us in our effort to give St. Louis women the Best Values of the whole year.

300 Tub Dresses at $1

The materials alone are worth more than the price at which they're offered tomorrow. There are several hundred to choose from — voiles and checked ginghams, in a splendid assortment of styles and colors. All sizes for women and misses.

500 Tub Dresses at $3

Hundreds and hundreds of them — organdies, dotted voiles, flowered voiles, checked ginghams and plain ginghams, in a splendid assortment of styles and colors. Some have been reduced from our higher-priced lines because they are slightly soiled. Women's and misses' sizes.

700 Dresses at $5

Silk Dresses! Tub Dresses! For only $5! Dotted organdies, plain organdies, flowered Georgettes with tricolette skirts, flowered voiles, check and plain ginghams and dotted linenes—many with net linings. All the newest styles to choose from. Sizes for women, misses and extra sizes.

Months ago we began preparations for this big annual event, determined to give St. Louis women Dress values that they never thought possible at these prices. How well we succeeded you will readily realize when you see the collection which we have gathered together, at record-making low prices, for this week of big Dress sales.

Extra! 800 Silk Dresses in This Sale at $10

Relief for Burning Feet

When the asphalt melts under your heel, and the heat rises in waves from the pavement—then must shoes pass the supreme test of comfort.

Weariness and exhaustion are often the result of ill-fitting shoes, which retard the circulation, cramp the muscles and upset the nervous system. The Cantilever Shoe brings relief and comfort.

There is toe room aplenty, and the toes point straight ahead, as they should. The carriage is easy. Walking involves no strain. In comfortable shoes you will gain more benefit and enjoyment in the out-of-doors.

The flexible shank of Cantilever Shoes allows perfect freedom to the foot. Instead of being restrained by rigid supports, the muscles of the arch grow strong from the exercise of walking, and "weak arches" are prevented or corrected.

Try a pair of Cantilever Shoes this Summer. You will adopt them for their comfort the year around. Made of fine leathers and canvas, in widths and lengths to fit any foot.

DESCIPLE OF LENINE TELLS WHY SOVIET SYSTEM HAS FAILED

grams are not accomplished facts, in Russia, much less, indeed, than anywhere else.

No Masses' Paradise.

More recent visitors to Russia have seen that the time for talking about Russia as if it were a paradise for the masses has passed. Such visitors have been H. G. Wells and Brailsford. They, in my opinion, are the tail-enders of the rose-tinted-spectacles school. They are the Russo-benevolists, who recognize the difficult situation in Russia, but in view of western reaction and a fear that trade with Russia will not be resumed blame everything on the outside world. Wells, after a two-weeks' stay in Russia, writes a jolly and human book on the terrible decay of Russia's economic life. He states, pretty correctly, that the Communists constituted the only force which could have and will save Russia, and he kicks that old dog of the imperialist war and intervention and the blockade for all Russia's misery.

Justly enough, but somehow that doesn't prevent the converse statement also from being true, that a goodly share of the misery in Russia today has been due to the stupid, deadening dogmatism, the corruption, the frightful bureaucracy, the tyranny, the disdain, the contempt for what we western "bourgeois" would call personality, the individual, which have been characteristic of Russian Marxism as distinguished from Russian human nature. Lenin again and again has pointed out that the Communist regime has been not only stupid, but also almost insanely doctrinaire. Only recently in his speeches before the All-Russian Communist Congress he admitted, for instance, that the whole peasant problem had been mishandled by insistence that the peasant should be communized, that is to say, that all his crop except a small amount for the support of his family, should be taken by the state. As usual, Lenin could protect himself by referring to some past period when he had opposed this policy and stood out for the present policy "of levying only a fixed tax on the peasant."

At this point I am tempted to make a digression from my text and show how this huge mistake worked out in practice for millions of people. It is a leaf out of my own diary. Scene: Station of Winnitza, in the Western Ukraine. Time: End of August, 1920, 6 o'clock in the morning. I arrived at the station with my guide, protector and guard, a revolutionary Lettish sailor from Kronstadt, who had been engaged in fighting bandits in Southern Ukraine. At the station there is a terrible tumult and confusion. Men, mostly sailors, together with a few Red Guards, are running up and down the platform terribly excited, girding on their revolvers, getting together rifles. I ask a sailor to whom my guard introduces me, a sailor who could speak English, what was the trouble. "Why, d——n it, a few days ago we sent a couple of our boys down to a village near here to collect the quota of grain due, and those g——d——s——s b——s bashed the heads of our men in." "And what are you going to do now?" "What? Why, we're going down there and give those —— what for. We'll burn down their village and shoot up the menfolks and"——. Pray imagine this Zwangswirtschaft going on all over Russia for several years.

Now it may be all right to say that a mother-in-law is an essential institution, but is it necessary to pretend that all mothers-in-law are flawlessly amiable? The Communists saved Russia, but it is doing them no service to pretend things that are not so. It is better to acknowledge the mistakes which have partly brought starvation to the cities. But it is more necessary still to point out that the Communist Government of Russia is no longer revolutionary or Communists. Radek admitted to me, "Naturally we know quite well that we hasen't communism at all. Russia now." (x) The peasant has beaten us. But we have preserved the advance guard of a small proletariat compact, well organized, and ready to fight the terrible reaction which otherwise woud sweep from the west." This idea that an ass dressed up in a lion's skin can keep frightening the Churchills, Briands and Stinneses with stereotyped brayings will soon be exploded, and western capitalists will see that they can easily come to terms with this docile creature.

Nationalism Growing.

It would be doing present-day Russia a disservice to continue with the myth of internationalism and world revolution. Russia of to-day is as she is, not to be covered with any formula or generalization. She has become what she is through force of circumstance, through pressure from without and within. How much of the crippling is due to doctrinairism perhaps I can point out later. But it should be pretty generally realized that Russia now is more national than international in tendency. The international effervescence is almost pumped out, and the chief desire of the rulers is to reconstruct Russia and in doing so to make every imaginable concession to internal and external bourgeoisdom. In many things the country has returned to pre-war tendencies. The foreign policy, although managed with an entirely different technique, faces much the same problems, at least in the East, as did the old Czar's regime. The present Government, again, is willing to sell as much of Russia to foreign concessionnaires on pretty much the latter's own terms as these latter can absorb. One is reminded of Witte's days. In return the soviets want to get engines and agricultural supplies and, in general, manufactures and also technical and organizing skill.

But, on the other hand, the differences between the soviet Government and the Czar's are great. Both could be called despotisms. There is no political freedom, nor freedom of the press or of speech or of assembly now. The country is ruled by a small body of men supported really by a proletarian bureaucracy, the Communist party. But the differences between the old and new regimes are striking enough though not always apparent to individual Russians who have suffered from both. But, for one thing, the present Government is directed by one of the greatest intelligences of our or any time, Lenin, who always has his finger on the pulse of the masses and hasn't an ounce of Bourbonism in his makeup. He knows when to yield and when to be dogmatic. This was shown recently by the Kronstadt affair.

Until then he had the prospect of facing considerable opposition in the All-Russian Communist Congress. On the one hand was the workers' opposition movement, which demanded more control by the trade unions of industry, a program which would have quite upset Lenin's plan for running Russia as a great industrial plant, aided by techni-clans ("specs," as they are contemptuously called by the Russian workmen) and foreign capital. On the other hand you had the fanatic Communists who did not want to make any concessions to the peasants nor permit free trade and freedom to workmen of employment, but wanted at all costs to go on to the bitter end with pure Marxism.

Lenin's Task Hard.

It is always to be remembered that Lenin is threatened on both flanks. He must yield to the demands of the great masses of the people, those demands which he seems to hear intuitively, without the aid of an opposition press or other organs of public expression. If he does not yield, Russia will go to chaos. But at the same time Lenin is dependent on his own party of 700,000 Communists (most recent census) for power, and this party is neither as sensitive to popular will as he, nor as ready to yield.

Therefore he always has to wait for the favorable moment when he can force his own people to make concessions. Such a moment arrived with Kranstadt. A nightmare of dissolution hung over the All-Russian Communist Congress. The sittings were held in the Kremlin under very strict guard. No outsiders were let in. The whole atmosphere was one of tension and suspense. The fanatic Marxists made practically no trouble at all. The workers' opposition, a really democratic movement, met with decisive defeat. Shliapnikov, one leader, was brought off with a big job; Kolontai, the other leader, was laughed down by a very funny but scandalous reference to her private life. You see Lenin is not above using the weapons of western politicians. In general, an atmosphere of "We must hang together or we shall all hang separately" pervaded the Congress.

Again, I repeat, Russia of today isn't, at its core, even leaving Lenin out of the question, a bit like Czarist Russia. The peasant has the land and he is really untamed. He has beaten Marxism for the present. The question remains: Can Marxism reconquer him by helping him to modern methods of agriculture, and so help him to conquer his terrible birth-rate? There, despite the practical tyranny, the spirit of the revolution still persists, both of democracy in the western sense and of democracy in the Marxian-Bakunin sense. And these will not soon die. The Russian people have been jerked ahead a century. In some respects, in so far as they have acquired a proletarian mentality, they have gone ahead of the western countries. It must be realized that there may be a proletarian consciousness which precedes a great industrial development, and which may quickly bridge the revolutionary stage. I think this mentality has been born in Russia.

Terms for Offering Help.

But just because Russia has reached a certain stage of development, it is time to speak openly of things as they are. In the first place the truth will make the so-called bourgeois governments more friendly when they realize that Russia is no longer a center of Marxist infection, that Russia is fighting more desperately now for its existence as a nation than as the advance guard of the international, that at present Russian "internationalism" is a defensive weapon against capitalist internationalism. But western proletariats should recognize this as well, and that the intellectual dictatorship from Moscow is now ridiculous and that Russian Communism cannot serve as a model in Germany or England. They should demand that the blockade cease, but they should also beware of Moscow's subsidies.

That is one reason why I am writing as I do. Another reason is that Russia itself begins to need a bit of honest criticism. If that criticism for the present is not allowed inside Russia, it must come from the outside. I think, if there is a good crop in Russia this summer and a bit of foreign-trade expansion, the Government will be in a position to permit a bit of freedom of the press. Just now, owing to the fact that much more freedom has been allowed in economic life, which gives the more left parties a basis of agitation, the political tyranny has increased in proportion. But I believe this to be only temporary. However, even when conditions improve, I do not believe the Russian Government will go so far as to permit freedom of the press, although political prisoners will probably be released. At least pressure must be applied to force a relaxation of despotism over means of political expression. Moreover, such pressure will strengthen the opposition in the Communist party itself, which, weak at present, still holds out the only hope of a real party of the opposition being formed. No Government willingly yields a position of such advantage to it as a complete control of all agitation.

Promises Broken at Convenience.

We saw that after the war in England, France and America. Kamenev last June solemnly told me that as soon as the Polish war was over, freedom of speech and press would be re-established. I only half believed him then. I cannot take the extreme position of most Communists, in this connection, that there never is any freedom of speech and the press anyway, even under bourgeois Governments, and that the whole question is of no importance.

I know what I have written or may write will gain me the name of renegade. It is harder to criticise Russia now when she is getting to be respectable than at the time when she was still considered completely "red." I shall have the unenviable distinction of being considered an adherent of both sides for discreditable reasons. I have, in fact, had that distinction already. In Riga last year I was taken by the American Commissioner for a Bolshevik agent after having just got out of the clutches of the Tcheka in Moscow, who had ordered my arrest for being a British agent. At that time I refrained completely from writing about Russia, because of the Polish war and the difficult situation. These reasons for silence no longer obtain.

*I cite merely the pogrom of the little city of Tetiev, where 4000 people were killed by a Petlura band after the city had been taken by the Poles and the Polish troops had retired to about 30 versts distance in order that the Petlurovstas should have a free hand.

†The Patriarch was still under house arrest when I left.

‡This was at the time of the Communist Russian Congress.

Your Home May Now Be Heated with Fully Moistened Air

A gallon a day—per room—the minimum

It has long been known that properly moistened air in a heated room greatly increases comfort and health. Dry air not only endangers health, but requires more fuel to give the same feeling of warmth. A temperature of 68° is more comfortable in a room heated with fully humidified air than 75° in dry air.

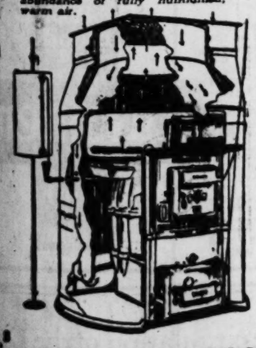
Bridge & Beach

AIR HEATER AND HUMIDIFIER

(PIPE AND PIPELESS)

Double fluted, corrugated fire chamber gives 25% greater heating surface than any other furnace of the same size. The corrugated walls, if stretched out like ordinary furnaces, would have 25% greater circumference.

Humidifier consists of 12-gallon vacuum controlled tank and double vapor-pans with 400 square inches evaporating surface. Open valve and let tank fill each morning. Simple as "ABC". Supplies an abundance of fully humidified, warm air.



is equipped with a vacuum controlled Humidifier which supplies much or little moisture as conditions may require. A gallon a day per room should be the minimum. Ordinary furnaces evaporate less than two gallons of water a day for the whole house—with desert dryness as a result.

The Bridge & Beach Air Heater and Humidifier—made in both pipe and pipeless styles—easily and quickly installed in any home—old or new—represents a new standard of perfection in the field of modern heating systems for the home—a fitting achievement for the manufacturers who have held a position of chief importance in the stove and range industry of this country for 84 years.

Before investing in a heating plant of any kind it will pay you to investigate the Bridge & Beach Air Heater and Humidifier. Let us send you information that will help you in your heating problem. Write for illustrated booklet.

SPENCER HAS LIVELY TILTS WITH WALCOTT OVER NEWBERRY CASE

less the facts divulged would do harm," said Wolcott.

Attorney Lucking said he thought there should be oral arguments before the full membership of the subcommittee.

"There will be no oral arguments," said Senator Watson.

"Certainly, Senator, you will agree that that is a question for the full committee to decide," said Wolcott.

"Yes, certainly," said Spencer. "We can't decide what the full committee will do."

Notwithstanding the important omissions which have been noted, the record made by the Senate investigating committee is illuminating in many respects.

$178,000 Newberry Expenditures.

The financial statement of the Newberry committee showed an expenditure during the primary campaign of $178,000, to which about $20,000 was added by testimony at the Senate hearing. In his statement filed with the Secretary of the Senate, as required by the Corrupt Practices Act, Senator Newberry swore that no money was expended in his behalf during the primary with his knowledge and consent. His attorneys sought to show that his affidavit was made in good faith, while the Ford counsel contended it was impossible for him to have been in complete ignorance of the huge outlay by his campaign managers.

It has obviously been the hope of Senators interested in whitewashing Newberry that a clear showing would be made in the record that Newberry was not cognizant of the admittedly large expenditures. This would have permitted the majority of the subcommittee, in its report, to uphold his right to his seat, while deploring the lavish use of money by his managers. Whether such a report can be made by Spencer and his Republican colleagues, in the face of the record as it actually has been written, remains to be seen. Counsel for Ford assert they have proved their charge that Newberry was fully aware of the expenditures in his behalf.

This contention by the Ford attorneys rests chiefly on the testimony of Frederick B. Smith of Detroit, confidential financial agent of the Newberry family.

Tells of Phone Conversation.

Questioned by Attorney Lucking, Smith told of a long-distance telephone conversation that he had with Newberry on July 28, 1918, when the latter, then a candidate for Senator, was a Lieutenant Commander in the navy, on duty in New York. The Senator, according to Smith, inquired about the family bank balances, and wanted to know when the campaign expenditures would cease. Smith told him the primary would be held July 27. Realizing his mistake in the date, he corrected it in a telegram, which was put into the record, as follows:

"I misinformed you this morning the date of close of regular expenses. Should have been Aug. 27. The circular work advertising, clerical help, postage and all regular overhead expenses will naturally continue until primary. Have written. "SMITH."

Testimony previously had been given by John S. Newberry, the Senator's brother, that Smith had power of attorney to issue checks upon the bank accounts of both Senator Newberry and John S. Newberry, to transfer funds from one account to the other, and to supply funds without limit to the Newberry Campaign Committee. Smith gave the same version of his arrangement with the family. He said he paid over to the committee about $120,000, of which $21,000 was later returned to him in a paper sack.

Got Date Wrong in Talk.

Referring to Smith's telephone conversation with Newberry, Attorney Lucking asked: "You got the date wrong in your talk, and so you sent this telegram to him?"

Smith: "Yes, sir; that is right."

Lucking: "And you say, 'I misinformed you this morning the date of close of regular expense. Should have been Aug. 27.' In other words, you should have said the expense would then be cut off?"

"Smith: "Yes, sir."

Lucking: "And that is what he had been talking with you about over the phone?"

Smith: "He was kicking about the balances."

Lucking: "Yes, the drain was pretty heavy, and he wanted to see it stop."

Smith: "Yes, sir; that is true."

Senator Wolcott asked about the practice in the Newberry family of transferring money from one account to another. Smith said that this had been the custom for years; that when one account got low, it was "fed" from the others. He said there were 10 personal accounts that were handled by him in this way.

"Did you transfer funds from

To Flake Off An Old or Soiled Complexion

A woman need never cease to have a young-looking complexion if she will adopt the simple mercolized wax habit. The wax actually takes off the old complexion, with all its imperfections, and the newer and livelier skin, which then appears, bears that rare beauty and irresistible loveliness that only a youthful skin can possess. The skin is indeed youthful, in reality as well as in appearance. The natural process of tissue-change, which slows up with the passing of the years, and in most conditions of ill-health, is hastened along by this mercolized wax treatment. Faded, muddy, freckled or blotchy skin is flaked off in powder-like particles, a little each day, causing no inconvenience. Mercolized wax, now procurable at any drug store in this country, is the only known product that accomplishes such results. It is applied at night like cold cream, and washed off in the morning.

If bothered with wrinkles or furrows, a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel will prove wonderfully effective.

How To Improve Your Complexion

Facts about the skin and a new common sense treatment every woman should know

A MUDDY, greasy skin results from pores that cannot breathe. All the dust and dirt that is in the air works deep into the pores and mixes with the oils that Nature provides to nourish the tissues and to keep the skin smooth and supple. If allowed to remain these particles enlarge the pores and irritate the skin.

Angelus Lemon Cleansing Cream Cleanses—Does Something More

Angelus Lemon Cleansing Cream is a scientific blend of hand-pressed lemon oil with soothing oil emollients. The result is a perfect cleansing cream—one that softens and removes all the impurities from the pores and leaves the skin soft, clean and smooth.

Every night, or whenever your skin feels dry and harsh, take some Angelus Lemon Cleansing Cream on your finger tips and work it gently into the skin. Always rubbing upward and outward, so as to discourage drooping, tired lines around the eyes and mouth. Then, with a soft cloth remove the cream. You will be surprised at the amount of dirt, powder and grease that comes out on the cloth—even though you have just washed your face thoroughly with soap and water.

Angelus Lemon Cleansing Cream will improve your skin over-night. Its constant use will keep your complexion clear and fine. Begin tonight to make your skin beautiful with Angelus, the perfect lemon cleansing cream.

ANGELUS LIP STICK

will give to your lips the lovely coloring of health and beauty. It is a permanent lip rouge. Heat and moisture will not affect it. Apply just enough to give a natural red and massage it well into your lips. If necessary tone it down with a soft cloth. Your lips will remain a fascinating red until you remove it with a cleansing cream.

How You Can Easily Make Yourself Look Years Younger—

Successful Results Guaranteed in Three Days' Time as per Guaranty Below

ONE woman writes: "I had tried so many things without success that I am sure I never would have bothered with Kijja had I not read about the very hot dry climate in which the Egyptians lived and how hard it was on the skin, but that notwithstanding this the Egyptian women had always been noted for their beautiful complexions. Then I thought what wonderful things they had done in embalming (a lost art to us) and I reasoned that perhaps they might have discovered some remarkable secret to preserve a youthful appearance and beautify their complexions. In this I was not disappointed. In three days after I commenced to use Kijja I was astonished at the remarkable change it made in my appearance; my skin looked so much softer and smoother and I appeared several years younger. But this was nothing compared with what Kijja did for me after I used it for a few weeks."

Massaging the face for a few minutes each day with Kijja helps nature throw off the tiny hardened skin scales of what is known as the outer layer or scarf skin and also to stimulate the formation of new skin cells, thereby imparting most astonishing natural beauty to the complexion and ridding the skin of the face of the principal thing that makes it appear so much older than the skin on your body; namely, the hardened skin scales which come with age.

Kijja is guaranteed to produce sufficiently successful results in three days to prove to any woman, no matter hardly how wrinkled or old looking she may be, that its continued use for a short time will surprisingly increase her beauty and make her look years younger, or the manufacturers will refund her money.

Your dealer will give you with each bottle of Kijja a valuable booklet entitled "How to Increase Your Beauty—Secrets and Arts Employed by Cleopatra, the Greatest Enchantress of All Time," or if you do not wish to purchase Kijja, a copy of this booklet will be given you free, anyway. After using Kijja we shall be thankful if you will write what it does for you—for publication—your name will be withheld.

Kijja (pronounced Ke-zha) a remarkable beauty secret of old Egypt, is for sale in this city by all leading department stores and drug stores.

Truman H. Newberry's account over to John S. Newberry's?" asked Wolcott.

"Yes, sir; or from Mrs. Truman's to John S. or from Mrs. John S. around either way, and always have done it," replied Smith.

"Then the funds in their two accounts went to keep the John S. Newberry account up to a sufficient fund so as to enable you to have enough money out of that account to take care of these primary expenses?" asked Senator Wolcott.

Balance to Cover Overdraft.

"In cases where there were overdrafts they would make up enough balance to cover the overdraft," said Smith.

Smith said that the funds advanced from Mr. and Mrs. Truman H. Newberry's accounts were subsequently returned to those accounts.

"Though Smith had been ordered to bring all his records relating to the payment of funds to the Campaign Committee, he appeared without any. He said that the books, checks, etc., had been put into the Newberry estate storehouse by his cashier, and when he went to get them he found that the lock had been broken and all the records in question had disappeared.

"I am at a loss to understand," said Senator Wolcott, "why it is that in view of all the talk and more or less scandal about the expenditure of Newberry funds, you, the man who had written evidence of the expenditure, should be so much at a loss to tell this committee anything about the whereabouts of those books and checks."

John S. Newberry testified that he gave orders to Smith to issue checks without limit in behalf of his brother's campaign for the Senate.

"I understand my brother was a candidate for the Senate," said John S. Newberry. "So, because of the love and affection I bore him, I told Fred B. Smith I wanted to finance his campaign. Smith, who had power of attorney to issue checks for me, was told he should supply all the funds that might be needed to run the campaign. I went away and left him to do as he pleased. I placed no limit upon him. He could have spent all I had if he wanted to."

Relations Very Close.

The witness testified that he and Truman H. Newberry had joint offices in Detroit, and that their financial relations were very close. Smith acted for both in money matters, having power to transfer funds from one bank account to another. He assisted his brother in the campaign, he said, on the strength of newspaper statements that he aspired to a seat in the Senate.

He denied that he had ever spoken to Truman H. Newberry about his candidacy or the financing of the campaign. Though he corresponded with his brother during the campaign, he said that he did not refer to the senatorial contest. He said that none of the money used in the campaign came out of the Senator's personal funds. Repeated questions failed to shake the witness' assertion that Truman H. Newberry knew nothing of the large sums of money used in his race for the Senate. Ford counsel declared that his admissions were "remarkable."

Another witness whose testimony was deemed significant was A. Victor Barnes of New York, vice president of the American Book Co., a brother-in-law of Senator Newberry. Barnes testified to two contributions aggregating $25,000, to the campaign fund. He expressed surprise when told that in the records of the Campaign Committee he was credited with having given $45,000.

When Attorney Lucking, in examining the witness, attempted to get further light on the discrepancy, Senator Spencer reminded him that the records before the Senate subcommittee showed that Barnes had given $25,000. "If there is anything else, develop it," said Spencer.

"We claim," said Lucking, "that this whole thing is fraudulent, and where fraud is charged great liberality in examining a witness is allowed by all courts."

"Proceed with the witness," said Spencer.

Heated Argument in Committee.

Efforts made by the Ford counsel to show that the campaign committee's statement of primary expenditures was "faked" brought on several heated passages between the Republicans and Democrats on the investigating committee. An item of $35,000 caused a wrangle while Charles A. Floyd of Detroit, secretary of the Newberry Organization Committee, was on the stand. It was difficult to solve the mystery of the $35,000, Ford counsel said, because of the destruction of papers at Newberry headquarters after the primary contest. Floyd said that checks covering the amount in question had been issued and sent through the bany merely to adjust the books.

"It is all very plain," said Senator Spencer.

"You will never get the people to believe that," declared Lucking.

Questions on "Nerves"

By DR. LEWIS BAKER

Question: What is "OVERWORKED NERVES"?
Answer: Nervous Exhaustion—NEURASTHENIA.
Question: What are the symptoms?
Answer: Almost as many as the victims.
Question: Which symptoms predominate?
Answer: Victim's ordinary duties cannot be easily accomplished. The bookkeeper can't add; the seamstress can't thread her needle; the business man dreads his office work; the wife abhors her duties; the husband fails in his duties; all are irritable, peevish, surly and gloomy. The victim's "temper" flies off at the least provocation and unhappiness is ever present. All this is caused by deficient metabolic processes, which, simply stated, means that the "nerve food"—or nerve fluid—is not replenished, as nature requires—and the nerve force dwindles. Nerve Force is the power of your body—it is comparable to electric current. Overworked nerves are just like a faulty motor. Repairs must be made. Cadomene is the "mechanic," food, and fuel that your nervous system needs. A two weeks' trial will prove it.—for your blood and nerves should quickly respond to this Cadomene treatment. Cadomene renews the Nerve Force, as no other medicine does, and brings "high spirits." Try it. Any good druggist can supply Cadomene tablets.

How to Make Your Own Complexion Treatment at Home

A Free Oatmeal Prescription Does Its Work Overnight.

New York—"It is my own discovery, and it takes just one night to get such marvelous results," says Mae Edna Wilder, when her friends ask her about her wonderful complexion and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. "You can do the same thing if you follow my advice," she says. "I feel it my duty to tell every girl and woman what this wonderful prescription did for me. Just think of it. All this change in a single night! I never tire of telling others just what brought about such remarkable results. Here is the identical formula that removed every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make in just one application. The prescription which you can prepare at your own home is as follows: Go to any grocery and get 10c worth of ordinary oatmeal, and from any department or drug store a bottle of Derwillo. Prepare the oatmeal as directed in every package of Derwillo. Before applying Derwillo cleanse the skin thoroughly with a good cleansing cream. (Liska cold cream I have found to be the best.) The first application will astonish you. It makes the skin appear transparent, smooth and velvety. I especially recommend it for dark, sallow skin, shiny nose, freckles, tan, sun spots, coarse pores, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles and, in fact, every blemish the face, hands and arms are heir to. If your neck or chest is discolored from exposure, apply this combination there and the objectionable defect will disappear as if by magic. It is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. Since short sleeves are in vogue it is necessary to have beautiful hands and arms and no matter how rough and ungainly the hands and arms, or what abuse they have had through hard work and exposure to sun and wind, this combination will work a wonderful transformation. Thousands who are using it report the same results I have had."

Miss O. C. says: "My complexion was poor and my skin rough. My neck, chest, hands and arms were dark from exposure. The very first application of this wonderful Derwillo-oatmeal combination convinced me that my poor complexion and skin blemishes would soon be a thing of the past. In a few weeks all these unsightly defects had entirely disappeared and I shall always use it to keep my complexion at its best all the time. I have recommended it to my girl friends and they are just as enthusiastic over it as I am. We all use it before going to the theater, dances or parties and it's a wonderful what a difference it makes in our appearance."

Mrs. G. V. writes: "Oatmeal and Derwillo have worked miracles with my complexion. I have many despised wrinkles and a sallow, rough skin. My hands and arms were covered with freckles. After eight weeks' use of Mae Edna Wilder's wonderful complexion prescription these objectionable defects have entirely vanished. I look ten years younger and advise every girl and woman to try it and I feel confident after one or two applications they will use it continually and be just as favorably impressed with it as I am. I recommend it to all of my friends."

NOTE—To get the best effect be sure to follow the complete directions contained in every package of Derwillo, and it is so simple that anyone can use it, and so inexpensive than any girl or woman can afford it. Department stores and druggists guarantee that there will be a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money. It is sold in this city at all toilet counters under a money refund guarantee, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Brothers and the Enderle Drug Co.

TELLS HOW HARD HE WORKED TO EARN $110,000 BEER FEE

Former District Attorney Houts Works Hard for Two Hours Trying to Remember Just How He Worked for Breweries.

Charles A. Houts, former United States District Attorney, who is suing the Independent Breweries Co. and the St. Louis Brewing Association for $110,000 for work he says he did in protecting them from wartime prohibition, worked hard for two hours Friday afternoon trying to remember how hard he worked for that $110,000.

Marion C. Early, attorney for the breweries, wants to know what Houts did. He took Friday the second installment of Houts' deposition before Special Commissioner Clifford B. Allen in the office of Houts' attorney, Morton Jourdan. Early had before him a copy of Houts' petition, in which he mentioned the various phases of the anti-prohibition litigation in which he had participated and upon which he had expended the sweat of his brow.

Early wanted particulars. He wanted to know how many hours or days Houts put in on this or that, and just what he did on those hours or days. He brought out that Houts, as well as the other local lawyers in the case, had received copies of all the briefs and other documents prepared by Elihu Root and the other heavyweight Eastern lawyers for the National Brewers' Association, and that he had conferred with the other local attorneys and in collaboration with them took various steps which were deemed expedient. As for just what he did, and how long he was in doing it, that was not easy to tell. He was a very poor hand at keeping a record of his activities. He had to rely upon his memory and his memory, unfortunately, was not good.

Had it Much in Mind.

It was what he would call a continuous process. It was very important litigation and he had it much in mind. Outsiders called his attention to cases in point. A Chicago lawyer who was in a similar case called him up to talk about it. When the Eastern lawyers sent him a brief he read it and examined some of the cases that they cited. When Root and other big lawyers were arguing at Washington he filed a "psychological" case on behalf of the St. Louis Brewing Association, which was expected to help them. No, he did not write the brief in that case. E. C. Crowe, former Missouri Attorney-General, wrote it, but he, Houts, filed it. It was not necessary to do a great deal of work on that case because there was no intention of pressing it or arguing it.

He did not find any cases in point which the Eastern lawyers had overlooked. Those Eastern lawyers did a good job. His conclusions generally agreed with theirs. There was the question of the constitutionality of the war-time prohibition act. The Eastern lawyers did not believe Congress had power to pass such an act unless an actual state of war existed. He did not believe so either. There were not many authorities but there was room for reasoning and analysis and he did a good deal of that. And he looked up the historical facts having a bearing, as for instance how wars could be concluded. He did not remember the names of the histories he consulted. Histories were not like law books, to be cited by volume and section. The conclusion he reached was that the war-time prohibition law was not in effect. The other lawyers agreed with him on that and he agreed with them. He did not remember which reached that conclusion first. He would say it was "a mutual conclusion." Unfortunately the Supreme Court thought differently.

When it came to an agreement with Walter Hensley then United States District Attorney, that the breweries were no to be molested pending the Supreme Court decision, he was on more certain ground. That was one thing he did without the help of the big Eastern lawyers or the other local lawyers. The result of that was that there were no criminal prosecutions of the St. Louis breweries, and they were permitted to keep on making beer and selling it for nine extra months. His job, as he saw it, was to keep the breweries going and to keep them from being prosecuted. He did that until the United States Supreme Court decided against them and they decided to quit.

The $110,000 which Houts is suing for is 5 per cent of $2,200,000, which he understands, were the profits of the two breweries while he kept them going.

SELPH INQUIRY STARTS, BUT HE'S NOT WORRIED

Postmaster Is Questioned by Two Inspectors Sent Here by Postmaster-General.

Two inspectors from the Postofice Department at Washington, who arrived here Friday night, began yesterday an investigation of conditions in the St. Louis postoffice.

The investigation was ordered by Postmaster-General Hays after complaints against Postmaster Selph's conduct in office had been laid before him by a congressional committee.

The inspectors had a talk with Postmaster Selph in the forenoon, but all declined to disclose the nature of their conversation. The inspectors said that they could not make public statements concerning the investigation for the time being.

"I'm not worried," the Postmaster said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I have been investigated before, and there are no charges against me now."

NEW STYLE HEADLIGHT BARRED

A new style of headlight glass on Ford automobiles recently delivered here does not comply with the city ordinance against glaring headlights in the opinion of Director of Streets and Sewers Fisk and he has announced that he will not approve their use. The new glasses are painted green in the uper half. Director Fisk said they do not throw a glare when permitted to remain in the position in which placed at the factory, but that many owners are raising them, which permits a glare.

Director Fisk said that he had been informed that use of these glases saves 15 cents on the factory cost of each car and that about 2000 cars thus equipped have been delivered here. He said that Police Judge Mix has once or twice ruled that the painted lights do not conform to the ordinance, which provides that headlights must have etched, deformed or ground glass.

Future of "Child Bride" of Ozarks, on Which Townsfolk Disagree, Now Rests With St. Louis Court

Guardianship of 13-Year-Old Luetta Parsons Issue in Suit Following Disposition of Case Growing Out of Killing of Stepdaughter.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FARMINGTON, Mo., June 18.—The scene of action in the case of Luetta Parsons, called the "child bride of the Ozarks," will be removed from Farmington to St. Louis, when, on June 21, the Court of Appears will be asked to make final disposition of it.

The case of the girl, 13 years old, who was permitted to marry a "tie hacker" in the backwoods of the Iron Mountains, 40 years old, and the father of four children, and who, six days after her marriage, caused the death of her stepdaughter, 6, has attracted widespread attention.

Hundreds of letters have been received by persons connected with the legal end of the case at Farmington, county seat of St. Francois County, in which the events took place; letters expressing horror that in a community not 90 miles from St. Louis such a marriage could be culminated; letters protesting against holding a child of 13 for three months in jail pending her trial and later holding her in any way accountable on the charge of murder, and letters expressing a constructive interest in the girl's future welfare.

The protests against holding the girl in jail were founded on fact. She was confined in a cell of the county jail from March 5 to the date of her trial, May 25, most of the time alone, part of the time in company with other women prisoners. But it is said on behalf of the authorities that, although there was much agitation and many expressions of indignation, no responsible person offered, or even would consent to take the child into a private home and care for her. She never was tried on a charge of murder. The case was remanded for trial in the juvenile court, which automatically disposed of the first degree murder charge, legal authority vested in the prosecuting attorney taking this first step in her behalf.

Marriage Enters Into Case.

The fact that she was a married woman, and there was no precedent for trying a married woman in juvenile court, was not taken into account at all. At the preliminary hearing there were witnesses, the same who had gone through the formality of consenting to her marriage, who would have given the impression that she was of age, but evidence produced by her grandparents, with whom she had, at times, made her home in Bismarck, to show where she had been baptised a Catholic and was at the time of the trouble 13 years and three months old, was more acceptable to the Judge.

Her defense that the shooting was an accident was accepted almost without question.

LUETTA PARSONS

"Little Johnnie and Lillie and me," she told the Court, "were playing in the yard, and we decided to go and meet daddie (her husband) who was working in the woods. We ran in the house and I was going to git the shotgun and maybe scare up a squirrel or a rabbit for supper. Lillie ducked between the beds to get her slippers and I took the gun down from the rafters. When I broke it to see if it was loaded it went off and Lillie was dead. I don't know how it happened, but I didn't do it a-purpose."

The impressions that she was being held in custody following her trial were based upon erroneous reports sent out.

It was not due to any lack of mercy on the part of Judge Peter H. Huck of Ste. Genevieve, presiding over the Circuit Court at the county seat, but, on the contrary, to an interest beyond his mere responsibility that he sought to retain her as the ward of the Court for awhile after the trial was concluded.

Judge Huck took an independent stand in the matter, so much so that the very lawyers he appointed to defend the girl as a poor person, inspired by interests not yet clear, took issue with him as overstepping his authority and took legal steps to obtain a writ of habeas corpus which is returnable before the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

Jury's Verdict Overruled.

The Judge, it seems, overruled the jury's verdict, which was to the effect that she was not guilty of manslaughter, as decided upon the point of culpable negligence, that she was not delinquent nor dependent nor neglected nor of unsound mind. The Judge holds she is a neglected child and should remain the ward of the Court until some more suitable environment than that from which she came can be found for her. He preferred to take advantage of authority he claims is his, to accept the jury's verdict only as advisory. He explained his position to the jury afterward, and it is said they thereupon acquiesced in his opinion, acknowledging they had become confused by the speeches of the attorneys directed at showing how their child should be saved from the contaminating influences of a reformatory or other State institution, which fate, they argued, would inevitably follow a judgment of delinquency or neglect or dependence, and unless she were set free to go her way.

Judge Huck, asserting his authority, turned Luetta over to the custody of the probation officer with instructions to find a temporary home for her. One of the defending lawyers, Jerry B. Burks, then came to the fore offering her asylum in his home, to which arrangement the probation officer assented. The habeas corpus suit is a friendly one between Burks and his partner in the case, B. H. Boyer.

And so it is, that it now becomes the duty of the St. Louis Court of Appeals to decide who, if any one, shall have the custody of the girl.

Judge Huck evidently trusts Burks' motives as disinterested, but both Mr. and Mrs. Burks, when interviewed at Farmington, appeared to incline to the idea that the child should, in time, be returned to her grandparents, with whom she was making her home at the time of her ill-fated marriage and who, it develops, are able and willing to provide for her.

"She is a mountain girl," they say, "and would be better off in her native environment." At the same time they discourage Luetta from the idea of returning to her husband. The grandparents will have the marriage annulled, they say.

Wants to Forget Circumstances.

Luetta, herself, when seen at the Burk home, expressed herself as wishing to forget all about the marriage and its unhappy associations. She is said to have told people at the beginning of her trouble that she married Parsons because she was afraid her folks would "whoop her" if she didn't, but she did not express that sentiment to her present interviewer. Parsons has made one appearance in Farmington, but quickly withdrew when told he could not bear witness either for or against his wife.

"My folks always liked John," said Luetta. "He is kin to my stepfather. He is a good man and he was awful good to me. I liked the children and we played together and we got along fine."

She expressed concern for her mother, who, she says, lives on a farm near Leasburg and who could not visit her because she "has spells."

She did not live with her mother because she could not get along with her present stepfather, although she did like a preceding stepfather. Her mother is living with a third husband and Luetta's own father is thought to be living in the infirmary at Farmington.

She is a forlorn little figure, her face puckered with perplexity when her troubles are referred to, but she quickly sheds unhappy memories when some suggestion of childish amusement is offered. Recently, at a neighbor's, she was discovered playing with dolls with other and smaller girls. Her face brightened at the mention of moving pictures, church going and piano playing, and such small diversions as the good people of Farmington since the trial have introduced her to, all new and novel to the backwoods girl.

She was heard singing a church hymn as the interviewer departed. Mrs. Burks said she learned the airs while in the jail, which is next door to a church, although she did not learn the words and now improvises words which sound similar to those she heard.

"Just Cried" While in Jail.

Asked how she occupied herself all those weeks in jail, she responded brightly: "Some ladies fetched me some quilt pieces, but," she added, with a choke in her voice, "I got skeered. I heerd noises in the night, and most of the time I just cried."

Her education has been totally neglected. She cannot read or write. Dr. Eaton, superintendent of the State Hospital at Farmington, who examined her, said that while physically she is over-developed, mentally she has not developed beyond the age of 8.

Among the letters that have been received regarding Luetta is one from a woman lawyer in Chicago wishing to use the evidence in the case as material for instituting a measure making unlawful, under any conditions, the marriage of persons under legal age. At least two writers ask further information with a view to adopting the little girl.

Another letter is from an elderly widower in Minnesota, who gives three banks and the names of two retired farmers as reference, and declares he will come for Luetta, adopt her, send her to school and at his death will her $3000 in money or property. It was with the view of investigating these offers in her behalf that Judge Huck wished to retain her as the ward of his court.

He lost his job because he was not married

The factory where he worked was compelled to reduce its force because there was not enough business to keep it going with full force. Its owners, wishing to minimize the distress which unemployment causes, decided to release the unmarried men. John was not married, so he was let out.

His mother was a widow who had slaved for years, scrubbing and washing, to educate John and his two sisters. Recently both sisters were taken sick—one of them became a hopeless invalid. The mother had to stop work to care for the girls. John's wages were all they had—and John had lost his job.

When the landlord had taken steps to have them ejected because they could not pay rent, the poor woman came to the Provident. The Provident worker sent them some groceries and paid a month's rent. She then saw the foreman at the factory and explained the situation, as John could not do. As a result John is now at work, and the family's distress is ended.

There are thousands of men out of work in St. Louis today. Families of 513 of them were helped by the Provident last month. Think of it—over half a thousand families—nearly two thousand individuals saved from distress by the intelligent use of provisions, money and clothing, and what is equally important, many of them were put back on a self-supporting basis by the Provident.

Do you want this work to stop? The unusual demands made upon the Provident, because of unemployment, have drained the resources of the Association. The business depression also has lessened the contributions received by the Provident. The income has been contracted and the outgo increased by the same cause.

The situation is desperate. The time has come when every St. Louisan must face the responsibility for the suffering of his less fortunate fellow being. There are 100,000 people in St. Louis who can give something. Even if it is only a dollar, give it. It will be the best investment you ever made in St. Louis. It will give you greater satisfaction than any dollar you ever spent.

If you have already contributed, the present need justifies your increasing your contribution.

Today is Provident Sunday. The churches of the city, realizing the need, have set aside this day for helping the unfortunate in St. Louis. If you are going to church today, take an extra contribution with you, and give it to the Provident. If you are not going to church, use this coupon and mail in your contribution.

In fixing the amount, think how you would feel if you had no job, no food, no hope but the Provident.

VALUE OF WATERWAYS FOR COAL SHIPMENTS

James E. Smith, in Peoria Address, Says Freight Saving Would Pay for Construction.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., June 18.—James E Smith of St. Louis, vice president in charge of the waterways of the Mississippi Valley Association, in urging before a waterways conference of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce here last night, that the Illinois waterway for which the State has appropriated $20,000,000, be constructed at once, declared that if Chicago used the waterways to bring one-half its consumption of coal from the Illinois fields, the freight saving would, in two years, pay for the construction cost.

The Illinois waterway project is for a navigable channel connecting the Chicago drainage canal with the Illinois River.

"I had a conference this week," he said, "with the president of one of the largest mining companies in Illinois, whose mines are 15 to 30 miles from the Mississippi River. He said that as soon as the State of Illinois would fix the time for the completion of its waterway that his company would guarantee to provide the necessary loading facilities on the river bank to place upon barges at lowest possible cost any quantity of coal that may be needed for shipment to Illinois River points and Chicago. The company already owns the necessary river frontage to fulfill its promise."

Coal Consumption Increases.

"Chicago at this time," Smith continued, "is consuming annually 30,000,000 tons of Illinois coal and is increasing its consumption at the rate of 1,000,000 tons annually.

"On the single item of sugar, the people of Illinois would save millions of dollars annually by shipping by water from New Orleans. It is estimated that the shipment of sugar consumed in Chicago alone and shipped by that city's merchants into its trade territory would keep five or six fleets of barges busy throughout the year."

Smith told of the extent to which Chicago and Illinois shippers are using the barge line in operation between St. Louis and New Orleans, the shipments being made to and from St. Louis by rail under through bills of lading.

"One of Illinois' greatest manufacturing institutions is now shipping very large quantities of sisal by the barge line from New Orleans to St. Louis, and thence by rail to Chicago," he said. "This large company is now shipping about 18,000 bales of this material per month, of 400 pounds to the bale, or a monthly tonnat of 7,200,000 pounds, at saving of 20 per cent under the cost of through railroad transportation. This same corporation has also shipped since Jan. 1, 300 cars of implements over the same route for export to foreign countries.

"Ask them if they would not like a water haul all the way through to Chicago, which would effect a still greater saving for them?

"Another well-known Chicago manufacturer has shipped by way of the barge line during March, April and May, 19,000,000 pounds of burlap, coming from Calcutta, India, by way of the Suez Canal, at a saving to them in freight rates of over $16,000.

Sugar Coming Up the River.

"There is at this time a barge "en route" upstream with 7000 bags of sugar for Chicago and Wisconsin points.

"There is a constant stream of shipments from a large Chicago packing concern of canned goods going to Memphis and New Orleans, many of which shipments are forwarded to Pacific coast points.

"Within the past week a large Chicago manufacturer has contracted with the barge line for an immediate movement of 60 carloads of bath tubs and accessories to Pacific coast points.

"There is now going down the river a shipment of 2260 barrels of glucose from Decatur to England, each barrel weighing 750 pounds."

Concerning the advice given in some quarters that the construction of the Illinois waterways be delayed for lower costs, Smith declared:

"I venture the assertion that to delay the project for the purpose of saving a few million dollars in original cost will cost the people of Illinois $10 for every one saved."

Smith, in relating the increasing success of the barge line operation between St. Louis and New Orleans said that one of the new towboats was capable of taking 12,000 tons downstream in one tow.

"The tow referred to," he declared, "is equivalent to the capacity of two Atlantic ocean freighters. With two sailings a week, as is planned, the barge line operation will be equivalent to the departure of four ocean freighters from the port of St. Louis each week."

HEAD OF STATE HOME RESIGNS TO TAKE PENNSYLVANIA POST

Miss Franklin Wilson of Industrial Institution Will Have Similar Position in East.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., June 18.—Miss Franklin Wilson, for five years superintendent of the State Industrial Home for Girls located in this city, has presented her resignation to Gov. Hyde. Although her resignation has not been accepted, it is understood it will be and her successor named within a few days.

Miss Wilson has received an appointment as superintendent of the Pennsylvania State Industrial Home for Women at an increase in salary. The Pennsylvania institution is a new one and has only 50 inmates, while the home here has nearly 300. Miss Wilson was offered a place on the Missouri State Prison Board by Gov. Hyde at a salary of $3500, but the Pennsylvania offer has superior advantages.

Miss Wilson leaves Sunday night for Milwaukee where she goes to attend the National Convention of Social Workers.

SAYS HE OBJECTED TO BONDSMAN'S MONOPOLY

Julius A. Razovsky Explains Why He Asked Miller to Let Man Become Surety.

Julius A. Razovsky, State Representative for the Third District, yesterday replied to a statement made by Victor J. Miller, Police Board president, who said at the City Club luncheon Friday that Razovsky had tried to persuade him to accept as a qualified bondsman a man with a police record of 11 arrests on serious charges. Miller added that Razovsky was one of several politicians who had "asked favors" of him.

Razovsky, in his law office in the Times Building, yesterday, said he did not go to Miller asking a favor, and that he did not knowingly recommend the acceptance of a bondsman of bad character.

"I was in the Criminal Court about three weeks ago, "he said, "when Miller came up to me and introduced himself. He said he was glad to see me and asked me to go to lunch with him. I told him I didn't have time. He then said if there was anything he could ever do for me he would be glad to do it.

"About this time the police under Miller's direction began disqualifying bondsmen who had been acting as sureties in petty police cases. The result of this was that all bondsmen except one were barred in the Carr Street Police District, where I live. Many persons complained to me that this bondsman was taking advantage of his monopoly and charging $5 for going on a police bond.

"I complained about this to Miller and he asked me to submit names of men I thought might be acceptable as bondsmen. I submitted two names.

"One of them was the man said by Miller to have been arrested 11 times. I knew nothing about the arrests and in a letter to Miller I asked that this man be considred 'if upon your investigation, you find that he is what you want bondsmen to be.' This man was ready, if accepted, to sign bonds for $1 each. I was acting only in the interest of my constituents who had complained of the high charge being made by the bondsman who had a monopoly."

APPLICATIONS FOR MILITARY TRAINING MUST BE IN BY JULY 1

Students Will Be Accepted for Course at Camp Pike at Government's Expense.

Students in St. Louis high schools and universities who have made application to take the military training in August at Camp Pike must file their blanks with the Citizens' Military Training Camp Association of Missouri at 511 Locust street within the next few days, Col. Albert T. Perkins, chairman of the association, announces. It is the intention of the committee, comprising W. Frank Carter, Col. Perkins, Mayor Kiel, Robert F. Burkham, James W. Byrnes, W. A. Bedell, Horace S. Rumsey, Maj. Samuel T. Stewart, Mrs. Frank V. Hammar and Ira E. Wight, to pass on the applications about July 1.

The committee announces that there is still an opportunity for a number of St. Louis young men to be accepted for this summer camp. All expenses of those accepted will be paid by the Government. In former years those who attended training camps were obliged to pay their own expenses. The local office of the Citizens' Military Training Camp Association of Missouri at the Chamber of Commerce will be kept open daily during the next two weeks from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., except Saturday when the office will close at 1 o'clock. The committee would prefer that the young men who desire to attend this camp, call in person for application blanks. If this is impossible, however, application blanks will be forwarded to them upon request.

MORE TIRE TROUBLE COMING

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Motorists beware the tribulus terrestris. Government weed sharps today issued such a warning against the "puncture vein" of the West and Southwest, an undesirable immigrant from Southern Europe, which probably stowed away in the fleece of sheep sent to this country.

A California man, the report said, reported 70 punctures in one tire committed by tribulus terrestris.

Welcoming the Woodmen

¶ Vandervoort's joins heartily in the welcome of St. Louis to the Modern Woodmen of America.

¶ There is something refreshing in the very name of this prosperous order; in the Summer season we all turn longingly to thoughts of the forest with its deep shades and spicy airs. It is peculiarly appropriate that St. Louis should welcome an organization whose symbols and rituals seek to keep alive the hardy virtues of our ancestors, the pioneers of the great forest region of America; for no city in the United States owes more to this pioneer spirit than does St. Louis.

¶ We are sure that none of our Woodmen friends will feel that St. Louis is wholly unfamiliar ground; for in Maine and California, in Washington and Florida, Woodmen swing St. Louis axes, wear St. Louis shoes, keep warm with the aid of St. Louis furs, and, when they travel, ride in St. Louis cars.

¶ But no one can know St. Louis by merely using its products. This is a home city; and the most precious thing about a home is not anything that is sent out of it, it is the home itself. St. Louis is a great business center, but it is a greater human center, and things which express its peculiar human quality—like the Municipal Theater in Forest Park and Vandervoort's beautiful Music Hall—may only be seen and enjoyed by those who come to us.

¶ It gives Vandervoort's peculiar pleasure to place its facilities at the disposal of the Modern Woodmen and their families during Woodmen week. We trust our friends will make liberal use of any rest rooms, our travel bureau, the free concerts in our Music Hall, and the other service departments of this great store.

¶ We have an especial welcome for those who are visiting St. Louis for the first time, for we know it will not be the last. You will come back to us. Among so large a body of visitors, there must inevitably be many future residents of St. Louis, and we congratulate them upon this experience of contact with the life of their future home. St. Louis is not sectional. We do not say that "it knows no North, no South, no East, no West"—for it knows all of them, understands their viewpoint and qualities and now rejoices to welcome an organization which brings Northerner, Southerner, Easterner and Westerner to share one common hospitality under the emblems of a great fraternal order, whose fellowship and beneficent activities are peculiarly and characteristically American.

It Is Worth a Lot to Feel That Your Principal Is Safe & Its Income Sure

Union Electric's preferred shareholders have this feeling of security.

They know that each share is backed by over $373 worth of income-producing property—more than $300 of it State-appraised public service property.

They know that any time they need their money—as scores have needed it during the past year to buy homes, and hundreds of others to live on until work starts up again—they can bring or send their shares to our office and have them resold at $100 a share, with no charge for the service.

They know that so long as they hold the shares the Company will mail them dividend checks for $1.75 on each share every 90 days—$7 a year on each share.

If you have idle money, or money in an investment with which you are not satisfied, come in and talk this over with us. Or send us your address on the dotted lines below and let us send you full details.

UNION ELECTRIC Light & Power Co.

TO MAKE PREPARATION FOR CENTENNIAL DRAMA

Thomas Wood Stevens, Author of Pageant of St. Louis, Arrives in City Tomorrow.

Thomas Wood Stevens of Pittsburg, author of the Pageant of St. Louis which was presented on Art Hill in Forest Park during 1914, will arrive here tomorrow to begin work on a historic drama on the theme of Missouri's admission to the Union, 100 years ago.

His work will be produced at the Coliseum on the night of Oct. 10, and will run not less than four nights. It will form a part of the St. Louis celebartion of the centenary of the State, which will continue from Oct. 5 to Oct. 15. This celebration is separate and distinct from the State ceremonies which will be held at Sedalia.

According to present plans, the play will cover a period of two or three years, with a prologue of masque-like quality, and an epilogue of an optimistic nature. It will be given under the auspices of the St. Louis Missouri Centennial Association.

Replica of St. Louis Village.

The celebration here will include a reproduction of the village of St. Louis as it appeared in 1821; the replica will be placed on Twelfth street, between Market and Olive streets. Each evening, at the community center thus formed, there will be music and dancing.

On Wednesday night, Oct. 5, there will be a pageant representing Gen. Lafayette's visit to this city; a "Lafayette ball" will follow, to which all St. Louisans and visitors will be invited. On the following day there will be a civic program, in charge of the city of St. Louis. On Friday evening there are to be a trademark parade and a ball, at the latter of which dancers will be required to masque as some trademark. A specially written scenario, depicting in pagentry old and new methods of advertising, will be staged on Twelfth street, under the direction of the Advertising Club of St. Louis.

Community "Sing" Arranged.

On Saturday there is to be an athletic carnival representing 14 divisions of sport, and for Sunday a great community "sing" is planned. There will be no admission charge for any of the events of the first week. Stevens' drama will be the feature of the second week of the celebration.

St. Charles, former capital of Missouri, will celebrate the centennial of the State on Sunday, Aug. 14, under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. The building in which the first Missouri Legislature assembled in 1821 is still standing and in use, and here a memorial tablet will be unveiled. Following this, there will be a parade to Blanchette Park, where a picnic dinner will be served. The proceeds will be donated to a fund for erecting a hospital in St. Charles, under the direction of the Sisters of St. Mary.

PROHIBITION ORGANIZATIONS TO EXTEND THEIR ACTIVITIES

Ernest H. Cherrington of Anti-Saloon League Says Work Will Be Pushed Everywhere.

WESTERVILLE, O., June 18.—It is proposed to increase the activity of organizations working for prohibition in all nations of the world, according to Ernest H. Cherrington, general manager of the publishing interests of the Anti-Saloon League of America, who today announced that the headquarters and printing plant of the Anti-Saloon League and the American Issue Publishing Co. would not be moved from Westerville.

It had been variously reported that the headquarters might be moved to Washington or elsewhere, where it was proposed to establish a printing plant for the World League Against Alcoholism. It has now been arranged, Cherrington said, for the World League Against Alcoholism to have its printing done in the plant of the American Issue here. To take care of the work, enlargement of buildings and facilities will be made. The World League will print temperance literature in many languages and probably will issue a world temperance paper.

The World League is composed of temperance organizations in many countries. William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson is now working for the league in Europe. A meeting of the league will be held in Lausanne, Switzerland, the last week in August. Special activity is to be given to law enforcement in countries which have prohibition, Cherrington said.

WILL REQUIRE MOVING FIRMS TO FILE MOVERS' ADDRESSES

Following Complaints From Credit Men, City Counselor Says Ordinances Will Be Enforced.

An effort will be made to enforce an ordinance passed in 1915 which requires moving companies to file with the City Registrer the old and new addresses of persons whose household goods they move.

A. J. Kruse, superintendent of the Associated Retail Credit Men, complained to City Counselor Caulfield that the moving men were ignoring the ordinance, which was intended to enable merchants to trail "dead beats." The City Counselor said that he would issue police court summons in future violations.

PROMOTERS OF CO-OPERATIVE STORES TO GET CHANGE OF VENUE

Judge Miller Announces He Will Assign Case of Three Men to Cour Outside of St. Louis.

Following the hearing of testimony on a motion for a change of venue yesterday in the Cour of Criminal Correction, Judge Miller announced he would assigne the trial of Clifton C. Fitzpatrick, Oscar H. Damon and Arthur Leeser, trustees of the Co-Operative Association of America, who are charged with a misdemeanor and who are docketed for trial in his court tomorrow, to some other jurisdiction of the State. Clayton and St. Charles were mentioned as probable trial places.

The defendants were indicted last December on the charge that they sold the securities of the association without first complying with the provisions of the State blue sky law by procurin ga license from the State Banking Commissioner's office.

Abraham Frey, representing the defendants, set up the plea in his motion that they could not get a fair trial in St. Louis. He placed witnesses on the stand to show prejudice against the defendants, which, he asserted, was accentuated by newspaper articles about the association and about a speech of Edward J. Brennan, manager of the Better Business Bureau, on "flim flams" June 8.

Prosecuting Attorney oakley opposed the motion and summoned witnesses who testified a fair trial could be had here.

The Co-Operative Association of America was organized to operate chain stores for the benefit of its membership, and has two stores in St. Louis. A jury was selected to tr ythe case April 17, but a mistrial was declared when a juror became ill.

SUBWAY AND "L" ON HODIAMONT LINE PROPOSED

C. H. Butts, Engineer, in Report Recommends Project to Relieve City's Transportation Problem.

As a first step towards realizing a better rapid transit system, Charles S. Butts, engineer of the Department of Public Utilities, proposes that the Hodiamont line be made into a subway from Union Market to Spring avenue, and raised upon an elevated structure from Spring to Maple avenues. The recommendation is contained in his annual report, covering the fiscal year of 1920-21.

It should be possible, in the opinion of the writer to construct the entire project for $3,000,000, when costs of labor and material are reduced. The running time from Wellston to the downtown district would be reduced from 50 to 25 minutes, and the elevated section of the line alone would eliminate 21 dangerous grade-crossings. The length of the elevated would be 3½ miles, and that of the subway 2½ miles.

It is also suggested that cars might be operated to the proposed subway station at Broadway and Morgan street by such suburban lines as the Clayton, Florissant, Ferguson, St. Charles and Creve Coeur Lake.

The elevated structure should be made of reinforced concrete walls, it is said, thus eliminating the noises so objectionable in steel structures. From Spring avenue west, stops would be made only at cross-town lines and prominent streets; from Grand avenue east, there would be stops only at cross-town lines.

"Plans for other subway lines should be devised as soon as possible," the report continues. "We cannot expect to build up our city, especially in the outlying districts, without a more rapid means of transportation than that offered by the surface lines."

In the meantime, it is suggested that the evening congestion of the surface lines would be lessened if downtown stores and offices would arrange to close at 10-minute intervals between 4:30 and 5:30 p. m. Thus the United Railways could handle its passengers in relays, and would not be required to have so many cars on the downtown streets at any one given time.

INGROWN NAILS

Toe Nail Turns Out Itself if you Toughen the Skin

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensative skin underneath the toe nail, that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost overnight.

"Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

STATISTICS ON FOREIGN BORN SHOW 12,498,334 OVER 21

Number Who Took Out First Papers in 1920 Nearly Double Those Apply in 1910.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Of the 13,703,987 foreign-born whites enumerated under the 1920 census, 12,498,334 were 21 years old and over, said an announcement today by the Census Bureau. Of the total 6,928,027 were men and 5,570,307 women.

Of the men, 3,314,317 were naturalized, 1,116,698 had taken out first naturalization papers, 2,138,205 were aliens and 358,547 had not been classed as to citizenship status. Of the women, 2,803,785 were naturalized, 77,558 having taken out first papers and 2,226,690 were aliens. While the returns showed no great change in the proportion of naturalized citizens of foreign birth between 1910 and 1920, the number who had taken out first papers in 1920 was nearly twice as large as in 1910.

CATHOLIC EDUCATIONAL FUND NOW $160,000

Money to Be Presented to Archbishop Glennon on Occasion of His Silver Jubilee.

Monsignor J. J. Tannrath, chancellor of the archdiocese, yesterday announced that $160,000 of the $250,000 fund to be presented to Archbishop Glennon on the occasion of his silver jubilee as a Bishop had been raised, and that $90,000 of this amount has been paid in cash. Some of the largest parishes have not yet made their complete report.

Monsignor Tannrath also announced the program of the jubilee exercises at the new Cathedral June 29.

A pontifical mass will be sung at 10 a. m. in which Archbishop Glennon will participate. A pontifical benediction in the cathedral at 8 p. m. will be followed by a formal reception on the cathedral lawn.

The officers of the pontifical mass will be: Assistant priest, the very Rev. M. S. Ryan, C. M.; Deacons of Honor, very Rev. M. J. O'Connor, S. J., and very Rev. P. Hillary, O. F. M.; Deacons of Mass, Rev. C. L. Vantourenhout, P. R., and Rev. J. Murray; Masters of Ceremonies, Rev. N. Brinkman, Rev. J. P. Spencer, S. T. L., and Rev. M. S. Brennan, D. D.

In the evening exercises following the pontifical benediction Archbishop Glennon will make an address on the cathedral lawn to his parishioners and friends. An orchestra of 40 pieces will furnish music, and the lawn will be illuminated with electric lights and colored lanterns. The general public will be invited to attend these exercises.

A meeting of Catholic women throughout St. Louis will be held next Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at New Cathedral Hall, Lindell and Newstead avenues, under the direction of Mrs. W. T. Donovan, to formulate a resolution of congratulation to the Archbishop on his silver jubilee, and to discuss plans for the participation of the Catholic women of St. Louis in the jubilee ceremonies. Letters will be sent out tomorrow by Mrs. Donovan to the heads of the various Catholic organizations and church societies asking them to request members of all organizations and the Catholic women of their vicinities to attend the meeting.

In an open letter accompanying the announcements Monsigor Tannrath referred to the loyalty of the alumni of St. Louis University in raising an anniversary fund for that institution and called attention to the fact that the fund to be given to the Archbishop is also to be used for educational purposes in the building of a new Catholic High School, so that those who cannot afford a university education may have an opportunity to obtain a free Catholic education.

DOWNTOWN EXHIBITIONS TO PROMOTE ART INDUSTRY

"St. Louis Must Stop Exporting Artists, and Begin Exporting Works," Says Art League Secretary.

A series of art exhibitions, to be held in the downtown headquarters of the Art League, in the Planters Hotel, is being planned by committees of the league. The exhibitions are designed to stimulate financial support of art, through the purchase of the works of St. Louis artists by residents of this city and visitors.

"St. Louis should stop exporting artists, and begin exporting art," said F. E. A. Curley, secretary of the Art League, in announcing yesterday the plan for the exhibitions.

"A large collection of paintings, sculpture and art handicraft has been gradually assembled at the Planters Hotel headquarters, and it demonstrates that St. Louis has a group of effective producers. They have established an industry as worthy of the fostering care of our business organizations as any other industry which St. Louis has."

The exhibitions will include the graphic arts, and art work for business or commercial purposes, and in industrial design, will be featured.

In the present exhibition, paintings form the chief element, though works of sculpture and handicraft, such as objects of jewelry, are also shown. Among the pictures which have received prizes in previous exhibitions are "The Gossips," by O. E. Beringhaus; "Study," by Gustav F. Goetsch, and "O Source of Power," by Paul F. Berdanier's canvas depicting the Mississippi River.

HIGHWAY BOARD MEMBER QUITS

E. L. Sanford, Springfield Banker, Sends in Resignation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18.—E. L. Sanford, a Springfield (Mo.) banker, today sent to Gov. Hyde his resignation as a member of the State Highway Commission, a position to which he was appointed some time ago by Gov. Gardner. Sanford said that the press of his personal business would prevent his full attention to the duties of the office, which he feels will be important in the near future. He is a Democrat. Gov. Hyde probably will not appoint a successor because the Legislature is expected to reorganize the State Highway Commission.

256 Births, 181 Deaths Last Week.

There were 256 births and 181 deaths recorded in St. Louis last week. Twenty-six persons died of cancer, 20 of heart disease, 16 of pneumonia, 13 of diseases of the circulatory system, 13 of Bright's disease and 9 of tuberculosis. There were four accidental deaths, one suicide and one homicide.

OLD CLOTHING IS REQUESTED

The collection of old clothing for the Near East Relief, which has been going on during the past week, will be continued until next Saturday. The relief organization here has requested the public to ransack houses from garret to basement for cast-off clothing for the refugees of the near East. Clothing possessing considerable warmth is especially desired.

Laundry wagon drivers will accept the bundles of clothing for delivery to the Near East Relief or bundles may be sent to the relief's warehouse at Ninth and Gratiot streets.

QUARRY HELD TO BE DANGEROUS

Police Recommend Better Fence Around Place, 80 Feet Deep.

Police of the Mounted District have reported to the Department of Public Safety that a quarry at Wilson and Famous avenues which is about 80 feet deep and holds about 40 feet of water is dangerous and should be fenced for the protection of children. They reported that two-strand wire fence of poor construction is the only safeguard and that children swim in the water daily.

The man in charge of the quarry told policemen that he would be responsible for any accident that might occur, but it was recommended that he be compelled to erect a proper fence.

ANCIENT WORKS OF ART ON VIEW AT MUSEUM

Chaldean or Babylonian Vases in Collection Said to Be 4000 Years Old.

The City Art Museum is now showing an extensive collection of objects in stone, pottery, glass and metal, illustrating the development of the decorative arts from a period approximately 2000 years B. C. until the eighteenth century A. D. The pieces on view were selected during a recent visit to New York City by S. L. Sherer, administrator of the Museum, and are now under consideration as possible acquisitions by the Museum. Two of the rarest of these objects, and also the oldest and most primitive in form, are vases, one of stone and the other of pottery, of Chaldean or Babylonian workmanship, said by archeologists to date from about 2000 B. C. The stone vase is about 10 inches high, of cylindrical form, with a geometrical decoration of incised lines. The pottery vase is smaller but of similar style, appearing in fact to be an imitation of the stone ware in a cheaper material. Three alabaster vases from Egyptian tombs illustrate with their fraceful forms and finished workmanship, a further development of the technique of carving vessels in stone.

Historic Types of Pottery.

The collection contains a number of interesting and historic types of pottery of great antiquity and rarity. One of the most important of these is a large and well preserved vase of the Roman period, about 100 A. D., from the tombs at Maarra in Syria. It is 10¾ inches in height and is glazed in blue-green with a decoration of black lines. A green glazed Syrian pottery cup, also from Maarra, illustrates another extremely rare type, dating from about the time of Augustus Caesar. It is of pale terra cotta ware of a yellowish tone on the interior and with a bluish-green powdery glaze on the exterior. There are two circular handles parallel with the rim and a decoration of seven alternating rows of bosses of peculiar form, said to be symbols of the sun. Two pieces of Rakka ware, seventh and ninth century A. D., of an unusual wine color, complete the group of potteries.

Two mosaic or millefiori glass cups of the Augustan period, found near Aleppo in Syria, are examples of the most beautiful wares produced by the glass workers of antiquity. Made up of numerous small pieces of glass, apparently cut from vari-colored glass rods and fused together, they present a fascinating variety of color which makes them eagerly sought by collectors. Of somewhat similar technique are two rare glass vases of amphora form, of Egypto-Syrian workmanship, dating from about 500 B. C. They are made from rods of glass of different colors spun over a core and not blown like the glassware of modern times. By manipulating the colors used the craftsman has produced in the present examples a so-called "peacock feather" design which is of unusual beauty.

Antique Bronze Pieces on View.

The antique bronze pieces on view include an ornamental handle from an Etruscan water urn of the third century, B. C.; a Roman helmet of the first century B. C.; a large bronze hydria of the Alexandrian period, third century, B. C.; a Hellenistic trulla or pan of fine design, an antique mirror and other objects. It is interesting to note that the early Roman helmet is not dissimilar in form to those employed in modern warfare. Several valuable pieces of silver are included in the group, one of the most interesting of which is a quaint silver gilt spoon of the late seventeenth century from Nuremberg, the handle of which is provided at the bottom with a ring through which the finger may be passed. Other silver objects include an elaborate Persian writing set, two sixteenth century English coffee pots, a chased muffinier by Paul de Lamerie, most celebrated of the eighteenth century English silversmiths, and a pair of silver gilt candlesticks in the Adam style, of an unusually chaste and dignified design. Another interesting example in metal work is a small seventeenth century clock from the Schloss collection. This quaint old timepiece is in the form of a flat box mounted on four low legs, with the dial on the top surface and an intricate decoration of figures and arabesques on the sides.

The group on display also includes three architectural fragments—the first objects of this nature to be shown at the museum—which should be of considerable interest to students of architecture. The oldest of these fragments is an elaborately carved base of a Greek candelabrum of the fourth century, B. C. This base is of triangular pyramidal form, of Pentelic marble, and is carved in relief with animals, storks and festoons. A composite capital represents an interesting phase of Roman architecture, and an ornate fifteenth century finial from South France presents a late though characteristic example of the Gothic style. The majority of these objects will probably remain at the museum throughout the summer, pending their consideration by the Board of Control.

MAKING RUGS IS HOBBY OF MINER JUST MADE RICH

COAL WORKER LEFT $100,000 BY UNCLE

Marissa (Ill.) Man Now Independent, but He Says He Will Keep Working—Will Quit Mine Job, However.

Rugs and bugs will from now on be the ruling hobbies at the home of Edward M. Brown of Marissa, Ill., south of Belleville, since he has received an inheritance of $100,000. Brown has quit his former job as a coal miner and will devote himself to the weaving of rugs. His father-in-law, Thomas Keyworth, 76 years old, has resigned as janitor of the public school, and will spend his time in making collections of insects.

Brown, as became known last Tuesday, received a specific bequest of $50,000 under the will of his uncle, Daniel Fraser, who was vice president of the National Bank of Washington, D. C. Word has since been received that the value of the fortune was underestimated by $300,000, and that Brown will receive an additional $50,000. Fraser, a widower, left an estate estimated at $700,000.

Clad in overalls and smoking a pipe, Brown was busy at his loom when a Post-Dispatch reporter visited the two-story frame house in Marissa. Mrs. Brown, in a gingham frock, was busy at her housework. Their two sons, George 17, and Wilford, 16, were practicing at the piano and violin in another room.

College Education for Boys.

"The only thing my wife and I ever worried about," said the father, with a gesture towards the sounds, "was giving the boys a college education. That's settled now. George can be an engineer and Wilford can study what he likes. I was the only one in my family who didn't get much schooling, and I've missed it. Maybe we'll all travel a bit when the boys finish school here."

Brown said that he would make little change in his way of living except that he will mine no more coal. But he will continue the habit of years in rising every morning at 5:30.

"I have to do some work," continued Brown, who is 49 years old. "I'd be lost without it. During spare hours, and when the mines were shut down, I used to weave rugs, in which I always found great pleasure. Now I can give all my time to it.

Could Start Rug Factory.

"There is such a demand for my rugs that I could start a factory if I wished. But I don't want to go into business. I want just enough work to keep me occupied."

Brown then related the strange circumstance under which he first made the acquaintance of his uncle. At the age of 14, Brown ran away from his home in Scotland and came to the United States as a stowaway. Fraser had been here several years, but the lad was too proud to seek aid. He got a job as delivery boy for a grocer in Philadelphia.

One day he fell ill, and his landlady, looking through his effects, found Fraser's address and wrote to him. Some days later, when the boy returned to work, he was hitching up a wagon in the stable, when two strangers, a man and a woman, accosted him. They proved to be Fraser and his wife.

Good Friends Afterward.

"We were good friend ever after," said Brown. "My uncle always remembered us at Christmas, and visited us several times. He remarked casually three years ago that he'd see the boys got a good education. But none of us expected such a bequest as this. We had no idea that my uncle had so much money."

After leaving Philadelphia, Brown wandered over most of the United States as a cowpuncher, photographer and rodman in a construction gang. He settled at Marissa 20 years ago, and has worked there ever since as a coal miner, except for six months spent in a St. Louis foundry in 1919.

His own thrift had placed him in comfortable circumstances prior to his windfall. He had a bank account, an automobile, and a 10-room house of his own, shaded by oak trees, with a lawn and garden. He has served as a member of the Township Council and also of the Township School Board.

FIRE IN MAN'S GRASS SKIRT SUBJECT OF TRIAL TOMORROW

DES MOINES, Ia., June 18.—The man accused of setting fire to Charlie Cain's grass skirt, which he wore to advertise a motion picture show, will be declared guilty or not guilty Monday. The hearing of Chester Dodge, the accused, was begun yesterday in Municipal Court, but a principal witness could not be found today. Dodge admitted that a spark from a match with which he was lighting a cigarette was responsible for the fire, but he did not make any admissions regarding Cain's mad flight down Locust street with his Hawaiian costume in flames.

Cain was in the hospital several days. He has since resumed his advertising job and has changed his costume.

HERTENSTEIN WILL FILE COMPLAINT WITH SCHOOL BOARD

Union President Says School Principal Gave Teacher Statement From "Open Shop" Firms.

Charles Hertenstein, president of Typographical Union, No. 8, said yesterday that he would file a complaint with the Board of Education concerning an alleged incident reported by the son of one of the members.

Graduation exercises were held Thursday at the Gardenville School, he said, and while they were in progress the principal went into the eighth grade room and gave to the teacher a statement from the employing printers, inviting the pupils to go to their shops and learn the printing trade during their vacation.

Many of the larger printing employers have bound themselves to the open shop for five years. Hertenstein said that the union should have been permitted to state its side of the controversy to the pupils.

The Day of Corns

is over for the folks who know

They stop the pain, then end the corn completely.

Their method is Blue-jay, either liquid or plaster.

They apply it by a touch. The corn is then forgotten until it loosens and comes out.

The inventor was a chemist who studied corns for many years. The maker is a surgical dressing house of world-wide repute.

Blue-jay makes harsh methods unnecessary. It is gentle, yet nothing could be more efficient. It makes paring ridiculous, for paring is dangerous, and it never could end a corn.

Watch the effect on one corn. It will change all your ideas. It will win you as it has won millions, to this newer, better method. Do this for your own sake.

The best time is tonight.

SHORT INTEREST IN CONTROL OF STOCK MARKET

Cables Report Reparation Commission to Permit Future Payments in European Currencies — Exchange Market Steadies.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Reaction has prevailed in most of the financial markets during the past week, not so much in response to marked change in underlying conditions as to skillful manipulation by the short interest and the immediate necessities incidental to a tax date. In the stock market a certain amount of real liquidation undoubtedly has occurred, but the dominating influence of short selling has been clear. The tactics of the shorts consisted simply in attacking one group of stocks after another, the spectacular success achieved in the case of Mexican oil issues being followed by sharp attacks on sugar, tobacco, steel and equipment stocks, weak accounts were dislodged and demoralization was produced in speculative sentiment. Trade news, to be sure, was not of an encouraging character, as is likely to be the case at this time of the year, but the markets, for that matter have not been supplied with anything remarkable in the way of news for some time and the declines forced during the week were quite out of proportion to any new developments. Cotton's loss of over a cent brought the price back practically to the low of the year and clearly reflected the tiring out of the longs, together with their necessities, and the disappointment occasioned by the decision of the British coal miners to continue their strike. The latter event is indeed discouraging, suggesting the possibility as it does of an indefinite postponement of a settlement, with all that this implies with regard to a continuation of the existing paralysis of British industry. The result is the more unfortunate since this particular dispute has come to be regarded as a sort of test case to determine whether labor is going to accept gracefully its share of the readjustment in prices and values or whether such a result will come only after a long-drawn-out and expensive period of depression. It is not too early to conclude, however, that the possibilities in the way of a settlement have been exhausted.

Foreign Exchange Steadier.

"One market to which the week has brought hopes of greater steadiness is that concerned with foreign exchange. An abrupt cessation has occurred in German paying of dollars which had been exercising such a disturbing effect on the allied exchanges, and the cables bring reports that the Reparation Commission has changed its policy so as to permit future payments to be in European currencies. Such a development is logical and is consistent with the appearance of the market during the week so that the expectations of steadier exchange conditions which have been entertained by certain close European observers seem well founded. Taking a broad view the developments here emphasize the fact that while the reparations payments give rise to perplexing problems, ways for solving the latter certainly can be found. Even though a certain amount of reaction has prevailed in the grain markets, it is still true that the farmer's position is greatly strengthened by the rally in grain prices which has occurred since the middle of April. Crop prospects are on the whole, excellent, and the cost of production for the new crops is greatly below that of last year. Taken altogether, it would appear that the farmer himself is prepared to bear his part in the general liquidation, which is as Gov. Harding has pointed out, relatively less severe than in the case of the financial and industrial communities, with considerably greater cheerfulness than many of his champions suggest.

Call Money Cheaper.

"Call money is again cheaper, partly as a result of technical circumstances associated with the shifting of funds incidental to the tax date, and all signs point to a continued gradual easing of commercial credit conditions in this country. Some misconceptions appear still to exist, however, regarding the true nature and functions of a credit. Thus there still appear to be those who believe that the one cure for depression, loss of foreign trade, or any other commercial misfortune lies in the extension of some kind of credits. Such an consummating a sale and that other that credit terms are only one feature in concluding, however, that the possibilities in the way of a settlement have been exhausted.

GREATER WORLD BANKING CAPITAL BELIEVED NEEDED

British Banking Authorities Base View on Anticipated Unlikelihood of a Return of Commodity Prices to Pre-War Level.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, June 18.—A growing appreciation exists of the desirability of an early establishment of our indebtedness to you on a business basis. We fully recognize and appreciate your desire not to hustle Great Britain in this matter, but it is considered that two important advantages are to be gained by an early and businesslike settlement. In the first place, obligations, even between closest friends, sometimes occasion misunderstandings; and nothing is more essential at the present time than close understanding and co-operation between America and Great Britain. Moreover, it is believed that such an understanding is steadily increasing.

Great Need for Economy.

In the second place, the Government and people of Great Britain need every possible reminder of the necessity for economy and industry in order to retrieve the economic position; and the postponement of our external war obligations would not be helpful in that direction. Such a reminder is the more necessary because, by reason of the coal strike our Government's financial embarrassments concerning its internal obligations are increasing. The probability of a deficit in the current year's finance will itself involve heavy borrowing from the Bank of England, while the Government's maturing internal obligations over the next few years are great.

Distrust occasioned by the Government's extravagancies and bureaucratic tendencies is so strong that it probably will be difficult to float a voluntary loan except on impossible terms. Hence the greater likelihood of borrowing from the bank and on treasury bills, which may cause an increase in inflation, thus aggravating both economic and social problems here. In fact, while fully admitting the possibility of a temporary improvement in sentiment if the coal strike is settled, I regard the financial and economic outlook here most seriously, and matters, of course, will become worse if continued drouth should seriously affect European harvests.

Reginald McKenna's suggestions concerning the method of German reparation payments have excited considerable attention. The whole speech brings into clear relief the extent to which trade currents in the coming year may be determined by present conditions regarding international indebtedness and the methods affecting repayments. The impression grows that German reparations payment are likely to cause less disturbance to American exchange in the future.

More Production at Lower Prices.

If the coal strike is settled this week, I expect a 6 per cent bank rate next Thursday, but if labor troubles drag out longer I doubt if the rate will be reduced this year. It is increasingly apparent that the great problem of the banking authorities in Britain and America is to encourage production activities by supplying financial facilities, while at the same time discouraging any kind of activities making for higher prices of commodities, as the latter would have a reactionary effect on wages and the cost of production. Banking authorities, moreover, believe that in view of the unlikelihood of a return of commodity prices to the pre-war level, a general increase in the world's banking capital is urgently required if trade activities are to be soundly financed.

London Wool Sales Close.

LONDON, June 18.—At the wool auction sales today 8692 bales were offered. The sales closed with poor demand at current rates, except for cross-breeds, which sold in favor of the buyers. However, the bulk of the offerings were sold.

Good merinos closed 5 per cent to 10 per cent above the May closing rates, while superior cross-breds were 5 per cent dearer. Medium and coarse grades were 5 per cent lower.

During the sales the home trade bought 2,000 bales and the Continent 70,000. The number of bales held over was 4000.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Cotton goods were quieter today. Yarns inclined toward firmness. Knit goods were active in women's lines, but quiet in men's. Certain lines of hosiery advanced. Burlaps were firm. Wool goods steady and silks in moderate demand.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Deduction of the Federal Reserve Bank rate to 6 per cent—the second cut within two months—came this week as expected. It served to make very clear what ever else is the matter with the business and financial situation, restriction of credit is no longer a factor. The lowering of the rate on commercial discounts is, on the one hand, proof that the banking authorities are satisfied with the progress made during the last six months in deflating loans and note issues, and on the other hand, it is a notification to the business community that the credit strain has passed and that it is safe to let down the bars which were raised against loan expansion a year ago.

That this assurance has had so little effect either upon the trade movement or upon the situation in Wall Street simply goes to show that the part which the credit tension has been playing in the great decline of the past eight months, has been a good deal overrated. Raising of the Federal Reserve discount checked the wild speculation in securities and in commodities a year and a half ago and the difficulties placed in the way of commercial borrowers accelerated the business decline.

But the credit troubles were not the supreme influence in the markets of 1920-21 that they were in the crisis of 1907. The banking difficulties were of subordinate importance to the commercial difficulties. The foremost problem was to restore inflated industrial price level and an inflated production to a normal peace basis without involving a crash.

Not being the prime factor in the situation, the passing of the money stringency has not availed to turn the tide in business affairs or to stop the break in stocks. Money during the last few days has literally gone begging in Wall Street. It is a reminder that very low call money rates are more often than not an accompaniment of slack trade. For instance, during the acute depression in the steel market of 1903—a situation somewhat like the present one—call funds were offered on the Stock Exchange at 2 per cent and were pressed upon borrowers at this figure while stocks were tumbling precipitately.

The Trade Situation.

There have been several times this year when it has looked as if the worst that had happened or could happen in trade conditions had been discounted by the enormous shrinkage in security prices. Those who have ventured an assertion to this effect have not been wrong simply because the stock market has kept on going down. What we are seeing now is not a reasoning process of readjustment of securities to the straightened business conditions. The movement of the last few weeks has been unreasonable and largely artificial.

It has been the market over-discounting trade depression, in precisely the same manner, and to precisely the same extent, that it exaggerated the prosperity of two years ago. Short selling has been conducted with the same recklessness that characterized the speculative boom of October, 1919. The sequel cannot be doubted although nobody is able to tell just when the turn will come. Whether or not the activities of bear traders will be able to make a further impression, there is no hesitation in calling the present price level very low, in saying that it has, in many instances, overmeasured the reduction in company profits and the lowering and passing of dividends, and brought stocks below their intrinsic values.

One of the remarkable features of the situation is that investment bonds should have responded so little to the rise in the purchasing power of the dollar and to the decline in money interest. Other things being equal, these changes ought to lower the income return from securities of fixed rates, that is raise their cost to the investor. Ultimately this must be the consequence of deflation in commodity prices and the piling up of a money surplus.

Flood of Securities.

But at the moment these forces are counterbalanced by the flood of new securities which has been pressing upon the market during the last year, representing the rush of foreign Governments and home corporations to raise money which they could not do while war loans had the call. These demands have been so urgent that, so far from the borrower getting better terms he has had to make more and more concessions.

Still there is no question that the investment resources of the country have been unduly taxed. A most encouraging incident of the week is the heavy oversubscription to the $500,000,000 joint note and certificate issue of the Government. The Treasury Department has found that it can readily sell three-year notes, and if this demand continues in the same way for subsequent offerings, the problem of distributing and postponing settlement of the $7,500,000,000 floating obligations maturing in 1922-23 will have been solved. This problem was quite as vexing a one as that of the new revenue bill.

Rails Weak Saturday.

Speculation shifted its attention this morning to shares of the so-called "weaker rails." The movement started in New Haven, with the appearance of large blocks of stock pressed for sale at new low record prices. Naturally, this revived the unfavorable rumors which have been circulated every time in the last year or so that New Haven stock has broken.

The point was made against the weaker rails that the relief proposed from the wage reduction may not be sufficient to tide some of them over the present period of depression. On the strength of this argument the low priced railway group were offered down all around, and the demonstration finally involved dividend payers, like Pennsylvania, Canadian Pacific, Reading and New York Central. Chesakeape & Ohio, not having fully discounted the second postponement of its dividend, had another bad break.

Among the industrials there were the usual collection of individual weak spots. Among these were some of the low-priced oils, particularly Sinclair and Invincible, Harvester, American Sumatra and Coca Cola. But the market had precisely the same characteristic as on previous days, namely, that the extreme weakness in these specialties did not upset in the least the general list. Short selling made headway only in these few quarters. It failed to bring out any general liquidation and in the majority of the industrials there was a distinctly better tone. Sterling exchange was a bit higher, but dealings were of no importance.

The Bond Market.

Railway bonds were generally soft in the market today, accompanying the weakness in railway stocks. There were no very notable declines but prices were manifestly slipping. New Haven debentures slowed down from 60½ to 60, and the New York, Westchester and Boston 4½s were off a fraction, this in sympathy with the drop in New Haven stocks. St. Paul general 4s fell a point between sales from 65 to 64. Missouri Pacific 4s got down below 52. D. & R. G. refundings lost half a point to 42¼. Erie convertibles felt the decline in Erie stocks, and Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5s made a new low at 79. St. Louis & San Francisco incomes were heavily traded in, but were supported when they got down to 50½.

In the industrial division the tendency was toward lower prices also. Goodyear 8s sold down from 99¼ to 98½. Cuba Cane 7s kept at their low of 69 and so did Cuban-American 8s at 97½. Sinclair 7½s were supported at 92, and gave a good account of themselves on the day, considering the weakness in the stock. Liberty Bonds were substantially unchanged and so were foreign obligations. The only feature in the latter group was a drop in Mexican 5s from 47⅜ to 46⅜.

New Haven.

Breaking to 14¾, New Haven stock established a new low record for the year and this meant a new low for all time. The decline did not have the appearance of a bear raid primarily. It occurred on uncommonly large transactions. In the balance sheet at the close of 1920 New Haven showed a profit and loss deficit of $31,824,000, and here is the main trouble. New money is badly needed, and it is, of course, impossible for New Haven to float new securities on any but exorbitant terms. Interest is due on $38,000,000 convertible debenture 6 per cent bonds in July and it was this which formed the principal topic of discussion today

CATTLE MARKET LOWER AS DEMAND IS SLACK

Hog Prices Respond to Sharp Reduction in Receipts—Lambs Range Down.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.	Last wk.	Prev. wk.	Year ago.
Cattle, calves	18,318	23,482	28,717
Hogs	55,732	67,045	49,580

Horses, mules	514	790	1,377
Totals	103,524	148,734	102,928

Under fair receipts and a moderate to light demand, cattle and lambs showed further decline at the St. Louis National Stock Yards the past week. Hogs also ruled lower the fore part of the week, but rallied later and closed slightly higher for the period. Receipts of cattle and calves at 18,318 head comprised a large portion of common grass stock, also a moderate number of fair to medium qualified steers of medium and heavy weights. The market ruled steady the first two days of the week in virtually all departments, followed by a material decline Wednesday, the market for butcher stock Compared to a week ago beef steers averaged 25c lower, some of the heavier kinds 50c down. The top in this department was $8.75 per cwt., paid early in the week for medium weight heaves. Heavier lots topped at $8.50. Light-weight steers and heifers mixed sold up to $9 per cwt. The bulk of all native steers ranged in price from $7 to $8. Texas steers selling from $5.35 to $7.15. Eastern order buyers bought moderate supplies, though local packers furnished the principal outlet. Butcher cattle of all kinds closed lower. Yearlings finished 25@50c down, with the loss in butcher cows amounting to 25@50c in spots. Beef and bologna bulls also show a break of 25@50c for the week. The bulk of yearlings sold from $5.25 to $8; butcher cows, $4@5.50; canner and cutter cows, $2@3; beef bulls, $4@5, and bolognas $3.50@4.25. Stocker and feeder cattle finished steady to easier for the week on the moderate business transacted. Veal calves advanced sharply for the week, top Friday at $10.50, comparing with $9.50, the high level previous, or a cut of more than one-third. Price fluctuations were exceedingly narrow, as was also true of the daily spread in prices. Medium and strong weight hogs and are mostly upward and are selling practically at the top, at the present time. The volatile top was $8.35, as against $8.20 a week previous, while the bulk on closing day this week ranged from $8.25@8.30, as against a spread of $7.90 to $8.10 one week ago. Hogs weighing 270 pounds sold up to $8.25, with 300 pounds and better from $8@8.15. This is the narrowest spread of the season. Good weight pigs sold around the top generally, but lighter kinds are less popular than formerly and sell from 25 to 50 cents under the top. Roughs are quotable 25@50c higher, or from $7@7.25. The low-level of the season was recorded on Tuesday, when the top worked down to $8.05. The highest price of the week was paid on the close, being $8.35.

Lamb Prices Lower.

Continued liberal receipts the past week had a seriously depressing effect on the lamb market, which closed $1.50 lower than a week ago. Choice handy-weight spring lambs, which sold on the late market the preceding week are at the present time bringing only $10.50, and they have to be very good. The cull end is selling unchanged at $8, but salesmen during the week complained of unusually heavy sorts in most cases, especially where the lambs were not of the best. Sheep continue at the lowest point in years, but reflect no change in a price way as compared with last week. Choice handy-weight ewes bring $4 and heavy kinds $3. Canners sell from 50c to 75c, or not enough to pay charges. Choppers and bucks are quotable from $1.50@2. Receipts, while small in comparison with the preceding week's heavy supply of 37,417, were nevertheless large, totaling 26,672, this being the second largest run of the year.

Horse Trade Falls Off.

The quiet season of the year is at hand at the horse market. Receipts and demand have fallen off perceptibly the past week, not to exceed 300 horses arriving on commission, and mule receipts aggregating only about 50 head. Though an early clearance of supplies was made, the market was rather slow under an indifferent demand.

The demand for horses from the South has fallen off almost completely. There continues some call for Pennsylvania chunks and medium-priced big horses, though this demand is uncertain and may fall off any time. The general market the past week showed a further decline of $5@10 per head, reducing values $15@25 during the past month.

Range horse sales will start in July, and this is expected to stimulate a larger demand for native stock.

Mules Quiet; Values Steady.

Under exceedingly light receipts and a correspondingly limited demand, trading in commission mules last week was the smallest in some time.

GRAIN PRICES ARE IRREGULAR IN TRADING AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 18.—Chicago Board of Trade operators had their eyes on the weather map and their ears tuned to reports from the grain fields today. Forecasts of cooler and unsettled weather and expert opinions that wheat rust reports were premature turned the market downward after a fairly strong opening, and all options closed near the low point of the short session. Wheat showed net losses of 1¾ to 2¾c, corn of 1¼c to 2c, and oats ¼c to ⅝c. Provisions, influenced by a strong yards market, finished unchanged to 7½ higher.

Wheat started 2@2¼c higher, the early belief being that the hot, dry weather was forecast to continue. Commission houses appeared on the selling side early and private report from Winnipeg predicting a spring wheat crop of 360,000,000 bushels for Canada, helped weaken the market. This was accented by domestic predictions and by the Oklahoma Board of Agriculture's statement that the acreage in that State was some 1,000,000 higher than preliminary estimates, price fluctuations were rapid, but the early gains were only partially held at the close the market was 3c to 5c under the top price.

Corn and oats followed wheat, the course of the former being hastened when some Eastern houses reversed Friday's attitude and sold corn. Country offerings were reported as fairly liberal and crop reports generally excellent.

Provisions resisted the grain influence because of an upturn in hogs and a trade report by a prominent house that European demand showed signs of reviving. Trade, however, was dull.

HOT WEATHER AND RUST TALK FIRM GRAIN LIST

Hot weather with apprehension of possible damage from black rust made wheat prices jump to a new high record for the season, during the past week.

Notwithstanding that hot weather was conceded to promote progress of the harvest in the winter crop states, the majority of wheat traders gave attention chiefly to the spring crop, inasmuch as high temperatures were said to have inflicted injury in the Northwest, especially in South Dakota, with black rust looming as a menace. Meanwhile, the winter crop in Ohio and Indiana was reported as also deteriorating. Bulges in price, however, led to increased offerings from the country, and a sharp reaction followed. On the other hand, assertions that black rust had appeared in Minnesota as well as in South Dakota tended to make the bull side renew the aggressive. With apprehension current that the hot wave would last for several days, the upward swings of the market received additional impetus, and it was contended that no important accummulation of stocks would take place during July.

Possibility of a drouth scare gave some strength to corn. Oats were influenced by adverse crop reports.

Provisions derived firmness from gossip that packers were in receipt of $5,000,000 from Germany.

Lower Price Trend Saturday.

Reports of drouth in Argentina, and of dry weather damage in the Spring wheat States made the wheat market open strong and higher on the Merchant's Exchange Saturday, and reports of free bidding at the Gulf for export sent prices up in early trading. Private estimates of a Canadian yield of 360,000,000 bushels, and estimates of a crop in Kansas of 127,000,000 bushels later took all of the strength out of the market, and prices declined rapidly, but were subject to frequent fluctuations. In the local cash market buyers held off until after the close, but there were numerous orders from outside millers, and exporters, and large part of the offerings were taken, at 1 to 2c lower prices. July wheat closed 2¼c lower, 1½c up from the bottom, and 3¾c down from the top for the day. September wheat closed at the bottom, 3c lower, and 3¾c down from the top for the day.

Corn followed wheat, but there was little news to influence prices. Receipts were smaller, and the cash demand was very slow at ½ to 1c lower prices. July corn closed 1¼c lower, ⅝c up from the bottom, and 4c down from the top for the day. September corn closed 1¾c lower, ⅝@¾c up from the bottom, and 1¼@¾c down from the top for the day.

Cash oats were so dull that most of the offerings were carried over. July oats closed ¾c lower, ⅛@¼c up from the bottom and ¼c down from the top, and September oats closed at the bottom, ¾c down from the top, and the same as the close on Friday.

St. Louis grain receipts Saturday were: Wheat, 41 cars local, and 53 through. Corn, 21 cars local and 13 through. Oats, 24 cars local and 13 through.

Northwestern car lots Saturday were: Duluth, 154; Winnipeg, 289.

VILLA TEACHES 800 FOLLOWERS TO ADOPT AGRICULTURAL LIFE

Former Bandit Has Colony on 500,000 Acres, and Has Started Schools.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—An official report today from a Government agent who recently visited Francisco Villa's farm in Mexico, said the former bandit was living contentedly among 800 of his followers who now form a farming colony on about 500,000 acres of land in Northern Durango.

In six months, the report said, the colony had 50,000 bushels of wheat ready for the market from several thousand acres under cultivation, planted also in corn, beans and vegetables.

Villa has started schools to accommodate 500 children, and arranged with the Mexican Government to provide teachers.

Villa is regarded by the colonists as chief and instructor, and, the agent said, he had taught honest work to hundreds of former marauders.

Municipal Opera "The Fortune Teller" Unique Because Hero Is a Basso .·. Movies Get "Peter Ibbetson" and "The Son of Wallingford" .·. New Screen Bills

'The Fortune Teller' Is Unique In That Its Hero Is a Basso; Galagher Is This Week's Star

After Two Seasons of Buffo Parts, He Has First Serious Role in Herbert Operetta, Which Opens Tuesday Night.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

ONE of the curious enigmas of opera: Why have musicians and librettists uniformly conspired to heap contumely upon the basso voice? The diapason among human stops, at its best so virile and affluent, it is summoned to lowly service whenever there is a villain to brand or a buffoon to trounce. Most opprobrious of all, the presumption is invariable, on the occasions when His Satanic Majesty treads the boards, that many-fathom tones are among the prominent insignia of this unpleasant personage. Meanwhile, it is the piping tenor who achieves heroic gestes, and eventually stalks off with the heroine under his arm, to the admiration of all.

In grand opera, Russia alone, the fatherland of the bass voice, has paid due honor to the bourdon pipe of the human throat. In light opera, it would appear, only two composers have held the basso in dignity and esteem. Both are Americans. The late Reginald de Koven conferred one of the best airs in "Robin Hood" upon Will Scarlet. Victor Herbert went still farther in "The Fortune Teller," with which the Municipal Theater Association begins its third week Tuesday night, at the open-air auditorium in Forest Park. Herbert's gypsy, Sandor, has no less a position than that of hero of the operetta, and Sandor is a bass.

For once the despised rogue or clown of the orthodox plot has his revenge. It is Sandor who is the romantic figure, instead of the humble recipient of cuffs and kicks; it is Sandor who rescues the lovely heroine from the villain's clutches, wooes her with fervent song, and at last presses her willing charms to his breast; it is Sandor to whom the composer entrusts the featured air of the work, "Gypsy Love."

To Charles E. Galagher, after two seasons of buffo parts, falls at last this serious opportunity. It is the most dignified role he has as yet attempted in the municipal opera company, and the opening night should find him in fine fettle. As Giacomo, one of the brace of gorgeous rogues in "Fra Diavolo," he has enjoyed virtually a week's respite in which to recuperate from the rasping gutturals of Capt. Massakroff. He is completely familiar with the work, having served in the dear dead days as alternate to Eugene Cowles, the original Sandor.

Rival of "Robin Hood."

IN the opinion of good judges, "The Fortune Teller" has but one rival for rank as the best operetta created in the United States. That rival is, of course, "Robin Hood." The latter has far greater popularity, thanks in part to its attractive and romantic book. Musicians who are offended by De Koven's plagiarisms and slovenly part-writing, have no hesitation in awarding the palm to "The Fortune Teller," which is as distinguished for beautiful workmanship as for melodic inspiration. By a coincidence, these competing operettas owe their librettos to the same author—the prolific Harry B. Smith.

"The Fortune Teller" was Herbert's third operetta and his first successful one. It derives from the era when he had not yet found it necessary to bend his talent to the thralldom of musical comedy. It was produced at the old Wallack's Theater, New York, in 1890, with a cast boasting the foremost light opera stars of the time.

Alice Nielsen was the prima donna, and Marguerite Sylva, who later succeeded her, was her understudy in the role of Musette. Eugene Cowles was Sandor, and Joseph Cawthorn, with his concertina, had a great success in the comedy part of Fresco, a ballet master. Other parts were taken by Joseph Herbert, Richard Golden and Frank Rushworth. The work had a long run in New York, was popular on tour, and was later produced in the leading cities of Europe.

The Characters and Story.

ALTHOUGH of American creation, the operetta's locale is Budapest, and it is generally regarded as an offshoot of the Viennese school. The principal characters are: Sandor, a gypsy musician; Fresco, a ballet master and stage manager of the Grand Opera House in Budapest; Count Berezowski, an aged reprobate who fancies he is a great composer and pianist; Capt. Ladislas, a Hungarian hussar; Musette, a gypsy fortune teller; Boris, her father, chief of the tribe; Mlle. Pom-Pom, a comic opera prima donna, and Irma, a pupil at Fresco's ballet school. As the plot turns upon the close resemblance between Irma and Musette, Miss Katherine Galloway will play both roles, besides donning trousers in one emergency to impersonate her twin brother.

Irma, according to the story, is, without being aware of it, heiress to a great estate. The proof of her birth is contained in an emerald bracelet, and Count Berezowski, who happens upon the secret, sets an intrigue in motion for the purpose of winning the hand of the heiress. He bribes Fresco to aid him.

But Irma is in love with the dashing Capt. Ladislas, who is a friend of her brother, Feodor, also an officer in the hussars. Feodor has run away from his regiment to visit Mlle. Pom-Pom, and Capt. Ladislas, with a squad of soldiers, comes to seek him at the ballet school. He seizes the opportunity to arrange plans for an elopement with Irma, as a means of saving her from the Count.

Irma leaves a farewell note to her teacher, Fresco, who bemoans the loss of Count Berezowski's bribe. In the midst of his lamentation arrives a gypsy band, including Musette, Boris and Sandor. Musette is much like Irma that Fresco is himself deceived at first; on discovering his mistake, he strikes a bargain with Boris to substitute Musette for Irma. The gypsy girl pretends to agree, intending to run away and rejoin the band; but decides to remain after the artful Fresco contrives to make her jealous of Sandor. When the latter returns in quest of her, she denies knowing him and maintains that she is really Irma.

Four Lovers Made Happy.

AS the second act begins, the wedding of Musette and Berezowski is about to take place; but Sandor, obtaining an interview with his sweetheart, convinces her of his constancy and induces her to leave with him. At this moment Irma herself appears, and is taken by Fresco for Musette. Soon both Ladislas and Sandor rush in and lay claim to Irma, the latter mistaking her for Musette.

To escape from these complications, Irma puts on her brother's uniform, denies that she is herself or Musette either, and affirms that she is the missing Feodor. She is promptly arrested as a deserter and taken before Gen. Korbay. There her wit and courage win not only her own release but a pardon for her brother. All ends happily for the two pairs of lovers.

The best-known air in the operetta is the popular song, "Gypsy Love." Other favorite selections are "Always Do as People Say You Should," "Ho, Ye Townsmen," "Czardas" and "Only in the Play." The finale of the first act is an ensemble number, "Serenade of the Nations," in which Herbert introduces music characteristic of the various races represented.

The work is not new to Frank Moulan, J. Humbird Duffey and James Stevens, who have played it in various stock companies. The parts are assigned as follows:

Sandor ..... Charles E. Galagher
Fresco ..... Frank Moulan
Count Berezowski ..... James Stevens
Capt. Ladislas ..... J. Humbird Duffey
Boris ..... Harry Hermsen
Mlle. Pom-Pom ..... Miss Rhoda Nickells
Vaninka ..... Miss Mildred Rogers
Musette and Irma— Miss Katherine Galloway
Gen. Korbay ..... Ralph Nicholls

Three small parts, those of Rafael, Sergt. Petemkin and Walderman, prompter at the opera house, have been given to St. Louis members of the chorus—Miss Elva Magnus, George McIntosh and Charles Page.

Next week's offering will be "San Toy," a well-known light opera on a Chinese subject, with score by Sidney Jones, an English composer.

The Week in the New York Theaters

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 18.

"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK," which was a tremendous success two decades ago, is drawn upon for "The Whirl of New York," which the Shuberts presented Monday night at the Winter Garden. The best melodies are preserved, and some of the old characters may be recognized; but the Kerker and Morton musical comedy of old is engulfed and swept away in a swirling, gorgeously mounted spectacle which, while following the Winter Garden's characteristic style, is on a higher plane of beauty and delicacy than has been touched before.

In Louis Mann, as a gorgeously funny and polite lunatic, the production may boast one of the members of the original "Belle of New York" cast. Nancy Gibbs, late of the "Monsieur Beaucaire" company, has Edna May's old role of a Salvation Army lassie, and was a demure and lovely vision as she made her entrance solemnly along an illuminated runway. Dorothy Ward, as a comic opera queen, put zest and sparkle in the show with her singing and incessant activity.

Harold Murray and John T. Murray head the male portion of the cast. There is also an abundance of unusually good specialties, provided by Kyra, a sinuous siren; John McCree, a prodigiously agile stepper; the Roth brothers, those graceful athletes; and Adelaide—no longer petite—and Hughes.

There are seven scenes, composed with unusually discreet judgment and taste. Two are especially colorful and beautiful, an Old Curiosity Shop and New York's Chinatown on New Year's eve. Music in the jazzy spirit of the time has been added by Al Goodman and Lew Pollack, while new dialogues and lyrics are contributed by Edgar Smith. The cho-

Actress Who Knows Tells What Movie Work Is Like

HERE'S all that ambitious girls have to do to qualify for pictures, according to Eugenia Gilbert of the Oliver Morosco film forces:

Up at 6. Twenty minutes' calisthenics, including combing the hair.

"Health" breakfast, consisting of everything one does not like.

Riding lesson, both "fancy" and "Western." Good to settle breakfast.

Studio at 9, arriving via the end of street car strap and long hike.

Make up, receive the morning "bawl-out" and then spend 20 lively minutes dodging electricians shoving the lights around. Hopping the electric cables is equivalent to skipping the rope and much more zestful.

Remove wraps, sneeze, put them back on.

Sit down on "prop" chair; shooed out by outraged young man whose duty it is to rent "props" and take the comfort out of actors' lives.

Dash in on set at call of name. Receive cold stare and "No, no. Not now."

Hang around, try to keep out of everyone's road and dodge others doing the same thing.

At last. Just before lunch time. Before camera. Rehearse. This way. And that. Again. Once more. Then "camera." Retake. Another. Finally lunch at 3.

Do this remainder of afternoon and usually half of night. Much dodging, adjusting of make-up, and some acting.

Then between times crowd in swimming lessons, music, dancing, study, manicurist, hairdresser, costumer and shopping.

'Habit,' 'Woman God Changed,' A 'Divorce of Convenience,' Among the Week's Films

New Grand Central Will Celebrate First Anniversary of Present Ownership With Special Music and Vaudeville.

THE New Grand Central this week is celebrating the first anniversary of its purchase by its present owners. In addition to the picture offering it will present a revue in which musical and vaudeville acts will be featured.

The picture feature will be "Habit," with Mildred Harris in the leading feminine role. The story is that of a rich girl who marries the poorer of two suitors. They find happiness in a cottage.

The husband while on his way to Washington is hurt in a railroad accident and loses his memory. The rich former suitor offers to seek the missing husband. He learns the truth, but conceals it from the wife, telling her that the husband was killed. There is said to be an unusual climax as a result of which the husband's memory is restored and justice is meted out to the villain.

In the anniversary revue will be Mary Dawn, a singer; Mona Desmond, eccentric dancer; Shelly and Blair, vocalists; Loretta de Voil, classical singer, and Roland Grimes, a musical comedy entertainer.

"The Woman God Changed."

"The Woman God Changed" is the offering at the Missouri Theater this week. No star is featured, but the chief roles are played by Seena Owen, E. K. Lincoln, Lillian Walker, Paul Nicholson and Templer Saxe.

The story is that of Anna Janssen, a dancing girl who gives up her stage career for Alastair de Vries. He soon tires of her and she shoots and kills him. All this is testified to by witnesses at her trial with which the picture opens.

Escaping to Tahiti, where she becomes a dancer in an amusement resort, she lives for five years under the haunting fear of arrest for murder. Thomas McCarthy, a detective, discovers her retreat and takes her in custody. He is unable to embark with his prisoner on a repair steamer for San Francisco and they take passage on another vessel. This steamer is wrecked by fire and explosion and all with the exception of Anna and McCarthy are lost. They reach an island. McCarthy is determined to bring his prisoner to trial though he grows to love her.

After some years on the island they take a marriage vow and both are happy until a steamer is sighted. McCarthy refuses to light the signal fire because he wishes to save Anna, but she starts a flare and they are rescued. Anna is tried and convicted of manslaughter. The Judge sentences her to the custody of Detective McCarthy with instructions to him to return to the island with her.

The attraction at the West End Lyric for the first half of the week is Owen Moore in "A Divorce of Convenience." The hero consents to serve as corespondent in a divorce case and this is said to lead to many amusing complications.

MacLean in Racetrack Play.

Douglas MacLean is the star in the cast of "The Home Stretch," which is to be a four-day attraction at the Kings. The airdome and theater will both be open to Sunday night audiences. The picture is a racetrack play which is said to turn on the experiences of a jockey, a trainer and a race follower who unexpectedly become owners. There are said to be some fine racing scenes and thrilling incidents.

Constance Talmadge in "Lessons in Love," recently seen at another theater and reviewed in these columns as an amusing comedy, will be the attraction at the Capitol.

The week's bill at the Strand will be "The Shadow of Rosalie Byrnes," with Elaine Hammerstein in the leading role.

What They Are Doing in the Moving Picture Studios

CECIL B. DE MILLE, director-general of Paramount Pictures, hurried from Los Angeles to New York following the completion of "The Laurels and the Lady," the story by Leonard Merrick which has been put in continuity form by Beulah Marie Dix and Sada Cowan. After a conference with sales executives in New York he will return to California to edit the all-star picture headed by Dorothy Dalton, Mildred Harris, Conrad Nagel, Theodore Kosloff and John Davidson.

The tilling, editing and assembling of "Footlights," Elsie Ferguson's latest Paramount picture, made from Rita Weiman's story have been completed.

"COME and take a spin with me in my speed boat," was the invitation extended to Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle by Dustin Farnum the other day while the Paramount star at Catalina Island on location for his new picture, "Should a Man Marry?" boarded a hydroplane, flew to San Pedro where Dustin Farnum's boat was waiting at the Motor Boat Club and had his spin. Then he boarded the plane and sailed back to Catalina and location.

"I don't know which was the most fun," he said today on returning to the studio, "but neither made me seasick or airsick. Guess I'm a pretty good sailor, eh?"

The influence of Booth Tarkington on the screen version of his "Conquest of Canaan," recently completed with Thomas Meighan in the leading role, will be shown in both the titles and the action of the film. Tarkington is responsible for more than half of the titles in the picture and he also made many pertinent suggestions on the handling of the acting of the action of the story which were followed by R. William Neill, the director. Tarkington carefully supervised the continuity of the photoplay made from his book before Paramount began "shooting" the picture.

Katherine MacDonald's newest picture now being made for Associated First National release by the Ambassador Pictures Corporation is to be titled "Sticks and Stones." The story is an original one, especially written for the star, and is said to be one of the best vehicles in which she has appeared.

A SELECT few were invited the other evening to the grand opening of the Thimble, which is the ultra modern miniature theater with seating capacity for just 34 that Carter de Haven has added to his Hollywood home. It is completely equipped throughout and lacks none of the up-to-date features of the greatest picture palaces in America. Some of the features include a pipe organ, an elaborate system of stage lighting and also indirect lighting for the theater proper. The opening attraction at the Thimble was Mr. and Mrs. de Haven's second comedy production for Associated First National release—"The Girl in the Taxi." The De Havens are at present engaged in the picturization of "My Lady Friends."

The next picture to be filmed by Anita Stewart, it is announced, will be an adaptation of Ruth Cross' romantic story, "A Question of Romance." The production will be made at the Louis B. Mayer studio for release by Associated First National. Having just finished "The Price of Happiness," Miss Stewart is at present resting in Coronado, Cal.

JOHN EMERSON and Anita Loos have completed the synopsis of their new original photoplay "Good for Nothing," for Constance Talmadge. The story deals with a small-town girl who runs away to New York, and, instead of experiencing the proverbial bitter struggle, has the time of her life.

A trip to Italy for the purpose of making a costume picture is among Allen Holubar's most cherished plans. This trip will not be under-

E. K. LINCOLN AND SEENA OWEN in "The Woman God Changed," at the Missouri.

Elsie Ferguson Will Star in "Ibbetson"

The screen version of "Peter Ibbetson," production of which has been started at the Paramount Eastern studio under the direction of George Fitzmaurice, is a pretentious picture. Headed by Elsie Ferguson and Wallace Reid, as stars, the cast is one of the most imposing ever gathered for a Paramount picture with the possible exception of "The Affairs of Anatol." Elliott Dexter, Montagu Love, George Fawcett and Paul McAllister play the principal male roles outside the title part, which Reid will have. The two feminine parts, next in prominence to the "Duchess of Towers," which Miss Ferguson will do, will be played by Barbara Dean and Vivian Oakland.

A half dozen or more youngsters will be seen in the first part of the picture. Little Gogo Pasquier, who grows up to be "Peter Ibbetson," will be played by Charles Easton, 8 years old. Nell Buck, an 8-year-old edition of Elsie Ferguson, will be "Mimsey," the little girl who becomes the "Duchess of Towers" later in the story.

The opening scenes for the picture are being filmed in a French Garden in the village of Passy, a suburb of Paris. All four seasons of the year will be shown in the garden.

The dock scenes for "Cappy Ricks," Peter B. Kyne's story adapted for motion pictures by Paramount, were filmed on the historical State pier in South Boston where ex-President Woodrow Wilson landed on his return from France after his first trip to Europe. For more than a week the schooner "Retriever" which is used in the picture was anchored at the exact spot where Wilson made his landing. Many scenes showing Thomas Meighan, as Matt Peasley; Charles Abbe, as Cappy Ricks, and Agens Ayres in the role of Florrie Ricks were taken at the pier.

"Son of Wallingford Directed by Chester

Nine Vitagraph pictures are announced for September-October release, setting a record for that company for the number and size of pictures to be released in a period of two months. One of these is "The Son of Wallingford," the filming of which consumed several months. George Randolph Chester personally directed this piture in California, after spending nearly two years in preparation for it. Hundreds of persons take part in some of the scenes, and the massive sets include an artificial lake with dams and sluceways, oil derricks, a complete city, modern in its appointments, and a unique pageant fashioned after the gorgeous East Indian durbars.

William Duncan, with Edith Johnson as co-star, appears in another of the early fall releases of this company. This is announced as a special feature production. It is called "Where Men Are Men," and is a romantic filming of the story of Death Valley. Alice Joyce's first picture for the new season is "The Inner Chamber."

Other pictures announced for release in September are: Larry Semon in "The Bell Hop," Earle Williams in "Bring Him In," Corinne Griffith and Catherine Calvert in "Moral Fiber," Alice Calhoun in "Peggy Puts It Over," Antonio Moreno in "The Secret of the Hills," from a novel by William Garrett, and Jimmy Aubrey in a new style comedy, called "The Riot."

"Retribution" is the name of John M. Stahl's initial independent unit production, with Lewis Stone, Barbara Castleton and William Desmond in the principal roles. It is from an original story by Perry N. Vekroff.

OWEN MOORE AND KATHERINE PERRY in "A Divorce of Convenience," West End Lyric and Lyric Skydome.

WALTER McGRAIL AND MILDRED HARRIS in "Habit," New Grand Central.

THE WEEK IN THE THEATERS OF NEW YORK CITY

rus was chosen to illustrate racial types found in New York—French, English, Irish, Scotch, Scandinavian, Oriental, and so on.

Miss Shaw's Four Playlets.

FOUR one-act playlets by Miss Billie Shaw, each of a different kind, and a musical divertisement were presented as a summer novelty Monday night at the Apollo Theater. There was a farce, "Gutta Iconoclast," in which a young wife, turning from a commonplace husband to a fancied affinity, is disillusioned by means of four false teeth on a plate. There was a drama, "Pearls," showing gruesomely the vengeance of a thief upon his false light-o'-love; a comedy, "Squaring the Circle," and a playlet called "The Good Woman," which proved of the "Everywoman" school.

On Tuesday night, at the Punch and Judy Theater, were presented Granville Barker's "Harlequinade" and Lord Dunsany's "A Night in an Inn." The former was transferred from the Neighborhood Theater, and in it appeared Ian Maclaren, Whitford Kane, Miss Joanna Roos and others. In the Dunsany play were Frederick Lloyd, Lawrence Cecil, Ian Maclaren and Whitford Kane.

Avery Hopwood's long enduring comedy, "The Gold Diggers," closed tonight with a record of 725 performances, which beats the record of "A Trip to Chinatown," and is second only to that of "Lightnin'" among this country's long-running plays. Late in July, with its present company intact, "The Gold Diggers" will start on a tour of the large American cities.

"Irene" also closed tonight, after 675 performances. Besides the production at the Vanderbilt Theater, there have been three touring companies in this country, five in the British Isles and others in South America, India and South Africa. "Irene" has been one of the veritable gold mines of the theater. It has also brought prosperity to many stars, beginning with Edith Day. Others, in various companies, have been Adele Rowland, Patti Harrold, Helen Shipman, Dale Winter and Irene Dunn.

Hackett's Parisian Triumphs.

DETAILS continue to reach here of the triumphs won in Paris by James K. Hackett, the first American actor to appear in the French capital as a guest of the French Government. It appears that few more brilliant audiences were ever gathered in a Paris theater than that which attended his production of "Macbeth" at the Odeon on the evening of June 6. The performance was arranged by the French Government through the Ministry of Fine Arts, and the proceeds, amounting to the record sum of 83,000 francs, went to French, British and American charities. Some of the seats sold for as much as 1000 francs.

Everyone of consequence in the American-English colony was present, besides many great figures in French political and artistic life. The climax came with the entrance of Crown Prince Hirohito of Japan and his glittering suite, with President Millerand. The audience stood while the orchestra played the national anthems of Japan, France, England and the United States.

An amusing feature was that Prince Hirohito, who understands English perfectly, was able to explain the course of the play to President Millerand, who speaks only French. Though using a tongue

Physician Explains Who Should Take Nuxated Iron

Practical Advice on How to Help Build Up Great Strength, Energy and Endurance

"Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, rundown patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles without ever realizing the real cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through the body undigested and like corn through an old mill with rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind.

"For want of iron you may be an old man at thirty, dull of intellect, poor in memory, nervous, irritable and roll 'run down,' while at 50 or 60 with plenty of iron in your blood you may still be young in feeling, full of life. Your whole being brimming over with vim and energy.

But be sure the iron you take is organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and not metallic iron which people usually take. Organic iron—Nuxated Iron—is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron fillings and is therefore an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such a highly concentrated form that one dose is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen baked apples. It is like taking extracts of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It quickly helps make rich red blood, revitalize worn-out exhausted nerves and give increased strength and energy. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if it does not produce satisfactory results.

For sale by all druggists.

PESKY BED BUGS

Doctors declare that bedbugs and other vermin are the most-to-be-feared means of spreading such diseases as consumption, spinal meningitis and other infectious troubles. There is no disgrace in getting bedbugs in your home, because that can't be avoided, but it is a disgrace to permit them to remain and thrive when it is so easy to get rid of them with the new chemical compound, P. D. Q., which actually puts an end to these pesky devils.

A MILLION BEDBUGS

A 35-cent package of this golden chemical will make a quart of a mixture that is so deadly to bedbugs that it would kill a million of them if you could get that many together. If they were as big as your hand it would swat them just as well. And not only the live ones, but the future generation as well, because once it hits the eggs they are gone.

CUT THIS OUT

Your druggist has P. D. Q. (Pesky Devils' Quietus) and will be glad to furnish it for 35 cents. One 35-cent package makes a quart of the mixture and is equal to a barrel of old-fashioned bug-killer. Some druggists may try to sell you something else. Don't accept a substitute. If your druggist hasn't P. D. Q., send us your name and 35 cents and we will send you a package postage prepaid to your address.

WILL NOT DAMAGE GOODS

P. D. Q. will not injure delicate fabrics, clothing, carpets, furniture, bedding, wall paper or woodwork. In fact, it is often used as a deodorizer and disinfectant.

KILLS FLEAS ON DOGS

If you have a pet dog who is infested with fleas take a little P. D. Q. mixture in your hand and rub it in to the fur. Then watch the fleas loop the loop. They will hasten faster than King Solomon before they hit the floor.

CHICKEN LICE DESTROYER

Have your chickens got lice? Don't hesitate. Get a 35-cent package of P. D. Q., make a gallon of lice destroyer from it, as directed, and then get busy in the hen house. It's as easy you'll laugh and so will the chickens. By the way, did you ever see a chicken laugh? Try this and watch 'em.

FOR ANTS AND COCKROACHES

The ants and cockroaches stand just as good a chance of surviving a treatment of P. D. Q. as a snowball in a justly famed Heat Resort. It swats them and their eggs with a wallop that puts their whole generation out of business. Use it on flies in storage to kill and keep out moths.

A BEDBUG SPOUT

Every package of P. D. Q. contains a patent spout that fits any ordinary bottle. It will enable you to reach the hard-to-get-at places and save lots of juice. When buying look for the Devil Heads on every package of P. D. Q. then you'll be sure to get the genuine.

ALKALI IN SHAMPOOS BAD FOR WASHING HAIR

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

"I'd rather get a letter like that," says Peterson of Buffalo, "than have John D. Rockefeller give me a thousand dollars. It does me a lot of good to be able to be of use to my fellow-man.

"For years I have been selling through druggists a large box of PETERSON'S OINTMENT for 60 cents. The healing power in this ointment is marvelous. Eczema goes in a few days. Old sores heal up like magic; piles that other remedies do not seem to even relieve are speedily conquered."

Asthma Troubles Stopped Like Magic

Druggist Makes Generous Offer to Send Amazing Prescription to Every Sufferer. Costs Nothing if It Does Not Cure.

Thirty years ago Mr. C. Leavengood, a widely known Kansas druggist, discovered a simple, easy-to-take prescription that cures Asthma like Magic. He gave it to people who had suffered for years, and to their amazement they say they were easily cured. These people told their friends, and in this way thousands have found the sure way to cure Asthma. Mr. Leavengood feels so confident that his prescription will cure in all cases that he generously offers to send a $1.25 bottle to anyone who will write for it, and it isn't to cost a cent unless it cures. Send no money—just write to C. Leavengood, 1329 S. W. Blvd., Rosedale, Kansas, and the big bottle will be mailed immediately. When the package is delivered merely deposit $1.25 through the postman, with the understanding your deposit is to be returned if you are not satisfied after a 10-day test. Send no money—just your name and address—a card will do.

strange to most of the audience, Hackett appears to have won a high success. The French reviewers, never hospitable to American stage celebrities until they were captivated by Elsie Janis, all acknowledged that they were "bewildered" by the power of his embodiment of the savagely ambitious and weakly vacillating Thane. Never before, they pronounced, had they beheld "such a wealth of interpretation."

Of interest was the appearance of John Drinkwater, author of "Abraham Lincoln," in the role of Banquo. George Middleton, an American playwright, was the First Lord, and Miss Sybil Thorndike, as Lady Macbeth, shared honors with the American star.

English Othello, French Iago.

TWO nights later, also at the Odeon, a singular performance was given. Hackett and his English-speaking company led off with the first act of "Macbeth." An opportunity to compare French and English stage technique was offered when Firmin Gemier's French-speaking troupe followed with an act from "The Merchant of Venice." The quaintest result was obtained when Hackett, taking the role of Othello in English, and Firmin that of Iago in French, played an act from "Othello" with what the reviewers declared was "the utmost harmony."

When William A. Brady starts out for a season's productions, he has a considerable order on hand merely to supply his own family. There must be a play for Grace George, who is Mrs. Brady. There must be one for daughter Alice, and another for son-in-law James Crane. The head of the family believes he has partly settled the domestic problem for next fall. Miss Brady is to appear in "Drifting," by John Colton and Daisy Andrews, and Crane in "Personality," by Jasper Ewing Brady and Philip Bartholomae.

The Palace Theater has been crowded all week with admirers of Miss Ethel Barrymore, who, freed from the shackles of "Clair de Lune," has returned to the varieties in Barrie's short play, "The Twelve Pound Look." Of all the brief stage pieces of the decade, this conceals the most biting sarcasm under a smiling mask of humor. Once more she played with delicious banter and keen strength of character the scorching role of the typist, Kate, whose investment in a $60 typewriter points the way to freedom from the domestic tyranny of a selfish and arrogant Englishman.

Miss Ulric's New Play Is "Kiki."

LENORE ULRIC'S play next season will be an adaptation of a French comedy or farce called "Kiki," which has a reputation of having been successful in Paris. A lavish pageant play, "The Wandering Jew," will be produced at the Knickerbocker early in the new season under the joint direction of Messrs. Belasco and Erlanger. It is not based on Eugene Sue's novel, but is an original play, already acted in London, depicting the Jew in four or five periods of the world's history. Tyrone Power will head the cast.

A revival of "The Easiest Way" is reported for the Lyceum Theater some time in September, with Frances Starr and Joseph Kilgour once more in the leading roles. Olga Petrova is to be starred in a Spanish play, "The White Peacock," in this city during September. Barney Bernard, breaking from Abe Potash, is to be seen as an East Side shoemaker who encounters prosperity, in a play called "Two Blocks Away," by Aaron Hoffman. Montague Glass is to have on the boards a comedy—his first without a collaborator—entitled "Easy Come, Easy Go."

Richard Bennett has been engaged for the leading role of Emery Pottle's "The Hero," which was tried for a few special performances at the Longacre last fall, and which is to be put on regularly at the Belmont. A new play by Eugene O'Neill, "The Straw," is to be produced in October, with Margolo Gillmore, John Westley and Charles Ellis in prominent parts.

"Main Street," the O'Higgins-Ford dramatization of Sinclair Lewis' best seller, is to be one of the Shubert offerings next fall, William Hodge is to be seen in a new comedy of his own fabrication, "Beware of Dogs." Alfred Lunt and Violet Heming are to appear in a Polish play, "Sonya," which tells the story of a royal love affair. Arnold Daly is to act again in Shaw's "Man of Destiny," beginning at the Greenwich Village Theater on Oct. 10. A new play for Miss Clara Eames is a medieval piece called "Swords," by Sidney Howard.

"The Last Waltz" of Straus.

THE hand of Oscar Straus, composer of "The Chocolate Soldier," seems to have lost none of its melodious cunning. His newest operetta, "The Last Waltz," now running at the Century Theater, is acclaimed the most delightful musical opus Gotham has seen in a decade.

The hero is an American, a Lieutenant in the navy, who saves a charming girl from humiliation at the hands of the Prince Regent of the mythical kingdom of Vandalia, and goes to jail for his pains. Through the aid of the heroine, he contrives to escape, but returns to prison for fear that she may be locked up in his stead.

His orderly, a pugnacious and resourceful "gob," helps him to outwit his enemies, and eventually to carry off the young lady. The prima donna of the company is Miss Eleanor Painter, and in her support are James Barton, Walter Woolf, Eleanor Griffith, Harrison Brockbank, Florence Morrison, Harry Fender, Clarence Harvey, Gladys Walton, Ted Lorraine and many others.

NAVY MEN know that a submarine must be kept constantly in condition. Likewise with the human system. Even more than a submarine, your body should be kept in fighting trim.

Your system requires periodic cleansing. Even though your bowels are regular, evacuation may not be complete. Poison accumulations in the intestines are breeding ground for sickness of every kind.

Thousands of well-informed men and women avoid this danger by cleansing their systems at regular intervals. For this purpose, they find a water laxative unusually efficacious; it really flushes the system.

taken until next year, according to Mr. Holubar. The story, he says, will be an adaptation of a famous old work of literature. Holubar and his wife, Dorothy Phillips, recently arrived in Los Angeles, where they are busy looking for a studio in which to produce Mr. Holubar's first picture under his new Associated First National contract.

CONSTANCE and Norma Talmadge have been appointed members of the National Theatrical Committee which has been formed with John Drew as chairman to further the interests of Near East Relief. They are soliciting cast-off clothing which is to be shipped to the Near East for distribution among the destitute Armenians and other peoples of the famine-stricken land.

Gareth Hughes' next picture will be "Garments of Truth." Actual filming will be started at the Metro studios this week.

Tom Moore started work last wek under the direction of E. Manson Hopper on "From the Ground Up," an original screen story by Rupert Hughes. Helene Chadwick plays opposite the star. Others in this Goldwyn picture are Darrel Foss, De Witt C. Jennings and Hardee Kirkland.

WILLIAM FARNUM, on his vacation through Europe, has reached Italy and will spend a couple of weeks at the Italian lakes. The star's birthday is the Fourth of July, and he always spends this anniversary at his Sag Harbor home; so he is expected back about July 1, in time to attend the Dempsey-Carpentier fight.

William Desmond has opposite him in his current production, "Fighting Mad," Miss Virginia Brown Faire, who was recently seen in Rudyard Kipling stories. Jack Richardson is to fill the role of "heavy" in this picture.

ALLEN HOLUBAR, producer of "Man, Woman, Marriage," one of Associated First National's "Big Five," believes that costume films are here to stay and that fandom has learned to expect—and wants—a gigantic spectacle every year or so.

Larry Semon was laid up in a Los Angeles hospital for two days last week, as a result of minor injuries sustained in filming a scene for his newest comedy, "The Fall Guy." He was a fraction of a second late in leaping from the top of a garage which, in a comedy scene, was being carried over a cliff. He saved himself from serious injury, but another fraction of a second might have told an entirely different story. The mind of the Vitagraph comedy king seems particularly alert when he is confined to the hospital, for he put his previous cartooning talent to work while he was bed-ridden, and drew a model of a comedy airplane which he will have built for use in his next comedy.

Mme. Alla Nazimova, it is reported, is to become an ally of the four-star combination known as the United Artists, comprising Pickford-Fairbanks-Chaplin-Griffith.

Nazimova's first United Artists' offering may be the production of "Salome." She is eager to do the classic, but the gaunt shadow of the censor disturbs her confidence. Will

PARAGRAPHS ABOUT INTERESTING PERSONS ABOUT MOVIE STUDIOS

Rogers is said to have had overtures from the same source. The Big Four think they have a prize in an English film, "Carnival," which they have purchased. It is in seven reels and stars Matheson Lang, the Shaksperean actor.

Gloria Swanson started this week on "The Shulamite" for Paramount, with Mahlon Hamilton as leading man. The cast also includes Russel Simpson and Lillian Leighton. "The Shulamite" was scenarized by J. E. Nash from the play and novel—the former by Edward Knoblock and Claude Askew, the latter by Alice and Claude Askew.

That there are people in this enlightened age who have never seen a motion picture, is the surprising discovery made by Anita Stewart, while on a location in the Sierras for "A Question of Honor," her latest Louis B. Mayer starring vehicle. The star met whole families in the mountainous section about Lake Elmanor who had never even had a bird's eye view of a town, and had never seen moving pictures of any description, and didn't care who was President of the United States as long as avalanches did not sweep their cabins away.

The mountaineers were greatly interested in Miss Stewart's "play-acting" before a camera, and assured her that they would try to see her films some time—if it were really true that pictures can move about on a white screen.

For the next six months Paramount pictures will be produced in California in the interests of economy, according to an announcement from Jesse L. Lasky, vice president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, explaining the closing of the huge inclosed Paramount studio on Long Island, N. Y. "We shall take advantage of the California sunshine now that the rainy season in Los Angeles is ended," Mr. Lasky explains. "We are not cutting down production but merely taking steps to produce more economically. The Long Island studio will be opened again when the rainy season makes it impractical to concentrate in Los Angeles. We do not believe in operating an inclosed studio with its tremendous expense for electricity at a time when we can work more economically in Hollywood. The companies being sent from New York to California will return to New York in the fall."

Katherine MacDonald will startle her admirers in her next Associated First National feature, "Peachie." When the first scenes are shot this week, under the direction of Wallace Worsley, Miss MacDonald will wear the first of 20 gowns in which she will appear while portraying a musical comedy star on vacation.

The story gives the star an opportunity for great contrast in the character transformation from a staid little bookkeeper to the best dressed actress on Broadway. From the appearance of things around the "American Beauty's" dressing room, a veritable fashion show is to be held, the display including negligees, evening gowns, street costumes, riding habits and sport clothes. Many of these costumes were purchased for Miss MacDonald in Paris.

Following the completion of "The Great Impersonation," upon which he is now engaged, George Melford will next produce for Paramount an adaptation by Monte Katterjohn of S. M. Hull's novel, "The Sheik." No details are as yet available concerning the story or the cast.

5000 Sufferers to Get Free Trial Plapao

No Need to Go Through Life Wearing a Useless Truss

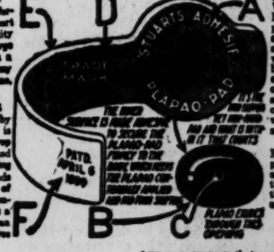
This generous offer is made by the inventor of a wonderful "all-day-and-night" working method which is to be used to tone up and strengthen the relaxed muscles, thereafter doing away with painful trusses altogether, and the necessity for dangerous operations.

NOTHING TO PAY

To the extent of 5000 sufferers who write—Mr. Stuart will send a sufficient quantity of the Plapao, without charge to enable you to give it a thorough test. You pay nothing for this trial of Plapao, now, or ever.

STOP USING A TRUSS

Yes, stop it, you know by your own experience, it is only a makeshift, a false prop against a collapsing wall, and that it is undermining your health because it tends to retard the circulation of the blood. Why, then, continue to wear it? Here is a better way, which you can now prove for yourself, free of charge.



USED FOR A DOUBLE PURPOSE

First: The primary and most important object of the PLAPAO-PADS is to keep constantly applied to the related muscles the medication called Plapao, which is constructive in nature, and taken together with the ingredients in the medicated mass is intended to increase the circulation of the blood, thus revivifying the muscles and restoring them to their normal strength and elasticity. Then, and not until then, can you expect the rupture to disappear.

Second: Being made self-adhesive, purposely to prevent the pad from shifting, they have therefore proven to be an important adjunct in retaining rupture that cannot be held by a truss.

Hundreds of people, old and young, have gone before others confirmed by acknowledge ranks, and prove that the PLAPAO-PADS cured their rupture—some of them most aggravated cases—and of long standing.

CONTINUOUS NIGHT-AND-DAY ACTION

A striking feature of the Plapao-Pad treatment is the comparatively short time it takes to get results.

This is because the action is continuous—night and day, throughout the whole of the 24 hours.

There is no inconvenience, no discomfort, no pain. Yet notice after minutes have passed you are going about your daily duties—even while you are sleeping—the wonderful remedy is invisibly attacking the abdominal muscles with the sure life and strength that they require to perform their duties. Soon they begin to regain the power without the artificial support of a truss or device of any kind.

THE PLAPAO-PAD EXPLAINED

The principle upon which the Plapao-Pad works can be readily understood by noting the accompanying illustration, and reading the following explanation.

The PLAPAO-PAD is made of a strong flexible material "F" which is designed to conform to the movements of the body, and to positively counteract in every possible way the tendency of the muscles to part. It goes from an adhesive plaster—to prevent the Pad "F" from sliding and going out of place.

"A" is the enlarged end of the PLAPAO-PAD, which overlies the atrophied and weakened muscles to keep them from giving away further.

"B" is the properly shaped Pad, to be applied in such a way that it blocks up the normal orifice, and tends to prevent the contents of the abdomen from protruding.

Within the Pad is a reservoir. In this reservoir there is placed a wonderful absorbent astringent medication. As soon as this medication is moistened by the action of the body it becomes soluble and escapes through the small openings marked "C" and is absorbed through the pores of the skin to strengthen the weakened muscles and effect a closure of the openings.

"D" is the loop and "E" the PLAPAO-PAD which is to be plastered over the hipbone—a part of the frame-work of the body enlisted to give the necessary solidity and support to the PLAPAO-PAD

CANADA WELCOMES TOURISTS

Passports Not Required of Those Entering From the U. S.

OTTAWA, Ontario.—The Department of Immigration and Colonization has issued the following notice in connection with tourists entering Canada:

"Canada welcomes bona fide tourists and will extend every courtesy possible to such travelers in entering and leaving the Dominion. Tourists do not require passports as a condition of entry to Canada from the United States or as a condition of leaving Canada for the United States. Immigrants coming to Canada to work or reside are debarred if nationals of Germany, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria or Turkey, but nationals of any of the countries mentioned are not debarred when belonging to the non-immigrant classes, such as tourists and travelers."

MUST REINSTATE STATION AGENT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok.—The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Co. has been ordered by the Corporation Commission to reinstate an agent at the town of Gibbons, in Grant County, for 60 days, which time will cover the heavy shipping period of the grain belt. At the expiration of that time the railroad company will be requested to report whether revenues have warranted the agent's reinstatement.

Gibbons and several other small towns along the Hutchinson and Blackwell division of the Santa Fe were relieved of agents recently because the company said business did not justify their retention.

For Internal Use —or Bath

Epsom Salt has two uses. Taken internally, it purges and purifies the system. In a bath, it is a recognized aid for reducing flesh.
Allan's Epsom Salt, snow-white and pure in the Sanitary Sealed Package, is used for both purposes.
When you buy Allan's for 10c you buy more than just an internal dose.
It's easy to say Allan's—and it means a lot—for Allan's is pure.

EDITORIAL
A Kind Word, a Smile and a Handshake Will Benefit Any Person
Most people are too ready to criticise and complain, instead of boosting or complimenting.
Never speak hastily when angry or mad, but wait until you have thought it over. Most wars of nations and of individuals are entered into hastily.
Boost St. Louis, its administration, municipal open-air opera, parks, boulevards and its large stores and attractive shops.
All of the employes of this furniture house are taught to be courteous to our patrons and to always give them the benefit of the doubt.

Judge your theatre by its pictures

Where the Paramount Pictures are —there's the best theatre in town!

BY this time you are a good judge of motion pictures.

You know what you like. In the last few years you have seen enough motion pictures to give you a shrewd idea what is quality and what isn't.

All right: it's you and your like that are making finer photoplays possible and justifying Paramount's immense investment in time, talent and money, to produce steadily the great Paramount Pictures that are delighting the whole civilized world.

Too many ordinary pictures!

You have seen many an ordinary motion picture that you did not like very much—admit it. And it's your own fault! It's because you had not approached the matter of buying entertainment as sensibly as you had any other article of merchandise. You were careless, that's all.

Hit or miss won't do—it must be Paramount standard, and there is always a way to know before you go.

The more intelligent appraisal that there is of motion pictures, the better for all of us who are out for finer films.

But does your theatre realize its responsibility to you: its duty to let you enroll as a full time Paramount patron?

Are you given the chance to see all the Paramount Pictures?

Miss a single one and you miss a splendid entertainment.

Masters of Drama and Literature write for Paramount

Consider for a moment the names on the Paramount payroll. They read like a literary and dramatic Who's Who of Europe and America!

To ensure best results in the Paramount filming of his greatest work Sir James M. Barrie, for example, turned scenario-writer and has just completed the scenario for "Peter Pan." He will take an active part in the making of the picture, working hand in glove with the director.

Arnold Bennett is at work for Paramount, too. E. Phillips Oppenheim, Joseph Conrad and Robert Hichens are part of the great schedule. The same with Sir Gilbert Parker Elinor Glyn, Edward Knoblock, Somerset Maugham and Thompson Buchanan, and Avery Hopwood, Henry Arthur Jones, Cosmo Hamilton, Edward Sheldon, Samuel Merwin and Harvey J. O'Higgins.

All masters of drama and literature, immensely successful men, working with Paramount for your greater delight in your theatre.

All star casts in Paramount Pictures

To get an idea of the way Paramount casts the personnel of a photoplay glance over the all-star cast of "The Affairs of Anatol," the latest of the Cecil B. DeMille productions: Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson, Elliott Dexter, Bebe Daniels, Monte Blue, Wanda Hawley, Theodore Roberts, Agnes Ayres, Theodore Kosloff, Polly Moran, Raymond Hatton and Julia Faye. Not one star but a dozen!

The basis of Paramount's supremacy will steadily continue to be one of immense organization both in production and distribution of motion pictures, and unlimited resources of talent, money, physical equipment and imagination.

Paramount has enough studios and producing plants to equip the screen industry. The chief of these are in California, New York and London. The whole world-wide producing organization of Paramount Pictures proceeds on a basis of assured success for the photoplays produced. That is, more than 11,200 theatres in U. S. A. make Paramount Pictures the main part of their programmes, while there are also thousands of theatres in foreign countries whose patrons are always eager to see these masterpieces.

It is only possible in these announcements to give you a dim idea of Paramount's full activities.

You would have to take several months and visit three continents even to see the various Paramount studios.

Making your theatre seat worth renting

Perfect organization on a great scale is the only thing you can rely on to make your plush seat regularly worth renting.

Plush seats are not so comfortable when the entertainment is second rate!

Get into the habit of looking at the advertising of your theatre in the newspaper.

Look at the posters in the lobby of your theatre.

Look at the billboard announcements.

Find the words "It's a Paramount Picture."

That's the high sign that your theatre feels its responsibility to you,

—the high sign of the best show in town.

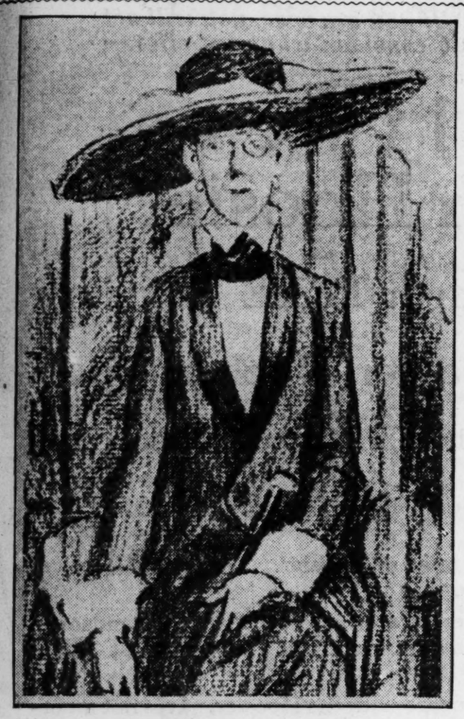
Business Girls' Lunch

Character Sketches by W. E. HILL



Lady buyer in the Ritz-Plastoria lobby—and all decked out about six months ahead of Paris—waiting for Mr. Marks, of the Deltoid Hosiery concern, who is slated to buy her a lunch.

Four lady representatives of the cloak and suit trade lunching with gentlemen friends.

Miss Brady, who stenogs gayly for a mercantile house, is cursed with a boss who hails from the suburbs. Mr. Hemp does his wife's shopping—or, rather, Miss Brady does it in the noon hour. By the time Miss Brady has gone through Mrs. Hemp's shopping list there will be about ten minutes left for lunch.

Maudie, queen of the switchboard at the Hotel Statler, waiting for Harry to keep a lunch date

Bessie, Jennie and Luella, the lightning bookkeepers, spend the last forty-five minutes of the lunch hour strolling up and down, telling secrets, watching the fellas and just looking beautiful.

An eclair, a cream puff and a cup of tea in the employes' cafeteria will do nicely for Miss Bent of the filing department.

Just a fleeting glance in the mirror to make certain that all the charlotte russe got inside Annabelle's face.

Stenogs at a soda fountain taking a little well-earned nourishment in the way of maple nut sundaes and chocolate marshmallow ditto, before the afternoon grind.

Very drowsy stenog taking dictation after a luncheon of lobster salad sandwich and Boston cream pie. Mabel can't seem to make head or tail of her notes, and what she can decipher causes Mr. Dill to wonder why'n'ell his letters have so little pep lately.

Sadie has thrown discretion to the winds and is going the limit with an over-squashy plum.

BLIND MAN'S WILL HELD VALID

Court Decides Sight Is Not Essential in Preparing Document.

GALESBURG, Ill.—Judge Frank, in the Knox County Court, ruled that a will made by a blind man was legal. Relatives of the late Myron N. Butterfield asked that his will be declared invalid for the reason that he was unable to determine whether the document was properly signed or not.

The Court held that a blind man acquired knowledge through the senses of hearing and touch and that sight was not essential in preparing a will. The relatives, who lose by this finding, have taken an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Rickey to Speak at "Y" Meeting.

FOR SEVENTY YEARS NORDYKE & MARMON COMPANY HAS STOOD FOR HONORABLE MANUFACTURING, FOR CLEAN, FAIR DEALING AND FOR BUSINESS FAIR PLAY

No Change in Model of the Marmon 34

Buyers will not find their Marmons superseded by new models. Marmon owners assured permanent investment.

THE lowered price of the Marmon 34 does not mean a different nor lesser model. It does not mean that we are disposing of one model preparatory to introducing a new.

For $3985 you obtain the identical $5000 Marmon 34, the finest car we ever built.

Your investment is permanent. Your car is not superseded by a later model. We emphasize this point and suggest that you be certain, in buying a car, that your money is going into a permanent model—not one that will soon be out-of-date. Be as sure of the permanency of the model as you are of the price. Ask this question: "Is the car I am buying a permanent model, or is a new model about to be announced?" You are entitled to this information.

The Marmon price reduction is a genuine one, based on the changes and anticipated changes in production costs.

It brings today the prices of 1922, together with the latest improvements and refinements in motor-car engineering and construction.

It is spoken of generally as "the best buy on the market." The sales have increased enormously. Men everywhere appreciate this rare situation.

A Marmon 34 is at your disposal for comparative demonstration. It proves its own superiority, particularly if you are your own driver and put it through the 12 vital tests yourself.

We invite you to visit us today, or telephone for a demonstration.

A check for $4 was received from children residing in the 4400 block on Maryland avenue, who gave a picture show and sold lemonade and other refreshments under the direction of Nancy Powell and Jane Scott Porter.

Six little girls of Webster Groves gave a play and earned $3 for the fund. Those taking part were Charlotte and Lois Borgsteadt, Miram Flint, Mildred Heale, Sylvia Lenz and Ada-Bell Fritz.

Russell Carlin, Thomas and Gerald Griffin, Dick Gunther and Dick Lover, all from the 5900 block of Romaine place, conducted a picture show which brought $2.25 for the babies.

A lemonade stand at Grand and Park managed by Margaret and Eva Kimealy netted 50 cents for the fund.

Two cash donations were received yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. C. M. McKeegan sent $2 and Miss Lina Buehrmann, 3116 Chippewa street, gave $1.

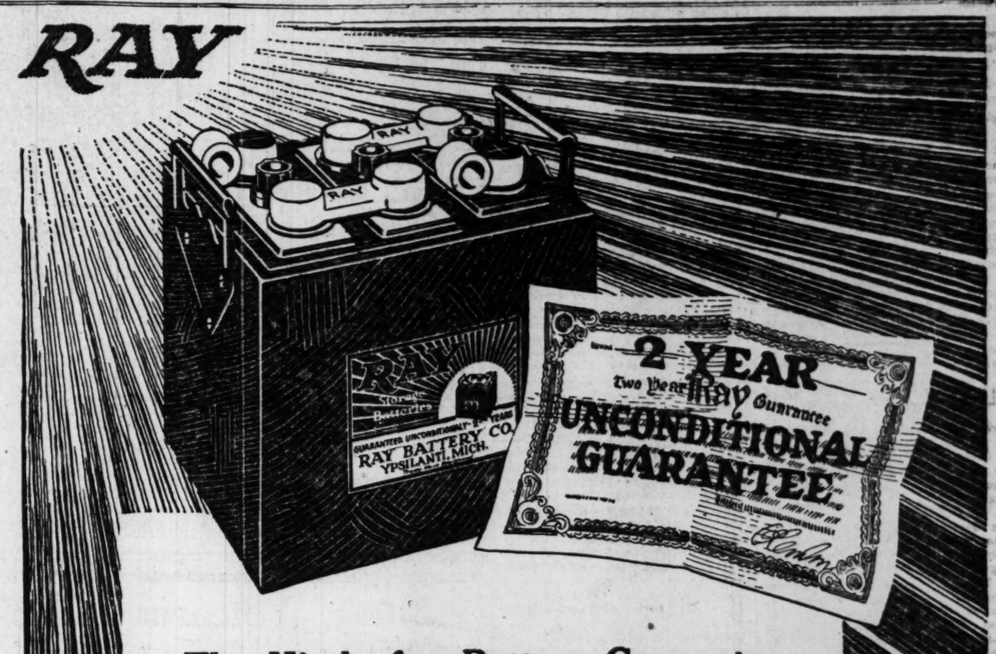
RAY



The Kind of a Battery Guarantee YOU Would Write

If you knew it to be a fact that the life of the average storage battery is less than one year, and you would try to conceive of a guarantee which would be your ideal, the result could be no stronger than the Ray unconditional guarantee.

The Ray Battery has always been guaranteed unconditionally for two years. In but one instance did we adhere to a provision in the guarantees of other makers—that was in placing a limit of 30 days on accessories such as boxes and rubber parts. Now (after June 10) the Ray Battery Co. guarantees these parts as well for period of two years.

Previously the strongest guarantee ever written, the new Ray unconditional guarantee, still broader, becomes the kind of a fair and sensible insurance policy against battery expense which you yourself would compose as your highest ideal.

Fix in your mind what this guarantee means to you—no battery expense possible for a period of two years except an occasional recharge. The new guarantee becomes invalid whenever a Ray Battery is opened or taken apart.

The Ray Battery Co. recognizes no competition.

PILES CURED
WITHOUT THE KNIFE By Dr. Henrich's Method TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

My long experience and the hundreds of people coming to me uncured, that have been using all kinds of Medicine or been operated by the Knife or Scissors, is proof to me that they will NOT cure.

Beware of home treatments; it is only to get your money. Piles is something you must not fool with, as they are often the cause of the dangerous Fistula and deadly Cancer. You must get someone with Experience to treat your case. I have this, and the great number of people that I can give you as References that have been Cured by me, I would be pleased to have anyone suffering with Piles or other Rectal Diseases to come and see me and to investigate me and my work. Examination and advice Free. All letters promptly answered and references sent. Call at once.

Bad Case of Piles Cured by Dr. Henrich Over Ten Years Ago—Still Cured. Read What a Prominent Citizen of Belleville Wrote to Another Sufferer of Piles:

Belleville, Ill., May 13, 1920.

Dear Sir: I received your letter today and will say I was treated for Piles by Dr. Henrich ten years ago. I had a bad case, and I am free to say that I have been free from any trouble and am entirely cured from Piles. I remain, ADOLPH SCHIRMER.

What I have done for hundreds of others I can do for you, because The Henrich Cure Is Safe and Sure.

You cannot do a better act than sending this advertisement to some Sufferer from Piles. He or she will never forget this favor.

SCHOOL OF MINES OFFERS FOUR FELLOWSHIPS IN METALLURGY

They Are Open to Graduates Who Have the Equivalent of Bachelor of Science Degree.

In co-operation with the United States Bureau of Mines and the State Mining Experiment Station, the School of Mines and Metallurgy of the University of Missouri is offering four fellowships. These fellowships are open to graduates who have the equivalent of a bachelor of science degree and have had the proper training in mining, metallurgy, or chemistry, and who are qualified to undertake research work. The income of each fellowship is $800 a year for the 12 months beginning July 1, 1921.

Fellows will register as students in the School of Mines and Metallurgy of the University of Missouri and become candidates for the degree of master of science in mining or metallurgy (unless this or an equivalent degree has been earned). Their class work will be directed by the heads of the departments of instruction, but the greater portion of their time will be spent in research work under the direction of the Bureau of Mines staff resident at the School of Mines. The purpose of this work is to undertake the solution of definite problems confronting the mining and metallurgical industries of Missouri. For 1921-22 the four fellowships will be granted in mining, ore dressing, physical metallurgy (heat treatment of steel) and electrometallurgy (zinc).

Applications, with a certified copy of collegiate record, statement of professional experience and names and addresses of three references will be received up to Sept. 1. The application should be addressed to the Director, School of Mines and Metallurgy, University of Missouri, Rolla, Mo.

ELSIE JANIS CHOSEN TO PLAY "PEG O' MY HEART" IN FRENCH

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, June 18.—Miss Elsie Janis is to play "Peg O' My Heart" in French at the Theatre de Vaudeville here during September and October. The extraordinary command of French possessed by this American actress won her the honor of being chosen for the part, although well-known French stars were eager to appear in it.

"I shall not try to use an Irish-French accent because that would not mean anything in Paris," said Miss Janis. "I am going to give it in French as it is pronounced at the Comedie Francaise."

Bull Fighting in Juarez.

EL PASO, Tex.—A five months' season of bull fighting has opened in Juarez. Thousands of Mexicans watch the arena, at $1 a ticket on the shady side and $2 in the shade, the fights being given every Sunday. For an especially attractive fight the shady side tickets are $10 each and those for the sunny side $5. Curious Americans, a hundred or more, attend every fight.

Women Who Drive Their Cars—

PATENTED.

Don't throw away old Piston Rings

Nu-Life is guaranteed to stop oil-pumping and piston slap

Nu-Life Expanders restore full compression to your motor without the expense of new piston rings. Simply place a Nu-Life under each old ring. Piston slap and oil pumping are stopped at once. The old rings, worn to a true fit on the cylinder walls, are thus made better than new.

Any mechanic can install Nu-Life Expanders. For best results use a full set—one under each ring.

Get our circular for full particulars, and order Nu-Life Expanders today. 25c each. Mention make and model of car, or diameter and width of piston ring groove. Money-back guarantee.

TIRES and Tire Prices

There is only one kind of price talk that amounts to anything. You have to give prices that can't be duplicated and have the tires to back them up—and that is the Midwest way of doing it. Look at these prices—don't they take you back before the war? Remember, every tire is first quality, and bears full factory guarantee.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to any cardholders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

THE LAND BEYOND MEXICO, by Rhys Carpenter. The record of a mule-back journey of nearly 1000 miles, taken by an American archeologist through Central America.

SINCE THE CIVIL WAR, by Charles R. Lingley. Covers the period from 1865 at the death of Lincoln to 1920, with the treaty of Versailles. Especial attention is paid to such subjects as the growth of the railroad system, the rise of industrialism after the Civil War and the cry for regulation in behalf of the public interest, growth of the labor unions, immigration, etc. Other unusual topics are the importance of the newspaper press and the periodical, the rise of universities and the great public libraries; and the effect of the corporation form of organization as compared with the co-partnership plan in making possible American industrial development after the Civil War.

THE REIGN OF PATTI, by Herman Klein. An authorized biography of Adelina Patti, and a book for every reader interested in music. A story as splendid as a fairy tale for every reader who delights to come in contact with one of those flaming personalities, which is but rarely given to the world.

THE WORLD AT THE CROSS ROADS, by Boris Brasol. A thought-producing discussion of the forces at work in nations, and other political subjects. New light on the "Third International," and other factors in the world crisis.

THINGS THAT HAVE INTERESTED ME, by Arnold Bennett. We are here given a glimpse of the "outside interests" that a great author has. Chatty remarks about everyday happenings with which the author has come in contact.

MY FIGHTING LIFE, by Georges Carpentier. From the beginning of his professional career as the pupil of Descamps, to his preparations for his fight with Dempsey. One chapter is devoted to "Men I Have Fought."

JAPAN AND THE CALIFORNIA PROMLEM, by T. Iyenaga and K. Sato. In the belief that the Japanese problem is no longer a local matter, but an international issue, this volume has been written for the purpose of analyzing the facts of the case and of interpreting therefrom a fair and broad viewpoint, with the hope of arriving at some conservative principles for a solution of the difficulties.

HOW TO MAKE LIFE A SUCCESS, by Jules Flaux. The author's object is to demonstrate to his readers that nothing is an evil or a misfortune in itself, but that we ourselves in a great measure invite needless suffering by our manner of regarding those things that seem to cause unhappiness and dissatisfaction with life. He believes that the cultivation of will power enables us to meet real disappointments and sorrows.

To Celebrate Fifty-first Wedding Day

Mr. and Mrs. Emile Josse of 2838 South Eighteenth street will celebrate their fifty-first wedding anniversary today. They were married in Holy Angels' Catholic Church, 1008 St. Ange avenue, June 16, 1870. They are among the few old French inhabitants who remember when the district near Grand avenue and Olive street was populated with Indians. They also recall when an island which now is a part of East St. Louis was a duelling place before the Civil War. Mrs. Josse, before her marriage, was Elizabeth Bozar. She is 69 years old and her husband is 73. They have 14 children, 17 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

LINCOLN

EIGHT BODY TYPES

Those who have followed the evolution of the motor car during the past twenty years need not be reminded that no LELAND-BUILT product has ever been permitted to retrograde nor to deteriorate.

And those who have acquainted themselves with the new and unmatched roading capabilities of the LINCOLN car—which have their source in LELAND ideals of progressiveness, and in LELAND principles of manufacture—now see the LINCOLN car removed still further from the sphere of successful rivalry.

Sleeve Valve Motor Improves With Use

50,000 Americans have stopped looking for motor cars! They have found theirs! The motor of lifetime service—outlives any chassis built! The motor that has no valves to grind—no tappets, no crashing noise, no cams, no springs—nothing but smooth service that gets better with use. The Willys-Knight motor—monarch of them all—which in the fine Willys-Knight car averages 20 miles per gallon of gasoline—now reduced $300 and increasing its friends by the thousand every week.

Give Tire Rims Attention.

Water that seeps down between rims and tires quickly rusts neglected rims and destroys tubes, flaps and even the beads or edges of the tire. Use stove polish, nickel paint or graphite to overcome this condition. This also prevents the tire from creeping by giving it a firmer hold on the rim.—Miller News.

AUTO NEWS and GOSSIP

I. H. C. REDUCES PRICE ON ALL TRUCK MODELS

The International Harvester Co., one of the largest motor truck manufacturers in the country, last week announced price reductions on all its motor trucks of from 2000 pounds to 10,000 pounds' capacity. The reduction range from $900 on the 10,000-pound truck to $100 on the 2000-pound truck. Prices of cabs, tops, bodies and such accessories have been reduced 25 per cent.

These reductions mark the most important break in motor truck prices since the period of readjustment began. In explaining them an officer of the company said:

"These new prices reflect prospective reductions in the cost of production made possible by recent reductions of wages throughout our factories, by similar reductions in wages, costs and prices among the manufacturers who supply accessories, and by recent recessions in the market price of raw materials."

PAIGE BREAKS RECORDS FROM 5 TO 100 MILES

A Paige "6-66," driven by Ralph Mulford, broke all world's records for stripped stock car chassis from five to 100 miles in officially sanctioned runs on the Speedway at Uniontown, Pa., May 20, 1921. Included among the new records set up by the Paige was the one-hour mark, Mulford being officially accorded 89 miles, against the 83 established at the Sheepshead Bay Speedway, July 28, 1917.

An official world's stock chassis record was made Jan. 21, 1921, when a Paige "6-66" Daytona model covered a measured mile in 35.01 seconds, a rate of 102.8 miles an hour.

The Paige performances at Uniontown, as at Daytona, Fla., when the mile mark fell, were under the observation of official representatives of the American Automobile Association's Racing Board.

The new world's records made by the Paige, with the time taken from the official electric timing apparatus, follow:

Distance.	Time.	Miles Per Hour.
5 Miles	3:15.88	91.8
10 Miles	6:31.48	91.9
15 Miles	9:45.96	92.1
20 Miles	13:01.48	92.1
25 Miles	16:37.94	90.1
50 Miles	33:16.43	90.1

COLUMBIA ANNOUNCES TWO NEW MODELS

Two new models have just been announced by the Columbia Motors Co. The first of these to be received by the Advance Motors, local Columbia dealers, is the Challenger model, listing at $1495. The new car is a five-passenger touring on a chassis of a 115-inch wheel base. A 45 h. p., six-cylinder Rutenber motor is used.

The second new model will be known as the De Luxe touring car, and will carry as standard equipment disc wheel and cord tire. In this model Continental motor is to be used. A new economy feature known as the Flometer is also carried as standard equipment. This device registers the gasoline mileage, and enables the driver to operate the car at its highest efficiency. This model will sell for $1695.

STANDARD STEEL TAKES OVER VIM TRUCK CO.

Automotive as well as business circles generally will evince a keen interest in the announcement that Standard Steel Car Co. of Pittsburg, Pa., has taken over the Vim Motor Truck Co. of Philadelphia, and will operate it as one of its subsidiaries.

The entrance of such a well-established organization as Standard Steel Car with headquarters at Pittsburg, Pa., and subsidiary manufacturing concerns located in many Eastern as well as Westeori cities, into a dominating position in the motor truck field is significant in that it means the rounding out of a cycle of transportation units by a controling company with enormous facilities at its command.

Prestige and permanence is given to the Vim Motor Truck Co. by reason of its new affiliation. Either direct or through its allied companies, it is now in the position of manufacturing commercial trucks from the raw material to the finished product. Inclusive of motors, axles, transmissions, frames and bodies the gamut of the factory processes is run and Vim Motor Truck Co. has the advantage in that production cannot be held up for lack of control of basic units

DEALERS TO CLOSE THURSDAY FOR PICNIC

The St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association will hold a meeting Tuesday noon at the Marquette Hotel to discuss plans for the annual association picnic which will be held next Thursday. Arrangements are being completed whereby all automobile salesrooms will be closed all day Thursday to enable all mechanics and salesmen to attend the picnic.

SUGGESTS RULES FOR CARE OF TRUCK TIRES

Here is a set of rules for truck drivers on the care of solid and pneumatic truck tires formulated by the technical department of the United States Tire Co. for the benefit of truck owners:

All truck tires have a load limit. Constant, slight or occasional heavy overloads shorten tire life.

Distribute the load in the truck body so each tire will bear its proportionate share of the weight carried.

When applying and dismounting pneumatic truck tires, flap and tube must fit properly and casing fit properly on rim.

Know—don't guess—your inflation pressure. Proper inflation pressure is as important as proper loads and speeds.

Running in car tracks causes tires to break down early. Avoid car tracks.

Check your wheel alignment. Tires cannot give full service if improperly mounted.

Neglected cuts lower tire mileage. Trim off loose slivers of solid tires. Mend the small and repair the large cuts in pneumatic tires.

Chains and other anti-skid devices injure tires. Use chains only when necessary and apply them loosely.

Turn corners slowly to prevent tire strains. Apply power and brakes gradually to avoid useless spinning or locking of wheels.

Tires are cut or scraped occasionally by bent fenders when the loaded truck travels over rough places.

Tires are limited in shock-absorbing power. Careful, slow driving on rough or rutty roads will reduce tire costs.

Overspeeding a tire has the same harmful effect as overloading. Keep truck speed within prescribed limits.

To avoid unnecessary strain, lift the truck weight from the tires when the truck is to be idle any considerable time.

AUTO MAKERS PLAN MUTUAL INSURANCE

Forced by the increase of insurance rates during the past few months, the automobile manufacturers and dealers are again turning their attention to the need for an insurance company to care for motor cars and trucks, similar to the one launched four years ago.

At the office of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in in New York, it was stated that the loose methods of accepting risks, over generous coverage and overhead expense on the part of the insurance companies, has resulted in their requiring rates from which the only relief lies in the furthering of plans for mutual companies and for dealer organizations which are now actively under consideration.

"There are some 9,000,000 motor vehicles in this country," said Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, "and a decreasing percentage are taking out insurance because of higher rates. The moral hazard receives no consideration. A burglar just out of jail gets the same rate as a respectable citizen.

"The amounts allowed on cars and trucks almost encourage their being burned up or destroyed to be reported as stolen.

"We hear many times of legislation to force everyone to take a bond on their car on the ground that it would prevent accidents. Such action would make accidents more frequent because it would shift the responsibility of the driver."

OWNERS DRIVE IN NEW ECONOMY TEST

Claims of high economy in fuel consumption by Overland owners led to a novel owners' contest just finished at Indianapolis.

Sixty-six owners of Overland cars entered the test and their records showed a grand average of 26.6 miles to the gallon of gasoline. The winner, James Wilson, an Indianapolis owner, secured a mileage of 37.2 miles.

Under the terms of the contest the owners brought their cars at hours which best suited their convenience to a central service station where all gasoline was drained from their cars and a special container affixed to a stanchion of the windshield. An observer then got in the car with the owner and the car was driven over a route which took the car into all manner of traffic conditions. All carburetor adjustments and any tuning of the cars for the test were done by the owners.

The first 12 awards in the contest were won by owners who drove more than 30 miles to the gallon.

LEXINGTON CUTS PRICE.

Announcement was made last week by the Weber Implement and Automobile Co. of a price reduction on all Lexington models, which ranges from $200 to $600. The new prices, which are effective June 20, cover both the model S, which is equipped with Continental motor, and the model T, which has the Ansted motor.

The largest reduction was on the Lex-sedan, which was reduced from $2785 to $2185. The model S touring, which formerly sold at $2285, is now $1885, and the Thoroughbred model, $1985. A reduction of $200 on the model T touring makes the new price $2785. Corresponding reductions were also made on closed cars.

THE more critical you are of motor performance, the more you are impressed with the Holmes. For the Aeroduct—a device used for the first time and exclusively on Series 4 Holmes cars—brings the fundamentally right system of air-cooling to perfection, and for the first time makes possible an air-cooled car of full size.

Thus, to the motorist whose experience with fine cars has taught that quality is but another word for economy, the Holmes only strengthens his conviction. Its powerful six-cylinder motor—aeroplane type with dual exhaust valves—is so adequately cooled that it is guaranteed not to over-heat. Its full elliptic springs and flexible chassis cushion every part against the shocks of roughest travel. Its all-aluminum body and the elimination of useless weight make it the lightest known car of its size—capable of getting up to 15,000 miles from tires and 20 miles to each gallon of gasoline.

A phone call will bring a Holmes to your door.

ESSEX

How to Choose a Motor Car

Do you choose an automobile merely by its looks?

Appearances alone often determine the choice.

But the way to judge an automobile is by what it and rival cars are doing after a year's hard service.

So the showroom view and the demonstration we can give you cannot reveal the long endurance you get in the Essex.

But from scores of owners you will learn what Essex means in reliable service, in low operating cost, in freedom from repairs.

Our demonstration will show performance of a character no similarly priced car will undertake. It is fine to know that one drives a car that need not give way to any other on any stretch of open road or hill.

It is fine to know you have as sturdy and as good a performer as those who are driving cars costing twice the Essex price.

But the greater delight grows as month after month you learn Essex reliability.

All its advantages cannot be seen in the new car. Many devices which provide for longer wear or for taking up wear at no expense are not conspicuous.

The Essex clutch, as an example, so completely performs its function, owners are hardly conscious that the car has such a unit.

There are many types of clutches.

In a new car they operate equally well. But time reveals the difference and justifies the greater cost put into the Essex in design and workmanship.

Throughout the Essex are found just such items that assure a longer, more satisfactory service.

So when owners tell you of two-year-old cars and of twenty or thirty thousand miles of service be not surprised. It is not that they have an unusually good Essex, but that every Essex is so different from other cars of its class that it rightfully holds its exclusive title as "The moderate priced, economical light weight car with costly car performance and reliability."

Would any similarly priced car be as desirable after a year's service?

FAVORITE OF 15 CARS

Have driven 3000 miles to date and instead of depreciating in efficiency my Essex has increased daily.

It is the greatest of 15 makes I have driven. My next car will be an Essex. And so will the next.

I average in Summer driving 19 miles and in Winter 15 miles per gallon.

I do not know what tire trouble is.

ACTIVITY IN REAL ESTATE FORECASTS BUOYANT MARKET

Several Large Office Structures Involved in Deals of Week — William Sacks Buys Holland Building.

NEW BUILDING PROJECTS PLANNED

Vacant Block Between 17th, 18th, Chestnut and Pine Streets to Be Improved With Big Structure.

By Berry Moore.

Developments forecast a buoyant real estate market throughout the summer. Contracts were executed during the week for acquisition of several large holdings in the business district east of Twelfth street, and negotiations for others are progressing favorably, according to real estate circles.

As was announced in the Post-Dispatch during the week, William Sacks, who has amassed wealth in oil circles, has entered into contracts with the Union Electric Light and Power Co. for the purchase of the Holland Building, a 12-story office structure at 207 North Seventh street, held by a subsidiary of that corporation.

The consideration involved has not been disclosed, but it is understood that Sacks will acquire the building at a most advantageous price. The advance in the rentals of office space gave the Holland Building an investment status which made it attractive both as an investment and speculation at the price at which it was available.

Recently Bought Victoria Building.

Sacks recently purchased the Victoria Building at the northwest corner of Eighth and Locust streets, it having also been placed on a high investment plane by reason of the big uplift in rentals of office space.

Negotiations were also concluded for the purchase of a promient corner east of Twelfth street, the consideration for which, it was understood, will approximate $500,000, but details are withheld pending the passing of final papers.

The corner, which is improved with a substantial building under lease at a handsome rental, has been acquired as a permanent investment. An offer has been submitted for another corner in downtown St. Louis, whose value is placed at more than $1,000,000. It is desired as a site for a large office structure.

The movement in this section of the market is steadily gaining headway, indications being that by fall it will have developed broad proportions. The demand is focused on both fee and 99-year leaseholds, the latter being especially sought in instances in which sites are available for immediate improvement. There is no dearth of large building projects, several of which contemplate lofty office buildings and hotel structures, the demand, in fact, running the gamut of construction.

The movement west of Twelfth street will take definite form with the improvement of the vacant block extending from Seventeenth and Eighteenth and Chestnut to Pine street, for which is projected a large building by interests which have ample resources.

Capital in Greater Volume.

Capital for flotation purposes is of a greater volume now than heretofore. This fact is bringing forth many improvement plans, many of which have been on the tapis before, but which have been deferred by restrictions placed on loans of this character.

Lovering & Co., manufacturers and wholesalers of chemicals, have obtained a five-year lease of 20,000 square feet of space in a building at 161 Dock street, owned by the Hafner Manufacturing Co. This property is located on the terminal railway tracks, and is easily accessible from the central business district.

The Liberty Realty Co., composed of the clients of the Frank Obear & Son Realty Co., has made several large purchases of vacant ground. These include 150 feet frontage on the south side of Delmar boulevard, midway between Skinker road and Rosedale avenue, and 170 feet on the south side of Page boulevard, west of West End avenue. The valuation given the Delmar frontage is $150 a foot. This purchase, which was made as a speculation, was prompted by the belief that this part of Delmar boulevard would be greatly benefited by construction of the proposed viaduct over the Wabash Railway and the River des Peres, the carrying through of this project being regarded as virtually assured.

The price mentioned for the ground on Page boulevard was $60 a front foot. It was acquired as a site for a large apartment building, which is to be constructed without delay.

The southwest corner of Page and West End avenue and the northwest corner of Vernon and West End avenues, improved with stores and flats, is owned by the James M. Carpenter estate. Page boulevard and Vernon avenue converge at this point, giving the block the form of a triangle. This entire block was purchased by the late James Carpenter at $3 a front foot 50 or more years ago.

Demand for Homesites Large.

The demand for sites for dwellings was also a distinct feature, the majority of the prospective purchasers having plans for homes. Thus it appears as if the housing problem is destined to be solved sooner or later by construction.

That the big life insurance companies, having large sums to lend, purpose to make an appreciable amount of their surplus available for the financing of home buying, as well as of home construction, is indicated from an address by Vice President Woodruff of the Prudential Insurance Co., published in a recent issue of the Prudential Weekly Record, the official organ of the insurance company.

The Prudential, according to its vice president, contemplates making a 12-year loan by the terms of which both the principal and interest will be reduced monthly, so that it will be entirely amortized during that period. It does not intend, however, to advance any money for construction, but will commit itself from plans and specifications as to the amount it will lend on the completion of work.

May Stimulate Purchase of Homes.

While the capital from this source may stimulate purchases of homes, it will little avail persons with building plans who have no other means than those represented by the site.

Sometime ago a story was abroad that the Prudential was considering alloting a large amount for home building purposes in St. Louis, but it was denied. It was stated, however, that the company proposed to distribute its loans on city property in the future instead of concentrating them in New York, as heretofore.

As a city of stable real estate values and characterized by conservative policies, St. Louis doubtless will share in commensuration with its advantages in any money forthcoming from insurance companies for home building purposes.

The demand for houses, as well as for sites for improvements of this character, as the result of this enterprise, would be greatly stimulated,

MERCANTILE TRUST TAKES OVER HOUSING ASSOCIATION AFFAIRS

Will Offer 26 Unsold Houses on Same Terms as Those Originally Prevailing.

The Mercantile Trust Co., which has taken over the administration of the affairs of the Home and Housing Association, has announced that the 26 unsold houses of the association will be offered on the same terms as prevailed for the sale of 101 houses built by the association. As previously stated, no new houses will be built.

The employes of the Home and Housing Association, which had offices in the Chamber of Commerce building were dismissed last week.

The Hewson Realty Co. represented both parties.

BROADWAY PROPERTY RE-SOLD

Heirs Bid in Building of Glasgow Estate for $20,500.

A four-story building at 105 North Broadway, belonging to the estate of Mrs. Sarah Glasgow, who died 33 years ago, was sold yesterday at Sheriff's sale at the east front door of the courthouse. It was bid in by a group of the heirs for $20,500, or about $800 a front foot.

A month ago the same property was auctioned and bid in by the same heirs for $25,000, but the sale was not approved by agreement of the parties, who said that they believed another sale would produce a higher figure. The first floor of the building is occupied by a restaurant.

Portland Place Home of Late J. T. Milliken, Which Has Been Sold

The transaction was effected by Franciscus & Kunz, who declined to disclose the price paid. The original cost of the home was $90,000, in addition to considerable sums spent by Milliken in subsequent improvements.

The house, which is one of the most imposing in Portland place, occupies a lot 126x200 feet. The premises also include a garage for three cars.

REAL ESTATE BOARDS TO MEET IN CHICAGO

About 250 Delegates From St. Louis Expected to Attend Convention July 12 to 15.

President Hannauer announces rapid progress in arrangements for the St. Louis delegation that will attend the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, Chicago, July 12 to 15, and says that the convention in point of attendance and importance of the business sessions will be the greatest ever held by the association. The St. Louis delegation will number about 250. Hon. Herbert Hoover will be in attendance as the direct representative of the Washington administration. The program of entertainment is elaborate and includes lake trips, reception and grand march on the Municipal Pier and a trip by special train to Great Lakes Naval Training Station, where luncheon will be served in the large messroom of that station. A grand barbecue and boxing and wrestling matches will be held by the sailors. The South Side Country Club will be thrown open for the entertainment of the delegates of the convention.

Reservations for the St. Louis delegation have been made at the Sherman Hotel, and President Hannauer suggests that those intending to go and who have not as yet made reservations should do so at once. The St. Louis party will go by special train over the Wabash Railroad.

TITLE GUARANTY BUILDING SOLD AT TRUSTEE'S AUCTION TO LAWYER FOR $242,500

Dwight D. Currie, Purchaser of 12-Story Structure, Understood to Represent Syndicate of St. Louisans.

The Title Guaranty Building, a 12-story building at the southwest corner of Seventh and Chestnut streets, was auctioned at trustee's sale at the courthouse yesterday and sold to Dwight D. Currie, a lawyer, for $242,500. Currie is understood to represent a syndicate of St. Louisans, comprising principally holders of mortgage bonds against the property, among whom are Paul Brown, August Schlafly and W. C. Connett. John S. Leahy, a lawyer, who owns $10,000 of the bonds, was the only other bidder. He stopped with a bid of $240,000. The opening bid was for $200,000, made by Currie.

The sale was for the benefit of bondholders holding an aggregate mortgage of $300,000. The Lincoln Trust Co. is trustee of this mortgage and was represented by W. Frank Carter, a lawyer, and president of the Chamber of Commerce, who acted as auctioneer. Carter announced that the gross annual rentals are $132,000. It is said that the value of the building has been estimated as high as $600,000. Leahy said that the property would be cheap at $250,000. It is understood the purchaser will have to expend about $150,000 for improvements, taxes and other items.

Currie gave Carter a cashier's check for $10,000. Carter said that if the balance was not paid by Tuesday the sale would be cried over.

A notice was read at the sale by Mark M. Anderson, president of the Title Guaranty Trust Co., which occupies part of the ground floor, that the purchaser of the property would be expected to take it subject to a rental lease the trust company made several months ago for its quarters, with the agreement of bondholders.

The syndicate, it is understood, is represented by Isaac T. Cook and Cornet & Zeibig.

CANDIDACIES FOR POLITICAL POSTS ALREADY FORMING

Comment at Jefferson City Mentions Gov. Hyde, David M. Proctor and W. S. Dickey as Senatorial Material.

LLOYD MAY HAVE EYE UPON GOVERNORSHIP

Hackmann, Barrett and Gray Also Named, but Each Is Coy When Asked About the Matter.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18.—Out of the fog which has enshrouded many appointive and legislative transactions in Missouri within recent months, are drifting a number of well-defined political ambitions which are exefcising no small influence in the State Capitol and upon happenings in Washington in which Missourians are directly concerned. All of the balloons which have been sent for trial flights so far, have been Republican, the henchmen of that party still retaining the flush of confidence which permeated them after the election last November.

And though the bye-election for the selection of a successor to United States Senator James A. Reed still is more than a year off, and though gubernatorial election is more than three years in the future, partisans of at least three Republicans are endeavoring to kindle senatorial campfires for their favorites, and four Republicans have their ears attuned for the gubernatorial call.

The list is as follows:

For Senator—Gov. Hyde, Walter S. Dickey of Kansas City, State Senator David M. Proctor of Kansas City.

For Governor—Lieutenant-Governor Lloyd, State Auditor Hackmann, Attorney-General Barrett, State Senator Howard Gray of Carthage.

All Deny Candidacy.

All of these men declare, as politicians always do at such an early stage, that they are not condidates, though most of them admit that their friends are clamoring for favorable consideration of the call to save the State and nation.

Hyde used very definite language in telling newspaper men in St. Louis recently that he would not be a candidate for United States Senator next year.

Presidents of the United States, however, have been known to change their minds about such declarations, and there is an unmistakable current of expectation in State political circles that Hyde will don the gubernatorial mantle to try for entrance to the Senate.

Republican politicians of the old guard, who have been systematically ignored by the State administration, have pointed to the close working arrangement between Hyde and United States Senator Spencer and between Hyde and Lloyd, with knowing smiles.

They feel that Spencer, as a St. Louisan, would like to get Hyde out of the way, senatorially, before he has to defend his toga again, for Republicans in the west end of the State want a United States Senator of their own. Spencer, until the close of the primary fight last August, had been working closely with the Babler-Morse-Goldstein wing of the party, but with the ascendancy of the Hyde star, he immediately joined forces with "Arthur," as he familiarly designates the Governor.

From that time, ostensibly, he has been in close harmony with the Hyde forces, appearing to have made a strong fight at Washington for the selection of Merrill E. Otis of St. Joseph, an Assistant Attorney General, for United States District Attorney at Kansas City, an appointment which finally went to Charles Madison of Kansas City over the opposition of the State administration. Hyde also has done a fair share toward cementing an alliance with Spencer, having tendered the Senator's law partner, Forrest C. Donnell, an appointment as Circuit Judge in St. Louis, which Donnell refused, however.

Lloyd May Have Ambitions.

Lloyd's interest in a race by Hyde for the Senate, would accrue from his elevation thereby to the executive offices. And it is fairly definitely understood that Lloyd did not emerge from a political retirement of several years, solely to be Lieutenant-Governor, an office which of itself carries only a nominal meed of power and prestige, and which financially is usually regarded as a liability.

There are those who believe that Lloyd wants to succeed Mayor Kiel four years hence, but most politicians regard Lloyd's almost superhuman efforts to render the Hyde administration a success, as due partly to a desire to follow the Trenton man as Governor, either by automatic elevation if Hyde runs for the Senate, or after a battle at the polls, should Hyde serve out the four years.

Hyde is young as Governors go, being still in his forties, and manifests a liking for political power, which lends color to the senatorial gossip. Aided by Lloyd's iron will as evidenced in the Senate caucus combination, which was held together solely through the Lieutenant-Governor's domination, Hyde was enabled to drive through the Legislature his set of consolidation bills, which had they not been suspended by the referendum attacks of the Democratic State organization, would have given him many times the power ever exercised by any previous Missouri Governor.

Bills Consolidated Bureaus.

These bills consolidated numerous State bureaus and departments under a few heads, directly responsible to Hyde, and he further made certain of control by having inserted in most of the appropriation bills provisions that the money appropriated to State bureaus, boards and institutions, should not be expended until specifically released, item by item, by him. His disappointment at the suspension of these bills has been demonstrated by efforts to punish all connected with the referendum, the removal of Grain and Warehouse Commissioner Bradshaw and his tacitly admitted intention to proceed likewise against Food and Drug Commissioner Barnhouse, being samples.

Hyde has maintained steadfastly that his and Lloyd's support of these bills was for the benefit of the State in the belief that centralized control would bring economy and higher efficiency. Unfriendly critics have asserted, however, that the bills were one move in a plan to build a Hyde-Lloyd machine of extensive proportions.

Lloyd and Hyde were almost inseparable during the regular session of the Legislature, and for weeks afterward, Lloyd coming here at frequent intervals, and often being a guest at the executive mansion on those occasions. The Lieutenant-Governor staid close by until the senatorial redistricting had been accomplished, having more than a spectator's share in that operation, although the Constitution lays its performance solely upon the Governor, Secretary of State and Attorney-General.

Hyde then determined to tour the State institutions and Lloyd went with him.

Previous Lieutenant-Governors have been content to exercise their constitutional functions of presiding over the Senate and acting as Governor during the absence from the State of that official.

Hyde ran for Governor on an "anti-boss" platform, yet it is recalled that he went to St. Louis and delivered a speech in the campaign of Mayor Kiel for re-election when all of the "anti-boss" forces in the city were aligned against the city hall coalition.

Hyde's Adherents Varied.

In Kansas City, Hyde's allies are the original "anti-bosses," out in the State they seem to be largely "Bull Moose" Republicans who have nothing in common with the Babler-Morse-Goldstein wing, while in St. Louis he has cultivated the machine, though giving it few appointments.

These things often are spun into the yarn out of which political socks are knitted.

Of the other senatorial probabilities, not so much is spoken.

Dickey, as a wealthy manufacturer, powerful old guard politician and now owner of a Republican newspaper at Kansas City, is known to have had the senatorial bee for years, and is regarded as a possible starter in every such race.

Proctor has risen to political prominence only within the last two years. He started as a Kansas City "anti-bosser," being elected to the State Senate as such, but along with Madison quit that faction within a few days after the November election because of personal differences with some of the other leading lights of that group. He is a young lawyer, a son-in-law of State Senator Whitecotton, a Democrat, and admittedly is considering the geographical advantage of Kansas City as the base for a senatorial campaign next fall.

A few Republicans, more in jest than in earnest, have suggested that Senator Reed may be the Republican nominee, because of his bitter opposition to the League of Nations and other legislation which he opposed in company with Republicans in the Senate.

The State Senate, which is controlled by Republicans, recently adopted a resolution by Senator Seneker, Republican, to invite Reed to address the Legislature during his present stay in Missouri.

Various constructions are placed upon this fact. Of the gubernatorial prospects Lloyd and Hackmann hold the center of conversation.

Hackmann Is "Taking Notice."

Hackmann said: "I am not a candidate, but many of my friends have been urging me to run."

It has been noticed, however, that Hackmann is taking considerable interest in conventions of one sort or another and that he looks with considerable displeasure on the prominent part in State affairs being taken by Lloyd. Lloyd in turn has wasted no love in recent months upon the Auditor.

Friends of Hackmann are said to hold Lloyd and Senator Gray, President pro tem. of the Senate, as responsible for the defeat of a bill during the last session of the Legislature which would have allowed the Auditor to name a large staff of examiners to audit the books of counties and of State departments and institutions.

Hackmann in turn held up a voucher issued about two weeks ago by the Centennial Commission to Lloyd for $100 "for a stenographer at St. Louis" for the stated reason that it should have borne the stenographer's name rather than Lloyd's. There have been other evidences of the mutual feelings of the possible rivals.

Barrett, asking about running for Governor, said, "I will return to St. Louis as a lawyer, at the completion of my term here as Attorney-General," explaining that his ambitions are professional, and that from his observation of the trials of a Governor, that office is to be avoided rather than sought. He admitted, however, that circumstances might arise which would force any man to accetp such a nomination even at a personal sacrfice, to prevent it from falling into hands which should not grasp such a trust. It is recalled in that connection that Gov. Hadley and Gov. Major moved from the Attorney-General's office to that of the State executive, and that Barrett is treading partly in their footsteps.

Both of them were rather successful with anti-trust proceedings, which brought them into considerable prominence and Barrett now has in progress an investigation involving building material men in St. Louis. Barrett has steered clear, largely of the differences which have arisen between Hyde and some of the other elective State officers, and has refrained from becoming enmeshed in some of the transactions which have brought censure to the Governor, so that to date he has maintained an independent freedom of action.

Southwest Backing Gray.

Gray is regarded by Republicans of Southwest Missouri as their best card for the gubernatorial nomination, and has been closely watched in the State Senate for that reason. The caucus combine and Lloyd's overshadowing domination of the Senate however gave the Jasper County lawyer but small opportunity to show whether he is as big a man as his friends maintain.

Gray's participation in politics has been confined for the most part to his own section, no statewide ventures having been made by him as yet. This fact has its advantages, however, as it leaves him without many of the enmities which always are left from factional strife within a party organization.

These cross-currents of personal ambition mave made themselves felt in no small degree, not only during the recent regular session of the Legislature, but also in the developments since the close of that session. Whether any of them will become a determining factor in the campaigns of 1922 or 1924 is one of the unsolved mysteries veiled by the future.

How Missouri Will Celebrate 100th Anniversary of Statehood At Sedalia, Aug. 8 to 20

Pageant Will Show Growth, in 15 Episodes—Exhibition of Historical Objects Also in Addition to Annual State Fair.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., June 18.—On Aug. 10, 100 years ago, Missouri was admitted to the Union. In commemoration of the event, she is celebrating with a great Centennial Exposition this year. The official Statewide celebration will be held in Sedalia Aug. 8 to 20, in connection with the Missouri State Fair.

Missouri is really more than a hundred years old. Two hundred and 39 years ago, on April 9, 1682, the French voyage an dexplorer, La Salle, took possession of Missouri in the country called "Louisiana," which he claimed in the name of the King of France. The territory was sold to the United States on Dec. 20, 1803. In 1804, Congress divided the territory in two parts, Upper and Lower Louisiana.

In June, 1812, Missouri was organized as a territory with an Assembly and Governor. William Clark was the first territorial Governor, from 1813-1820. In 1818, Missouri applied for admission as a State. Two years of bitter controversy, during which were evolved the "Dred Scott Decision" and the "Missouri Compromise," followed. Finally, after three years of struggle, Missouri was officially admitted to the Union on Aug. 10, 1821. The Capitol was then in St. Louis and Alexander McNair was the first Governor. The seat of government was later moved to St. Charles, and in 1826 was removed to Jefferson City.

Pageant to Show Growth.

"The Pageant of Missouri," which represents in 15 episodes the growth of Missouri from a frontier community to a great sovereign State, will be one of the biggest features of the Centennial, and will depict all the important episodes in Missouri history. This magnificent historical spectacle, presented every night of the first week, will have a gorgeous scenic setting, with wonderful lighting effects. More than 5000 characters, attired in costumes representative of the periods of Missouri history, will appear in the pageant.

Thirty scenic artists arrived in Sedalia last week, and have turned one of the immense fair buildings into a giant studio where they are at work with paint and canvas, building the elaborate scenery for the pageant. Missouri's history has been carefully studied in connection with the work. Important episodes, events and places of historical significance have been included in the presentation. Rehearsals of the pageant have already started, and will be continued until the production is ready for presentation at the Centennial.

Invitation is extended to all natives and former residents of Missouri throughout the country to return to Missouri in August, and attend their mother State's big birthday party. Letters are being received daily at the Centennial offices here from former Missourians everywhere. Special trains are coming from many communities—the distance record being held, thus far, by a special train from Los Angeles. Centennial organizations have been formed in States and communities where former Missourians are numerous, and thousands of their members are planning to attend the Centennial.

Governors' Descendants' Day.

There have been 52 Governors of Missouri. They have approximately 1000 living descendants. All of these descendants have been asked to be guests of the Centennial Commission on "Descendants' day," Aug. 9, when a special program will be held in their honor.

On Monday, Aug. 8, President Harding will press an electric button in Washington and throw open the gates of the exposition. Four regiments of Missouri National Guardsmen will conduct Gov. Arthur M. Hyde, Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Lloyd and other prominent State officials to the fair grounds, where they will officially open all exhibits.

On Wednesday, Aug. 10, President Harding is expected to visit the exposition. He is scheduled to make an address. It is expected that Gen. Pershing, Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz, Gen. E. H. Crowder and other prominent Missourians will be present also.

Two hundred and fifty thousand Centennial half dollars will be struck by the United States Mint at Washington in commemoration of the event. On one side will be the State seal of Missouri, and on the other a pioneer's head, with the words, "Missouri Centennial, 1821-1921." The coin was designed by Robert Aitken of New York City, medalist and sculptor. The coins will be issued in change for admissions at the gates of the exposition.

Exhibit of Relics.

To the pioneer settlers of Missouri, who crossed the Mississippi more than 100 years ago and endured all the sufferings and hardships of a primitive country, inhabited by Indians, goes the credit for early progress of the state. Relics, antiques and articles of historical significance used by the pioneers will make an interesting historical collection at the exposition. The Centennial Commission has provided for a historical exhibits department and offers $704 in prizes for the best collections of relics exhibited. The public is invited to enter articles of historical value.

In addition to the historical features and exhibits there will be all the usual attractions of the Missouri State Fair, including vast agricultural, floricultural and livestock exhibits, educational exhibits, a comprehensive farm implement and tractor show, with plowing demonstrations in the fields, livestock shows, horse races, automobile races, airplane exhibitions and other amusements, including a pyro-spectacle, "Arabian Nights," which ends with a gorgeous fireworks display.

Sedalia is busily preparing for the accommodation of visitors. The Bureau of Information of the Chamber of Commerce is listing available rooms in private homes. "Every home in Sedalia from the most humble to the most palatial will be thrown open wide for your comfort and entertainment," says Mayor F. F. Hatton. Lodges, churches and schoolhouses will operate large dining halls to feed the visitors.

The beautiful 312-page premium list, announcing premiums of $93,220—approximately twice the amount ever given before—will be ready for distribution in a few days. It contains full details and complete classifications in each department, as well as general information about the Centennial Fair. The book will be mailed free on request to E. G. Bylander, general manager, Sedalia.

REQUEST THAT LEGISLATURE ENACT MOVIE CENSOSHIP

Movement by "Committee of Fifty" to Get Action at Special Session.

A request that the subject of State censorship of moving pictures be taken up by the Legislature, in the present special session, has been made by the legislative committee of the Committee of Fifty, which is backing the censorship measure. The legislative committee consists of John M. Atkinson, A. L. Abbott, Luke E. Hart, George B. Mangold, E. V. P. Schneiderhahn, O'Neill Ryan and Mrs. E. T. Senseney. The resolution adopted by the committee is as follows:

"Whereas the bill providing for the creation of State Board of Censors of Motion Pictures passed the House at the recent session of the Legislature by a vote of 111 to 4, but failed to receive consideration by the Senate because of lateness of report in the House bill so passed, and

"Whereas, the necessity of such control to include immoral and shameless pictures is more and more apparent and the Eastern States are adopting that plan of control;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that we request the leaders of the Legislature favorable to the creation of a State Board of Censors of Motion Pictures to urge the Governor to submit that question by special message to the Legislature."

THE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

As usual, towered above all other St. Louis newspapers, making a substantial GAIN over May of last year, while each of the other newspapers had substantial LOSSES in Total Paid Advertising.

Post-Dispatch Makes a New St. Louis Record — The Total Paid Advertising carried by the Post-Dispatch in May was 1,843,800 agate lines. This was the largest May volume ever printed in the history of the Post-Dispatch, or any other St. Louis newspaper.

Post-Dispatch Carries More Than Globe-Democrat and Star Combined — In May, 1921, the Post-Dispatch alone carried more Total Paid, also more Home-Merchants' Advertising than the Globe-Democrat and Star combined, exceeding both added together by 182,460 lines in Home-Merchants' Advertising, and 178,500 lines in Total Paid Advertising.

Post-Dispatch Alone GAINED—Globe-Democrat, Star and Times LOST. — In May the Post-Dispatch was the only St. Louis newspaper to GAIN in Total Paid Advertising over the corresponding month of last year. The Post-Dispatch GAINED 264,320 lines. The Globe-Democrat lost 81,900 lines, the Star lost 217,800 lines and the Times lost 67,800 lines. In Home-Merchants' Advertising the Post-Dispatch gained 319,480 lines; the Globe-Democrat lost 23,100 lines; the Star lost 168,000 lines; the Times lost 65,700 lines.

Post-Dispatch ALONE Exceeded All 3 Others Combined in "Real Estate and Wants." — In May, 1921, the Post-Dispatch alone exceeded all 3 of the other newspapers combined in "Real Estate and Wants" by 30,620 lines. The first 5 months of 1921 the Post-Dispatch carried 153,520 lines more than the Globe-Democrat, Star and Times added together.

These Figures Do Not Include Cheap Legal or Exchange

The Reason: — The Post-Dispatch is recognized by both Home and National buyers of space as THE medium to cover the field.

The City Circulation of the Sunday Post-Dispatch Is Greater Than That of Any Other St. Louis Newspaper by One Hundred Per Cent

Our dear mother, Anna I. Bohlender, was laid to rest three years ago. Hereafter is no suffering or pain, which death has never yet explained, the dead who have no shield, the grave which is your seal, and will bring relief from all sorrow. Sadly missed by her son,
AUGUST, AND RELATIVES.

In memory of Agnes Randolph Jackson, who died June 17, 1918.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
SON, DAUGHTER AND FAMILY.

In sweet memory of our dear parents, John Keller, who died May 20, 1912, and Augusta Keller, who died June 15, 1920.
Our hearts are filled with sorrow
Our eyes bedimmed with tears;
Oh, how we miss you, dear parents;
How we wish that you were here
To cheer us as none other
And drive away our tears.
Sadly missed by CHILDREN.

In memory of my dear son and brother, Hubert Kissel, who departed this life two years ago, June 18, 1919.

The flowers they lay upon the grave,
May stay and decay,
But the love for him that sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.

MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

In sad and loving memory of my dear husband and our dear father, Eugene Dauer, who departed this life, two years ago, June 20, 1919.

MRS. E. DAUER AND CHILDREN.

In memory of our dear mother, mother-in-law and grandmother, Caroline Goddeyne, who departed this life one year ago, June 18, 1920:
Sweet is the memory of our loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of her today are the ones who loved her best.
Sadly missed by her
DAUGHTERS, SONS-IN-LAW AND GRANDCHILDREN, MARCELLA AND RAYMOND.

In memory of my beloved husband and our dear father, Clarence S. Chapman, who departed this life June 20, 1919:

When evening shadows are falling
And we are sitting all alone,
To our thoughts there comes a longing
If papa could only come home.
Beloved husband, true and kind,
No friend like you can earth I'll find.
Sadly missed by his lonely
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our darling mother, Catherine Withman (nee Dampmann), who departed this life June 20, 1920:
We have lost our darling mother,
She has bid us all adieu;
She has gone to live in Heaven
And her form is lost to view.
O, that dear one, how we loved her,
O, how hard to give her up;
But an angel came down for her
And removed her from our sight.
The God who gave has taken,
And Heaven our parent won;
Although our hearts are sad,
The will of God is done.
Heaven now retains our treasure,
Earth the barren one keeps;
Lonely hearts will always linger
Where our darling mother sleeps.
Sadly missed by
ALL WHO LOVED HER.

VERA D.—Trinity Sunday was celebrated in 1865 on June 11.

J. F.—There is no premium on a Columbian half dollar of 1893.

BEERS HOTEL.—Mary Baker Eddy died in Boston, Dec. 3, 1910.

L. S. L.—Consult the moving picture magazines for the information wanted.

T. T.—Your first cousin's children would be your second cousins, and would be third cousins to your children.

BUD J. L.—Write to the manufacturer regarding the watch, giving all particulars and requesting that they make good on their guarantee.

T. P. M.—A straight flush beats a full house in the game of poker, deuces wild. The only invincible hand is four deuces and the joker. Five of a kind comes next, then a straight flush, four of a kind, a full house, a flush, triplets, two pairs and one pair.

MAE.—A weak solution of corrosive sublimate is very deadly to ants. Not only does it kill them eventually, but it seems to craze them before death, so that ants of the same nest, after coming into contact with the poison, will attack each other with the greatest ferocity. Surrounding the ants' nests with sulphur is also effective. Carbon disulphide injected into the ant hills stepping on each as it is treated, to close it up, is very effective. The volatile vapors of the disulphide penetrate the chambers of the nest and if sufficient has been used, will kill not only the adult insects but the larvae as well.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

H. F.—You should move by July 1.

A. B.—A personal note is good for 10 years after it comes due.

A READER.—Insanity occurring subsequent to marriage is not grounds for a divorce.

D. M.—You can get a divorce from your husband for nonsupport and desertion after one year.

FLORENCE.—You can avoid paying rent after you move by giving a month's notice of your intention to move.

I. A.—Under the circumstances described in your letter you should be married again at the end of the year.

A. C.—It is legal for a married woman, living with her husband, to use her maiden name in obtaining employment, but it is very unwise unless her husband consents and her employer knows about it.

TIP TOP.—It is unlawful in Missouri for a man and woman to live together as man and wife unless there has been a common-law marriage. A divorce is needed if one of the persons wishes to marry another person, if there has been a common-law marriage.

IGNORANT 23.—If the tenant in the house you bought has no written lease, and you have given him the notice to move, he has to go at the end of his month you can use him for unlawful detainer and get possession. Sue in the Justice Court.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

BRUNETTE.—See answer to Blondie.

MALE.—See answer to Blondie. The diphtheria might have been the cause of your hair falling if it had been more recent, but not after a period of two years.

FRANK B.—Almost always in cases of excessive perspiration, either general or local, some constitutional derangement exists which should be located, and if possible, corrected. Do not wash too often, only when absolutely necessary, and then use formalin soap. Instead of washing, wipe with a damp cloth and dry with a soft towel, without friction. Salt baths are sometimes serviceable. After bathing or wiping use the following powder: 4 drams each of pulverized acid salicylic, pul. zinc carb. praecip., pul. magnesiae ustae, 15 drams pulv. amyli; 20 drams pulv. salci.

CONSTIPATED. — Disregarding the question of appendicitis, which seems a great deal to do with your first doctor or a deliberate intention of doing wholesale appendicotomies whether or not, it seems your trouble is mainly constipation. The physician attending you no doubt has you in line to return to normal and we advise you to stick to him. You do not mention being advised as to regularity, which we regard as all important. Set an hour for this and endeavor to have your bowels move at that time. A condition caused no doubt by years of neglect is not remedied at once. The other remedy was probably corpus lutea hypodermically. The skin of your body is no doubt exceedingly sensitive to any irritation. You will have to be careful what you use on it.

BLONDIE.—A certain amount of dandruff in the hair is normal, it is the natural exfoliation of the upper layer of the skin of the scalp. When it becomes excessive it generally indicates some disturbance in the scalp and is very often found to precede falling of the hair. Excessive dandruff, therefore, merits attention of those who wish to preserve the hair. There are three forms of baldness from a practical viewpoint, senile baldness, premature baldness and symptomatic baldness. The first two are not amenable to treatment from the standpoint of cure, although the premature baldness the eventual loss of the hair may be delayed somewhat. It is in symptomatic baldness that treatment is effective, and it is to this form that the following applies. Disorder of the general health is often reflected in the loss of the hair, and this should be considered in such cases, and departure from the normal health being sought for and corrected. Locally the treatment may be summed up in the one word "stimulation." Weekly, semiweekly or even daily cleansing of the scalp should be practiced. This is best done with the following wash: 5 ounces of sanonis viridis; 2 ounces alcohol. Dissolve with heat and filter. After shampooing with this the hair should be thoroughly rinsed in clear water and dried as well as possible; and the following well mixed lotion applied: 15 grains carbolic acid; 2 drams glycerin; enough cologne water to make 1 ounce. Apply by making a part in the hair and dropping the mixture on the scalp in a line; rub in an inch rubbing it in with a soft brush, or a tooth brush, which serves as well. Cover the scalp by this method, making one part after another. After a time the shampooing may be done less often, but the mixture should be applied faithfully and persistently until the hair ceases to fall or the case must be abandoned as hopeless.

NO MAN EVER HAS A REAL BIRTHDAY UNTIL THE DAY HE FINDS HIMSELF

Down at the Newell Motor Car Co. men are finding themselves in the automobile selling game every day—not every one, because the law of average works out, and a certain number of men will never find themselves; but on the other hand, there are many red-blooded men everywhere who have determined to get somewhere and get there as quickly as possible. The only thing they lack is a strong aggressive backing to help them climb the ascent.

We are putting this advertisement in this paper to try to discover some of that kind of men. Our proposition is on a commission basis only, and if you feel that you would like to come with us and find yourself in a big way, rest assured that we can take care of you, no matter how big you grow. General wholesale prices, including farm products, food, building materials, metals, house furnishings and miscellaneous commodities declined approximately 5 per cent during the month.

The decline from the peak prices of May, 1919, amounted to 33 per cent in retail food prices and 44½ per cent in general wholesale prices. Wholesale prices of farm products declined from the low level reached in April, the statement said, with a decrease of 1¾ per cent. With the exception of metal and metal products prices of which have remained unchanged for two months, there was a decline in all wholesale prices, food showing the leading: Wholesale prices of house furnishings dropped nearly 5 per cent during the month; fuel and clothing, 2¾ per cent; fuel lighting materials, 2½ per cent, and chemicals and drugs, 1¾ per cent. Fuel and lighting materials dropped 17½ per cent during the year.

The average family expenditure for food decreased from April, 1921, to May, 1921, in all of the 51 cities for which monthly prices are secured, the report said.

The greatest decrease, 8 per cent, was shown in Milwaukee and St. Louis. In Jacksonville, Kansas City, Louisville, Memphis, Mobile, Savannah, Springfield, Ill., the decrease was 7 per cent. In Atlanta, Dallas, Little Rock, New York, and St. Paul the decrease was 4 per cent.

ASSES THEFT OF SHOES

Terry, 45 years old, of 3077A Cook avenue, a negro porter at the house of the McElroy-Sloan Co., on Twenty-first street, between Washington and Lucas avenues, last night related at police headquarters that he had stolen four cases, each containing 12 pairs of shoes, from the warehouse in the last three weeks. Paul and Joseph Cuso, proprietors of a saloon at Cook and Franklin avenues, and Frank de Lorenzo, owner of a saloon at Seventh and O'Fallon streets, were arrested and charged with receiving stolen property.

Terry said that on June 4 he left a basement window in the warehouse open and when the night watchman went to an upper floor entered and carried the shoes. He repeated the performance on three other nights. He said he sold the first three cases to the Palermos for $52.50 and the fourth carton to De Lorenzo for $5. The saloon keepers said they did not know the shoes were stolen. Detectives arrested Terry when he recognized him as having been arrested last year in connection with the theft of a fur neckpiece in the basement of a downtown office building.

NOTABLE PAINTINGS IN THE HOMES OF ST. LOUISANS—NO. 1.

"St. John the Baptist," by Andrea del Sarto of Florence (1486-1531), who was called "the faultless painter" and who is the subject of one of Robert Browning's best-known poems. This celebrated panel, 26½ by 21½ inches, was recently acquired by Edward A. Faust of 1 Portland place. It is a half-length study, turned three-quarters to the left. Stripped to the hips, the figure has a red mantle over the right forearm, and a camel skin, suspended by a strap, around the loins. John is shown in early manhood; the complexion is fair, and the hair curly, with a halo. A reed cross is held lightly in the right hand, and the strongly formed left forefinger points upwards. The background is dark blue. The painting was for more than a century in the possession of the Baring family in England, among its owners having been the first and second Earls of Northbrook.

Loveliest of Models in the Paris Latin Quarter

YEARLY the artists of Montmartre, where congregate most of the ambitious painters and sculptors of the French Capital, vote to award a title of beauty to one of those who pose for what they hope will be world masterpieces. In the last election a model known as Mlle. Felix was acclaimed "La Muse de Montmartre," and her picture is shown above.

When the little strip of gold-leaf in the electroscope flutters down, the searcher knows that he is close to the lost radium.

Recovering Invisible Bits of Radium - When They Are Accidentally Lost -

The indestructibility of this precious metal, and its ceaseless discharge of energy, make the finding of mislaid pieces possible—With the electroscope, an expert who is sent for promptly can usually locate the radium and save most of it—Stories of some interesting recoveries :: :: ::

AS THE supply of commercial radium increases and its use by physicians becomes more general, there appear in the news more and more frequently accounts of radium in its little receptacles being "lost," generally among waste matter into which it has, through accident or carelessness, been thrown.

Not long ago a patient in a Georgia hospital threw into the drain a needle containing $7000 worth of radium, giving as her reason afterwards that she "did not like the odor of it." After considerable excitement, the needle was found lodged against the drain trap.

A similar fate overtook $13,000 worth of radium being used on a hospital patient in Utica, N. Y. Because the radium irritated her, the woman tore off the bandage containing it and threw away the bandage and radium.

Just a few days ago a tube containing $6000 worth of radium was discarded in a bandage by a physician at Jersey City, N. J., and with other used bandages went through the furnace, but an expert recovered the radium from the ashes.

Last month, at Quincy, Ill., a hospital patient gulped involuntarily while a tube with $6000 worth of radium was being applied to his throat, swallowing the tube. Of course, no search was necessary in this case and the tube was recovered by means of a stomach incision.

"SUPER-DETECTIVES."

Surely this name may be applied to the experts of the Radium Chemical Co. of Pittsburg, who are prepared at any moment to search for lost particles of radium, no matter how minute the quantity nor under what circumstances the precious metal has disappeared.

Were you requested to find a valuable gem which had been swept into the rubbish and carried away to a dump, you probably would throw up your hands in despair and say, "It is impossible."

Yet, if the Radium Chemical Co. received from a physician a message that he had lost one-five-hundred-billionth of a pound avordupois of radium, and that the costly element had been thrown into the rubbish, the officials asked to search for it would not exclaim, "It is impossible." Instead, carrying only an electroscope, an expert would go to the physician's office and recover the lost radium if it were in the pile of rubbish.

The quantity of radium employed by a physician is so small as to be all but invisible to the naked eye and ordinarily is measured by millegrams. A millegram is equivalent to one-thirty-thousandth of a Troy ounce. Officials say they have an electroscope powerful enough to detect one-five-hundred-billionth of a pound.

It is possible to recover radium which has been lost or misplaced to a degree that not only is interesting, but is important to the physician who has invested money in this expensive aid to his professional work. The Radium Chemical Co., which is the selling agency for the Standard Chemical Co., the largest producers of radium in the world, handles the cases in which radium has disappeared.

Two important factors make it possible to recover small particles of radium. These are the fact that radium gives off energy and that radium is indestructible. With the right instruments it is possible to detect quantities of radio-activity that are almost inconceivably small.

The radio-activity given off by radium provides a means for finding it when it is lost. Radium is indestructible in that it cannot be affected in any way by the hottest heat of the electrical furnace, or by the coldest cold of the liquid air. When something is to be dealt with that cannot be destroyed by any degree of rough treatment or by any measure of heat or cold within the power of modern science to apply, and when, furthermore, this something is emitting energy at all times, the problem becomes one of taking advantage of these facts.

As radium goes into the hands of physicians, it is inclosed in what are known as applicators. These have one of three or four standard forms and sizes. That most generally used is a tiny metal tube, within which the radium is inclosed in a smaller glass tube. Radium also goes to the physician in very small needles, the radium being placed in the hollow center of these needles. Still another form in which the physician has radium is the placque, which is a square of metal, about three-quarters of an inch on each side with a glass side embedded into the metal in such a way that the radium is between the metal and the glazed side.

These radium tubes and needles are used under conditions in which it is necessary to place the radium in some cavity in the body, generally a deep one. Regular surgical dressing is employed with all the various forms of tubes or needles. When the radium is removed, it happens frequently that the tiny tube or needle is thrown away with the dressing.

Here is a typical occurrence: A patient has radium on him for so many hours. At the end of that period the dressing is taken off in the absence of the nurse, who knows what the dressing contains. Believing that he has in his hand only a small mass of dressing of no use to anyone else, the patient throws it into the drain, or in winter, into the fire, or into some receptacle for waste material.

In this way, radium tubes and needles have been thrown into fires, into furnaces, into waste receptacles or have been carried away in waste cans and the loss not discovered until many hours and sometimes many days later.

A loss of radium is discovered. What happens? The physician wires or telephones a report of the facts to the Radium Chemical Co. The company at once instructs the physician to cut the connection between the house and the street sewer systems, so as to prevent the lost tube of radium from slipping into the city sewer system and so from passing far distant from the scene of the loss. The physician also is ordered to save every particle of ashes or waste material into which the lost radium might have found its way.

From the radium research laboratories the expert goes to the scene of the loss. He carries only an electroscope, which is an instrument for measuring and detecting electrical energy.

The electroscope, which is practically the only means of finding lost radium, is simple in construction and principle. It consists of a hollow receptacle, filled with dry air and sealed tight. At one side of the interior there is a tiny rod, to the end of which a minute strip of gold or silver leaf is attached. If the receptacle is electrically charged, the gold leaf rises and assumes a position almost perpendicular to the rod.

If some conductor of electricity (radium is a conductor of electricity) is brought near the electroscope, the gold leaf falls back to its normal position. In this way radium experts are able to detect the presence of radium.

When the radium expert arrives where the tube was lost, he charges his electroscope and with it in this condition he carries it to every place in the building or elsewhere where the radium might have been thrown away or taken. If he observes the slightest tendency of the leaf to fall back to its first position at a faster rate than the regular one, he knows that he is approaching radium.

So penetrating are the rays of radium that it requires several inches of metal to stop the rays from the amount of radium usually in the possession of a physician. Because of the fact that it is possible for the rays from the lost radium to affect the sensitive electroscope, even if the lost tube or needle be in some drain pipe or pile of rubbish, the majority of tubes and needles are found.

How this method works out may be better understood by giving the details of actual recoveries. These cases are only a few of many and represent typical recoveries.

Case 1.—The loss of 50 milligrams of radium was suddenly discovered by a Virginia physician. He told the radium company that he believed his radium had been thrown into the furnace the day before. He was directed to save all the ashes which might contain the radium. When the expert, with his electroscope, arrived from Pittsburg, he went into the cellar where the ashes were collected, and the electroscope at once indicated the presence of radium.

Because of the way the ashes had been handled, the lost radium had been scattered through some 10 or 11 different cans. No trace of it was found until the tenth can was examined, containing six bushels of ashes. Three bushels had no effect upon the electroscope. The last three affected it markedly, and examination proved that three small clinkers, the largest the size of a walnut, contained 36 of the missing 50 milligrams. Ten aditional milligrams were found in about a quart of fine cinders and ashes taken from the same can. Not more than four and one-half or five days were necessary for this recovery.

Case 2.—This has exceptionally interesting features. In upper New York State a physician lost a 25-milligram tube of radium. He and his assistants thought it was in a safe. When the loss was discovered an examination was made of the cinders from the furnace and of the sweepings from the rooms of the hospital, but without result. Finally, an expert from Pittsburg examined all ashes taken from the furnaces and the fires of the building, but his search proved fruitless.

Knowing that radium is indestructible, the expert persisted in examining the ashes. Then he learned that a contractor working about one-quarter of a mile away had bought all of the ashes in the building and that he already had hauled away one load. The Radium Chemical Co. representative went to the spot, where the load of ashes was to be used for the foundation of a concrete walk, and for filling in a poultry yard. Examination was made with the electroscope of the poultry yard and of the ashes that had been thrown in each of these places.

The result was astonishing. The electroscope indicated the presence of radium. There was but one thing to do—to take back all the ashes which had been hauled away. The poultry yard was cleared of its ashes, all those strewn along the walk were collected and also the portion of ashes which were to have been used as part of the concrete for a wall, put into barrels and taken back to the hospital. Detailed study resulted in the recovery of 20 of the 25 milligrams.

Case 3.—In Virginia, recovery was made of a 50-milligram tube under peculiar circumstances. A physician thought his radium was in his safe. Two days after it had been used the loss was discovered. Examination failed to find it. With the aid of the electroscope, the expert of the radium company found evidences of the radium in the boiler room. There was evidence of radium in the cinders of the fire and in the water of the boiler. Fires were drawn and the boiler water cooled. A total of 41.6 milligrams was recovered. The missing milligrams are believed to have been carried away through some water pipes.

"The Pluckiest Man I Ever Knew"

AS DESCRIBED BY VETERAN CHIEFS OF POLICE

Tramps and criminals are among those remembered for their exceptional physical courage by experienced police officers — Anecdotes of bravery gathered during recent convention here of International Association of Chiefs :: ::

THAT ragged fellow who just slouched down the street, obviously a failure in the battle of life, may be made of sterner stuff than you think. It is possible that in some sudden emergency he would show himself a better man than the prosperous passerby who glances at him with sympathy or with hostility, according to temperament.

Physical courage, without which there could be no soldiers worth their salt, nor police officers, nor life-saving crews, nor firemen (nor, be it also admitted, any great criminals) turns up in some surprising places. The old saying, that opportunity is half the hero, may jolt the minds of complacent, conventional people, but it contains some truth, for all that.

Unfortunately, individual bravery is not always used for good and proper ends, being in that respect much like other gifts of the gods which seem to have been put into unworthy hands. But dauntless courage is dauntless courage, whether society awards it a medal or a bullet from a policeman's pistol.

Some of the peace officers who attended the convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police held at St. Louis recently, were asked this question: "Who was the pluckiest man you ever knew?"

The answers which they gave, and which appear below, were surprising in some of the types selected for possessing dauntless and exceptional pluck. All the chiefs to whom the question was put were veteran police officers, who have been looking at the seamy side of life for many years. Not all of them named fellow police officers, although that would have been a natural tendency.

Tramps, negroes, slayers and real criminals figure among the choices made by these chiefs, who came to St. Louis from many different parts of the country. Certainly these veterans know physical courage when they see it and have a large number of instances from which to choose.

R. E. Heap, Chief of Police at Monroe, La., said that Jack Sweeney, a beggar, stood out in his memory as the pluckiest man he had ever known.

"He was a periodical transient, who used to 'make' our town about once a year," said Heap. "He was a man of only medium size, but the hardest to arrest that I ever saw. Each time, he had to be subdued, and he didn't care what the odds were, either. The last tussle I had with him was about four years ago, in a saloon.

"Sweeney was so much smaller than I was that the other men in the place didn't think I would need any help. But some of my policemen, who knew all about Sweeney, came along, and it was all the four of us could do to subdue him and get him to the jail. He hadn't been drinking, either.

"Then, when we finally got him into a cell, we found we couldn't let go. It was like having a tiger by the tail. After a terrific struggle, the other men finally detached themselves from the prisoner and got outside the cell. And when I managed to let go and started for the door, Sweeney jerked off one of his shoes and threw it at my head with all his might. If it had struck me squarely, it would have laid me unconscious, at least. Yes, he was the gamest man I ever knew."

James Patrick, Chief of Police at San Diego, Cal., said that Roy Gardner, a mail robber, was the pluckiest man he had ever known. About a year ago Gardner robbed a mail truck in the heart of San Diego, as the truck was on its way to the depot at 4 o'clock in the morning. Covering the chauffeur with his revolver, the robber took the sacks of registered mail and made his escape with some $80,000 in Liberty Bonds and money orders. Then he seemed to vanish from the face of the earth.

During his investigation, Chief Patrick learned of a man at Del Mar, a seaside resort near San Diego, who had aroused the suspicion of the bellboys by leaving his hotel for an hour or two at a time, carrying his handbag. When Patrick arrived there Gardner was playing cards with some other men.

The latter became very much excited when the officers of the law appeared, but Gardner was entirely unruffled, and would not pay any attention to them until he had finished his hand. Then he went back to San Diego quietly enough, although he had not succeeded in burying all of his loot, which had been the reason for the short excursions from the hotel. The stolen property was recovered, and Gardner got a 25-year sentence in the Federal Penitentiary near San Francisco.

"He was the coolest man I ever saw, at the time of his arrest and during his trial," remarked Patrick. "Nothing disturbed him, whether it was a gun pointed at him or a 25-year sentence in the penitentiary."

While being taken to the Federal prison with two other convicts, Gardner managed to wrest the revolver away from the officer who was guarding them in a compartment on the train, thrust the officer out into the passageway, locked the door and then threw himself out of the window, with the train traveling at a high speed. The other two prisoners stayed on the train. Gardner, after robbing two mail cars by hiding in them and later "covering" the mail clerks, was only recaptured a few weeks ago and received another 25-year sentence. He is now in the penitentiary.

W. J. Rigney, Chief of Police at Roanoke, Va., selected a negro named Walter Johnson as the nerviest man he ever had encountered. Johnson had escaped from the penitentiary at Richmond, where he had been sent for killing a man (an unintentional slaying, or rather an accident during a quarrel, as the Chief believes) and had hidden in the house of relatives at Roanoke, after being shot at more than 30 times. (There were 38 buckshot in his body when recaptured.)

The tramp was so much smaller that nobody thought the chief would need any help.

When Rigney learned of the man's presence there, he arranged a strategem by which Johnson was enticed down to a lonely place one night, and there Rigney thrust a big revolver into the man's face and ordered him to throw up his hands.

"I won't throw up nothin'," said Johnson, without a quiver, although he knew at once that he had been betrayed. "I'll go anywheres you want me to, 'case you got your pistol and I ain't got none. But I won't throw up mah hands."

Rigney pushed the pistol against the prisoner's face, repeating the command, and again the negro refused to throw up his hands, although it almost certainly meant being killed on the spot.

"And he never did throw them up," said Rigney, with a laugh. "But, true to his word, he went quietly to jail, although I did not even put handcuffs on him. He asked me as a favor if I could not arrange to take him back to Richmond myself, and I did so. He weighed more than 200 pounds and was one of the finest physical specimens I ever saw. When he felt like fighting he didn't care how many there were."

F. G. Thompson, Chief of Police at Oakland, Cal., formerly was a Deputy United States Marshal in Southern California, and it was in those days that he saw what he regards as the bravest act within his own experience. He said:

"In February, 1916, I learned the whereabouts of Enrique Flores Magoon, publisher of a revolutionary newspaper, who had been charged with sending abusive matter through the mails. His brother, Ricardo, was with him, and a gang of followers whom we called 'Magoonistas.'

"With Detective B. F. Leon, still a member of the Los Angeles police force, I went in an auto to the shack on the outskirts of Los Angeles, where they were living. While Leon stayed in the car, I walked into the little shack (there was a larger one behind it), and found both the Magoons busied with their printing plant. 'You're under arrest!' I said to Enrique.

"He didn't have time to pick up a weapon, but made a vicious kick at me. I knocked him down with the heavy barrel of my revolver, and then Ricardo, a larger man, came to his brother's rescue. But he was no fighter and I had the handcuffs on him in a moment and was free to deal with Enrique, who had gotten to his feet by this time and was full of fight. You wouldn't be interested in the fight, which was just a rough-and-tumble affair, without any shooting, but Enrique came out of it so battered that he had to go to the hospital instead of to jail.

"But before I had finished up with Enrique, clubbing him with my revolver, I heard a tremendous yelling outside, some pistol shots and then the roar of a shotgun. I knew what had happened. When I got outside there was Leon, out of the car and standing between the small shack and the big one, his sawed-off gun in his hands, firing on a crowd of fully 50 Mexicans, who had poured out of the second building and started for the little shack to rescue the Magoons.

"The sawed-off gun was a pump model, in the hands of a man who knew how to use it. He was firing from the hip and swinging the muzzle from side to side, as you swing a hose in spraying the lawn. Large as the crowd was, they couldn't stand before those volleys of buckshot and presently broke and ran back into their house.

"Leon, the nerviest man I ever saw, protected me and my prisoners until I got them in the auto, then ran and jumped in with us and we were off. Yes, a few shots were fired as we left, but none of them took effect. The Magoon brothers are now in the penitentiary at Leavenworth. A request for their parole was turned down recently at Washington."

J. M. Seay, Chief of Police at Lynchburg, Va., and in his forty-first year as a peace officer, made the general statement that "small men are the pluckiest." And he emphasized this by declaring that "most big men are bluffers when it comes to physical courage." Apparently there are exceptions, though, for he mentioned a gigantic negro named Henry Armstead, whom he arrested at 2 o'clock one morning, as having been the most dauntless prisoner whom he could remember. The negro, although unarmed, knocked him down when covered by a pistol, but finally yielded. He was a thief.

William A. Pinkerton, the famous Chicago detective, said that Jere Dunn, now dead, possessed the greatest personal bravery of any man he ever knew. Dunn, whom he describes as "not a crook, but with several notches on his gun," had served as a soldier in the Civil War and at one time had been Chief of Police at Elmira, N. Y.

Going to New York, he had a fight with a burglar called "Logan No. 2," killed him and was acquitted. Then he went to Chicago, where he kept a roadhouse. In a quarrel there he shot and killed "Jimmy" Eliot, a prizefighter, and was acquitted. Eventually he died from cancer.

"That man didn't know the sensation of fear; of that I am convinced," said Col. Pinkerton. "He was not aggressive nor quarrelsome, but if anybody started 'crowding' him there was trouble mighty quick. He would fight one man or 10 men, all at once. When aroused, he was like a wolf at bay. He was about 5 feet 10 inches tall, spare but big-boned, and had a wonderful muscular development. When he grinned he showed a mouth full of teeth as white as pearls.

"Once Inspector Byrnes of New York made some public statements about 'disreputable characters on the race track,' and what he was going to do to them, mentioning Dunn by name. When Dunn heard about it, he went from one end of Broadway to the other, defying Byrnes and making threats of what he would do to Byrnes if molested. But he was not molested at all."

Col. Pinkerton also mentioned Levi and Hilary Farrington, brothers, as two of the nerviest men he had ever known. They came from the headwaters of Tumbling Creek, near Nashville, Tenn., and were famous desperadoes in the early '70s. Their exploits preceded

Marble Head, Chiseled 2300 Years Ago in Greece, Now in City Art Museum

Beautiful example of sculpture's golden age is supposed to be idealized representation of an ancient poetess, and to have been wrought by a pupil of Praxiteles — Excavated in Thasos, an island of Aegean Sea, the bust is virtually as perfect as on the long-past day when the artist finished his work -o- -o- -o- -o-

THE powerful influence which the art of the ancient Greeks has exercised in molding present-day ideas of beauty is convincingly illustrated by a fine marble head of the fourth century B. C., recently acquired by the City Art Museum. This charming and well preserved piece of sculpture approaches so nearly to modern ideals of beauty that at first glance it is difficult to realize that more than 2300 years have elapsed since it left the hands of the Greek sculptor who fashioned it. So transcendent was the esthetic genius of the ancient Greeks that there is scarcely a phase of modern art worthy of consideration which does not owe some inspiration to classical tradition. Everything which they produced seems to bear the impress of this remarkable genius, and the few original works which survive from the period when Hellenic culture was at its height are the most precious art heritages of modern civilization. The acquisition, therefore, by the St. Louis Museum of an example which is undoubtedly a Greek original, and not, as are many antique marbles, a Roman copy, is an event of considerable significance.

The head which the museum has secured is thought to be an idealized representation of an ancient poetess. It was excavated in Thasos, an island in the Aegean Sea, not far from Saloniki, and is an example well known to authorities on antique art both in America and abroad. It is illustrated in a number of important publications, including Mitchell's History of Ancient Sculpture. The style of the modeling—embodying the highest qualities of form and expression—indicates that the head was made not later than the fourth century B. C., apparently by a sculptor who was a pupil or follower of the great Athenian master, Praxiteles, as will be explained later.

The head is life-sized and presents the likeness of a young woman of charming and gracious aspect. Salomon Reinach, an eminent French authority, suggests that we see in it the idealized portrait of a celebrated poetess, represented in the role of a muse. The only Greek poetesses of sufficient renown at the time the head was carved to warrant their portrayal at the hands of a sculptor of first rank, were Sappho and Corinna. Statutes of both of these were made by Silanion (circa 350 B. C.), replicas of which are still extant which resemble the museum's example in certain particulars.

Portraiture as understood today was practically unknown in Greek art before the Hellenistic period (320-146 B. C.). The majority of the statues made before this represented gods and goddesses, with features conventionalized to present various ideals of spiritual and physical beauty. In the museum's recently acquired marble there is a considerable departure from this conventionalization, particularly in the individualized chin and nose, which indicates that the face is that of a historic personage rather than of one of the numerous goddesses of the Greek pantheon. The face still has, however, all the dignity and nobility of expression which distinguishes the sculptured gods and goddesses of the best period of classical art, and it is only by the significant treatment of the hair, combed back in low ridges and confined at the back in a single braid, that we can be quite sure the subject is a human. The type of coiffure employed is called the "Boeotian style," because frequently seen in Tanagra statuettes found in Boeotia. It is not, so far as the writer is aware, found upon a single marble which can positively be identified as a goddess. Its frequent appearance in terra cotta figurines and coins toward the end of the fourth century and the beginning of the third century is sufficient indication that it was a popular style among the fashionable ladies of the period.

Like the name of the subject who posed for this beautiful head, the name of the master who fashioned it will probably remain forever an unsolved mystery. In point of style, however, the piece belongs unmistakably to the school of Praxiteles, the great Athenian sculptor of the fourth century B. C., who supplanted the severity and calm serenity of fifth-century sculpture with the contemplative, reflective spirit so charmingly evinced in the present head. Evidences of Praxitelean influence possessed by the museum's piece are the deep-set, reflective eyes, the oval face and slight prominence of the forehead above the eyebrows, and, above all, the delicate modeling of the surface of the face, wherein each plane melts by imperceptible gradations into the next, producing a subdued interplay of light and shade and a delicacy and softness of outline which is one of the inimitable charms of ancient Greek sculpture. It was this quality of modeling the surface for delicate effects of chiaroscuro which Rodin found so fascinating in Greek sculpture, and which he succeeded in imparting in no small measure to his own marbles.

Front view of the ancient head, showing the oval type of face, deep-set, reflective eyes and delicate modeling of surface, all characteristic of the Praxitelean school.

The head exhibits no traces of the changing ideals which began to affect Greek art toward the end of the fourth century B. C., when sculptors sought to portray extremes of physical and mental suffering rather than the "languorous grace" of Praxiteles. It thus becomes of increased interest as one of the latest known examples in the "grand style" of Greek sculpture, executed only a few years before the opening of the Hellenistic era, but exhibiting none of the straining for grandiose effects which frequently marred the work of Hellenistic artists.

It is more than probable that this head was once part of a full-length, draped statue. There is in the museum at Constantinople a series of full-length, draped figures, of muses, found, like the present piece, on the island of Thasos, which no doubt indicate the original appearance of the statue to which the head belonged. Owing to the scarcity of large blocks of marble, the Greeks frequently made the heads and bodies of separate pieces of marble, which were skillfully mortised together. The appearance of the neck of the museum's example would indicate that it was thus attached to the torso.

The head is of white marble, now slightly tinged with a creamy tint, and is in an almost perfect state of preservation, despite its great age. It is seldom indeed that a marble head survives from the classical period without the loss of at least a part of the chin or nose, and usually the damage is even greater. The museum's piece is, however, entirely intact, virtually as it came from the hands of the sculptor more than 2300 years ago.

The piece was at one time in the collection of Count Fels, a German residing at Corfu. Later it passed to London, where it came into the possession of M. Canessa of Paris and New York, who owned it for many years and from whom it was acquired a few weeks ago by the St. Louis Museum.

With the age of Praxiteles, Scopas and Silanion, Greek sculpture passed from the era of great State undertakings and entered the field of the individual. Not only do the personal characteristics of the artists seem to become more marked, but the works are more frequently the result of private munificence. The art of the sculptors of that period seems to represent the same tendency as does Parrhasios in painting—the depiction of men and women as they lived. This tendency to individualize influenced also the statues of the gods, which were wrought less in their old, ideal perfection than in momentary and varying moods.

One reason for our scanty knowledge of the individual artists is the attitude of the Greeks themselves towards artists during the fifth and fourth centuries B. C. In general, while the work was highly valued, the artist was an object of little interest.

Why Some People Accuse Themselves of Crimes They Really Did Not Commit

Recent celebrated cases of fictitious self-accusations are analyzed by modern psychology and the science of neurotics :: ::

By EDWARD H. SMITH.

The "pathological liar" strikes a dramatic pose, confesses crimes that are his own dreams and visions, and perhaps even goes to the electric chair, mock-heroic to the end.

A FEW weeks since, in Buffalo, N. Y., a young man confessed to the police that he and another had slain Elwell, the New York gambler, whose murder remains one of the most provoking mysteries of the time. The admissions had the clang of the improbable, a little investigation proved them absurd. The young fellow was set free and the officers sat down to nurture a sense of grievance at their own deception. A very old and a very common story.

Whenever there is a notorious and baffling criminal case which arouses the curiosity and the dramatic sense of the public, which stirs the human resentment of the inexplicable and mysterious, the police are likely to be deluged with false clues, false accusations and fraudulent confessions. Every experienced official is conversant with this strange manifestation and knows how to "smell" the preposterous in these communications. The newspapers have repeatedly exposed this fact. Psychologists and psychiatrists have been at work on the matter for a generation. But the fraudulent confessors persist and apparently increase in numbers.

Why, the ordinary citizen will ask, does a man or a woman come forward and vaunt the commission of the most atrocious crimes? Are these fraudulent confessors mad? What is the explanation?

False accusation of others or the self constitutes one of the most engrossing problems of psychology. Every mental student from Krafft-Ebbing to Freud has given the matter attention. Technical literature is heavy with treatises on this subject and its relatives. Thousands of cases have been studied. Many sufferers have been cured by the psychiatrists and neurologists. But public and even official understanding in the matter is still remote.

Perhaps the most exhaustive American treatise on the subject is "Pathological Lying, Accusation and Swindling," by Dr. William Healy and Mary Tenney Healy, a work whose only shortcoming is its stern adherence to old-fashioned psychological methods and concepts. The Healys had evidently not heard of Freud or the modern neurologists when their book went to press in 1915. But it contains a highly valuable digest of cases and the fruit of much patient work among sufferers.

Dr. Healy cites two most interesting examples of self-accusation. His case No. 20 is that of:

"A girl of almost 16 years, of attractive and innocent appearance, who alleged that she had been leading an immoral life. She told the story to the people of her church, who were naturally horrified, and there was developed one of the familiar investigations of the social vice problem. This was undertaken by the police, but they failed to get any satisfactory evidence from the girl. It was later found that the story was all a myth and that the girl had not been in the least immoral. Her first statements followed directly after her attendance at an emotional revival meeting where these topics had been preached about."

A more complete and striking demonstration of the whole Fruedian hypothesis would be difficult to fashion.

But this is only one example. Here is Dr. Healy's Case No. 25:

"Case of a young man of 19, with already a long record of criminalism, who created much trouble for a court where a Judge was keenly anxious to do justice. The fellow implicated himself in a sensational murder, but investigation proved this to be untrue. In other ways his word was found most unreliable. * * He was also given to pathological lying and self-accusation. * * * The case represents a type, unquestionably abnormal, although the mental pathology could not be subsumed under the head of any of the designated mental diseases."

But there is no need to refer to records or books or to go outside of New York for cases in corroboration. The neuropathological clinic conducted at the Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital by Prof. Max G. Schlapp yields abundant examples.

A year or so ago a woman was strangled in the basement of a house in Twenty-third street, New York City. A young woman was suspected of the crime and arrested. While her case was in court, some time after the crime date, a prisoner in Sing Sing wrote the court a long and circumstantial letter in which he confessed the murder. The man was taken out of prison and brought to New York and the presence of the Judge. He there gave an account of the crime, with many particulars, but he betrayed himself completely when he identified a house in Twenty-third street as that in which he had committed his crime. This house happened to be on the side of the street opposite to the real scene of the crime. When he was faced with this fact the man admitted that he had fabricated the whole yarn, and that he had, in truth, been out of the city when the killing was done.

A related case which came under Dr. Schlapp's observation and treatment concerned a young girl who accused her father, a policeman, of cruelly beating her and putting her out into the snow on a bitter winter night without shoes or wraps. The benevolent societies were duped into accepting the girl's story, and they prosecuted the poor police officer with great severity, with the result that he was dismissed from the force and ostracised. Dr. Schlapp later investigated the matter and found that the girl had torn her own back with her nails, afterward claiming that these wounds were the result of blows from a whip wielded by her father. She had run away from home and allowed her feet to freeze, in order to show her charitable friends fresh evidence of her father's savagery. She had even chained herself to a bed and then torn at her fastenings till she cut her wrists and ankles. The poor parent was ruined and disgraced before the scientist discovered the truth and forced the girl to confess her guilt.

In a still memorable case, which needs to be noted carefully, a ghastly and notorious murder had been committed in the Bronx, and that entire section of the city was worked up to keen excitement. The body of a girl had been found in a box in an empty lot, evidently the victim of a perverse criminal.

One afternoon a girl not long past adolescence ran breathlessly into a police station and told the officers that she knew who had committed the crime. She said that an old man seated on a bench in the park had approached her, made evil proposals to her and then revealed to her that he was the murderer. The officers accompanied the young woman and arrested a harmless old man drowsing in the sunshine and enjoying his senectitude. He indignantly denied all connection with the crime and all conversation with the girl. But it was not without difficulty and the intervention of the psychiatrist that he was saved from being placed on trial. In this case, too, the girl finally made a clean breast of her falsehood.

Finally, there is Dr. Schlapp's case of a girl we shall call Alice Smith. I cite it last because it gives the clearest key to an understanding of all these cases. This girl had a habit of telling the most incredible stories about herself, even when she must have been certain of discovery and punishment. On one occasion she wrote to her school teacher saying that she (Alice Smith) had died and been buried on the preceding Friday. The communication was believed until Alice was seen in the flesh. On another occasion she came to school with her arm tied in a sling and told a romantic story of an automobile accident in which her father had been killed and she badly injured. Her father and the sound condition of the girl's arm proved the story's falsity. Finally, when the war was going on, the girl appeared at school one day in deep if hastily improvised mourning. She related that her brother had been killed in the battles before St. Mihiel and told a harrowing tale of his heroism and sufferings. She had no such brother nor any other relative in the armies.

There is also the higaly suggestive case of Gordon Fawcett Hamby, the Brooklyn bank bandit, who was tried, convicted and later put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing. For myself, I suspected Hamby of pathological lying from the first week of his imprisonment. I have yet to be convinced that he was the actual bank bandit, and the foremost psychiatrists share this doubt with me. It is probably impossible now to determine the truth, but the doubt will persist. It is more than possible that an innocent neurotic was sent to the chair as the murderous bandit he pretended to be. But what do all these cases mean? What are these unfortunate people? How are they to be classified? What causes them to do these mad things? What are the physiological and psychological explanations?

Dr. Healy sums up all these cases under the general head of psychological lying, which he defines as follows:

" * * * Falsification entirely disproportionate to any discernable end in view, engaged in by a person who, at the time of observation, cannot definitely be declared insane, feeble minded or epileptic. * * * A good definition of pathological accusation follows the above lines. It is false accusation indulged in apart from any obvious purpose. * * * The most striking form of this type of conduct, is, of course, self-accusation. Mendacious self-impeachment seems especially convincing of abnormality. Such falsification not infrequently is episodic."

Dr. Healy's definition is particularly valuable for the reason that it makes clear the apparent sanity of these people in most cases. The pathological self-accuser, liar or bringer of false charges against another need not be afflicted with any psychosis or any fixed mental disorder. On the other hand, many definite psycopatns, obvious neurotics and insane people engage in this form of aberration. In their cases the fault may amount to definite delusion or hysteria. In the cases of mere pathological lying and accusing, the trouble does not go so far, and this is the reason why the courts have had so much trouble in handling and the public in understanding these cases.

Psychoanalysis takes up the subject where Dr. Healy and the older order of psychologists leave off. It goes into the motivation of pathological falsification, on the well-known Freudian postulate that every act, even of the insane, has its purpose. The analysts of the mind find the purposes which Dr. Healy considers not obvious.

In its simplest and most general terms, here is the explanation of the false accuser of himself and others: The subject is a nervous and unstable type, suffering from egocentric impulses which may amount to egomania. He accuses himself of some dastardly crime because he wishes to be the center of attention, the hero or anti-hero of some dramatic scene, the focus of notoriety or of admiration or even abhorrence.

An examination of men and women or boys and girls who commit these puzzling acts is likely to show that the offender has been more or less addicted to bootless lying. Such types always concern themselves intensely with what, in a milder form, is mere personal romancing. They magnify and color in their day dreams the fine things denied them in reality. They place themselves in imagination in the high and romantic positions they would like to occupy. All human beings do this in private. Most mortals express this dream-

"MOVE ON"

By GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

ALONG about midnight, with his head bent and his shoulders huddled against the biting cold, a man turned from the railroad track and limped painfully back to the brick yard, where the smoke from thick, squat chimneys glowed red and promised warmth.

As he entered the lane of sheds he saw a lantern come swinging up from the other end, and hid himself in the shadow of a pile of clay-hung lumber. The watchman stalked by, whistling cheerfully. Out of the corner of his eye he saw the vagrant, as the gleam of the lantern flashed upon him, but he paid no attention; he did not want to see the man. He was a big, bluff, hearty fellow who had known cold nights himself.

When the watchman had passed the man slipped out of his concealment and shuffled hastily into the mouth of one of the broad, low sheds. He found himself in a passageway, on either side of which were a dozen furnace doors. Each of the walls which contained these doors was built with a ledge about seven feet from the ground, and was about two feet wide.

Feeling above one of these ledges, the man's hand touched something soft, and a rough voice cursed him and told him to move on. This experience was repeated with variations, twice more, and then he came to an unoccupied place. The bare bricks of the ledge here were too hot for comfort, but as it was his second night in the place he knew what to do. He hunted around in the shed until he found one of the wide boards that are used for shedding the piles of green brick. It was smooth and dry, and he put it upon the ledge; then, putting his foot on top of the furnace door just beneath, he scrambled up.

He took off his shoes and rolled them with tops uppermost, so that they made a pillow. He took off his coat, and, lying down, covered himself with it.

It was warm and comfortable up there. True, when the wind came whistling through he shivered occasionally, notwithstanding the fact that the heat at his back was beginning to be a trifle excessive. He fell into a troubled doze by and by, awaking with a start to find that the heat had become unbearably painful wherever his body touched the board. He turned upon his face. It was remarkable how chilly this made him, even while his clothes seemed burning wherever they touched his back.

His unseen companions were continually turning and grumbling, but still they held to their places. Other dark figures appeared now and then at the shed opening, and felt carefully along the ledge to find lodgement, until at last all the places were occupied.

Suddenly, a hoarse voice came from the end of the shed:

"Hey, you blankety-blank hoboes! Hike, youse!"

The voice came upon the uneasy sleepers like the voice of judgment. They rolled—most of them—to a sitting posture; they slipped on their shoes; they scrambled down from their places; they reluctantly drew on their coats; they shuffled, a slow, muttering, half-defiant, miserable crowd, out at the other end of the shed.

They did not disperse, however. They waited until all was quiet, and then they slipped back, one by one, to their places. They had been tricked. It was a newcomer, cold and half frozen, who had used this ruse to secure a good place. Already he was reposing upon a warm board, with his head pillowed upon his shoes and his coat spread over him.

At last came the morning, and with the first streak of gray dawn came the watchman—the real watchman this time. Not only did he order them off, but after there had been time enough for an exodus he went down the shed, feeling along the ledges himself, and two or three sound sleepers were unceremoniously routed out.

The man who had limped in at midnight shuffled out with the others into the raw February morning. He stopped just at the mouth of the shed and picked up a very small package, wrapped in a piece of dirty newspaper. It contained a few slices of buttered bread that some other soldier of misfortune had dropped, and he put it hastily in his pocket.

The other slouching, limping figures in the same group with him were cold and surly, and not one of them spoke to the others. They went away separately and in hatred, most of them going back to the frowning maze of brick and mortar and slush-littered pavements which they had left the night before. Why, they did not know.

This one bit of human wreckage stood at the edge of the railroad track, and, shivering, looked toward the city with profound distaste. Its wilderness of tall chimneys was already belching forth into the morning's mist a hundred rolling columns of black smoke. The farther his gaze penetrated into that murky haze, the blacker the pall that hung over the city seemed to become.

A week now he had spent in its inhospitable streets, and in all that great, seething maelstrom there had been no place for him. He had sought faithfully for work of any sort, but others had been ahead of him, everywhere, and with each passing day his condition had become worse. Two nights he had spent in the "flop room" of the only police station which harbored vagrants. The third night his application had been refused. His face had become familiar.

He turned resolutely toward the direction where the open country lay. Surely, some place in this world, there must be a spot where he could pause; some task, day by day, and some fireside, night by night, that would welcome him; some self-respecting niche that he could once more fill. The flat, cold landscape gave him no answering hope, but one thing was certain—he could not stay where he was. Rest was not for him nor such as he. He must move on.

The railroad bed had been recently rock-ballasted. Rock ballasting is done in this way—stone, crushed to hen's-egg size, and presenting nothing but sharp corners and angles, is packed along the embankment, is piled up in the center of the track, is scattered on the ends of the ties. This man's shoe soles were almost paper thin, and the uppers were cracking. The rock ballast made progress both painful and difficult; but by watching the tie ends carefully, and by adopting a half-skipping gait, stepping sometimes over two ties and sometimes over one, he was able to strike a more or less rhythmical stride, by and by, that let him make fair headway.

He ate his slices of dry bread as he walked, and the food gave him renewed strength. The exercise, too, drove away the almost unbearable chill that had attacked him the moment he came out of the warm kiln-shed. It was snowing a trifle—little crisp, sharp, dry flakes—but the sun seemed to promise to come out after a while; and it was this, partially, that had emboldened the man to strike out for the unknown territory.

Whatever fate that untried distance might hold, it could be no worse than the one which had driven him on from town to town in the past month. He was not a tramp in the ordinary acceptance of the term, or he would have known where he was going; he would have known where all railroads led, and, moreover, he would not have been walking, except from one watering tank or night station to another, for the professional tramp travels by night, and always rides. This man had been merely improvident. He was the winter grasshopper, and the ant had no use for him, that was all.

It was this unthinking nature that had allowed the mere exhilaration of walking in the brisk air to keep him contented through most of the morning. He passed bleak, frozen landscapes, passed bleak, hibernating farmhouses, passed bleak, lifeless little villages, with never a wonder whether in some of these places there might not be, at last, the haven where he might rest and become once more human.

It was not until full midday that hunger distressed him. For some time past he had thought of it, but one glance at any house where it crossed his mind to apply for food was enough to send him trudging on, discouraged before even making an attempt.

By adopting a half-skipping gait, he was able to strike a more or less rhythmical stride.

It was shortly after noon when he neared a larger settlement than any he had seen that morning. The town itself stood a little way back from the station, and from the number of houses that were sending up their brisk smoke to tell of the warmth and good cheer within, he judged that here, by perseverance in facing rebuffs, he must certainly get a meal. A single figure stood on the platform of the little station. He was clad in blue and wore brass buttons; upon his head was a soft felt hat with a cord and tassel for a band; on his breast glittered a big, silver-plated star. He had seen this tramp coming far down the track, and stood silently waiting to receive him. He never moved his eyes from the man as he came on, and the man knew better than to try to avoid him. In place of that, he strode straight up to him.

"I am hungry," he said, with simple directness. "Is there any place in this town where I can work to get a bite to eat? I am willing to work."

The Town Marshal surveyed him coldly from head to foot. His hat was dirty and cinder-ground; the brim was shapeless and tattered; the face under it was dirty, and it had not been shaved for more than a week; the eyes were a trifle bloodshot; the teeth were yellow; the blue shirt was shockingly soiled; the clothes were creased and grimy; the shoes, coarse and heavy in the first place, were cracked, and through one of the cracks a bare foot could be seen; moreover, all around the edges the shoes were red where they had been cut by the rock ballast.

"Move on!" said the Town Marshal.

It was his duty to protect the village from unkempt and dishonest wayfarers.

The man made no reply whatever. He moved on. He was too much broken for rage, but he wondered why, if a man was willing to work, the gifts of food and raiment and slumber should be forever denied him.

About two miles further on, after a bend in the track had concealed him from the village, he turned up a country road and went in at the gate of a farmhouse; a bulldog attacked him unexpectedly. It circled around and around him. He kept facing it, his foot poised ready for a kick, and called for help.

The farmer came running from the house. He picked up a club as he came, and beat off the dog, finally grabbing it by the collar and holding it back.

"I want to split some wood for something to eat," explained the tramp. "I came in at your gate and was coming straight up to the house. I meant no harm. I am willing to work."

"You had no business to come in," said the farmer. "Hurry on out! I can't hold the dog forever!"

The tramp moved on.

At the next place where he trespassed, the farmer came running from the barn to intercept him before he could get to the kitchen door, and drew a revolver from his pocket. The traveler started to make his plea, but he had not got two words out of his mouth when the man sternly made a motion with the revolver.

The farmer stood on the high rising ground overlooking the railroad until the tramp had trudged far out of sight down the track. Nor was he to blame. Haystacks and barns had been burned by vagrants, and benefits had been repaid by ingratitude until there was no more milk of human kindness in the countryside, especially near the railroad.

The wanderer gave up the idea of finding food in the country places. Well, yesterday noon he had enjoyed a good meal. He had carried in coal for it, and there had been enough money left over to buy him a little supper, so he was not starving—not yet. But hunger clamors and gripes long before starvation sets in, especially when one is walking in the winter air.

The snow stopped for a few moments. There was a change in the direction of the wind, and then the flakes began coming down again, larger and closer together. Inside of another hour it was not so easy to avoid the bits of sharp stone that lay here and there upon the ends of the ties. The snow wet the man's shoes, too, and made them more easily cut by the edges of the rock. It soaked through to his feet, and soon he could begin to feel them blister as they rubbed, sopping wet, inside the coarse leather. But he could not stop, because, in all the world, there was no place for him to rest. He must simply move on.

The afternoon passed and left him stumbling, but still pressing forward. In spite of his continuous exercise, he was bitter cold now. One gets cold so quickly on an empty stomach! The wind had numbed his hands, his cheeks, his chin, and, as evening began to fall, the night loomed up before him as a monster that meant to clutch and crush him.

The villages that he passed seemed more inhospitable than ever. He no longer craved food so much as warmth. In one little railroad station he found a good fire. He looked inside the ticket window. The agent was leaning forward upon his arms, his head close to the telegraph sounder. The wanderer slipped into the station and sat down before the warm stove. In two minutes he was asleep.

He had, perhaps, a half-hour of this glorious oblivion before the call for that station awoke the operator. He attended to his message and came out to fix the waiting-room fire. Before he did that, however, he bundled his visitor out on the platform.

"Move on," he ordered. "You can't stay here. This is no lodging house."

Nerved by desperation, the nomad tried to slip into a barn. A passerby caught him at it and warned him off.

Out again in the open country, in a snow-covered field, he spied an unusual cornstalk formation. It was not a shock but a long stand, formed by piling up the stalks against one another, with a rail saddle for a form. It looked like an ideal shelter. Clear across the field the man trudged, and squeezed himself in between the stalks. The space within was covered with ice. The ground was low and wet, and the standing water had been frozen for weeks. The cornstalks within were hanging heavy with hoar frost, and the chill of the place that had seemed to promise much warmth was like the chill of a tomb. Notwithstanding this, the man, having crawled in upon his hands and knees, felt constrained to lie down for a moment to rest his body, in spite of the cold that forbade it rest. He was astonished to find that his eyes were closing. The sleep he had indulged in at the station was still upon him, and this new sleep was numbness. He realized it, and fairly tore his way from out the corn stand. This sort of sleep meant death. Twice he stumbled and fell among the stubble in getting back to the railroad track, but the bruises he got did not hurt—much. It was dark now, and the wind had risen almost to a gale. The snow pelted him mercilessly, but in spite of the wind it did not drift, except as it fell. It was a heavy snow, that packed where it lay. Suddenly some structure loomed up before him on the track. It was an open truss bridge, and a long one, as he could judge from the deep perspective. He could not see to the other end of it, except that there seemed to be, low down and very small, a square of less darkness than the big, dark square ahead of him.

There was a creaking and straining of timbers and a groaning of ice as he approached it. There had been a thaw a couple of days before, and the ice had broken; not piling up, as it does under spring freshets, but breaking up into large cakes and moving slowly, groaning and grinding and crunching down the channel, crashing against the bridge piers and tearing loose everything that was moored against its banks.

As he stepped upon the first ties of the bridge, the darkness seemed to intensify and to fall upon him like a velvet shroud. He had to look closely where he stepped. The ties were white with the snow that lay upon them, and he knew that the black spaces between went deep down to the devouring blackness of the river underneath.

The wind swooped like an angry demon upon the wooden bridge, and as he reached the center of the first span it seemed to his strained imagination to shake like the branches of a storm-tossed tree; to threaten instant destruction. The ties were equally spaced, however, and sawed to exact measure, and after he had passed the first span it became a monotonous measure of steps from one to the other—but suddenly he slipped and went down with a shriek. One tie had been missing—rotted and broken, perhaps. His leg went through; he caught the tie behind it with his other foot; his body was thrown forward upon the ties.

For several minutes he held this position, too numb to struggle up; but while he lay there, peering into the darkness, a dull yellow light glowed in the very center of the square ahead of him, at first dimly through the whirling snow, but gradually increasing in brightness and in size. There was a rumble along the rail, too.

The moment he realized it, he was a new man. The numbness did not leave his hands, his face or his body, but it left his mind and he drew himself forward to the solid ties again. He hastily studied the construction of the bridge, as nearly as he could make it out. The track was raised above the under girders that connected truss to truss, and it was too far down for him to risk reaching those cross girders, except, perhaps, in broad daylight, and without this treacherous white cushion upon them. Nevertheless, he must risk it.

He hurried to one of the cross girders a few paces ahead, and was just about to make the dangerous attempt when his eyes and his soul appealed once more to the light that had become a demon to him. He stopped. The light was stationary.

He saw now that by the side of it there was a smaller red light. There must be a bridge operator's house there. He looked up at the bridge with a new analysis. Yes, there was a draw span. Perhaps there was a watering tank over there, which might hold the train for a while.

This thick snowstorm muffled all sounds, but his quickened ears could now hear the panting exhausts. There was but one chance. He hurried forward, watching the ties with desperate keenness. Once he slipped, but he recovered himself before he could fall down. He became conscious, by and by, that he was half praying, half cursing, and that the tears were rolling down his cheeks. These phenomena surprised him, as if he had detected them in some stranger.

It seemed an interminable journey over the three remaining spans, but he made it. When he was nearly across the engine gave a short, sharp puff, and a ring of black smoke went up into the air. He knew what that meant. He put extra speed into his numbed limbs and dashed off the approach of the bridge just as the engine steamed trembling upon it.

There was sloping ground upon the side where the bridge operator's house stood. Upon the upper side of the track was level ground, and in darting off the bridge he was compelled to take this. He waited until the long freight had steamed by, feeling that at last he had happily reached human companionship again. He had been ages away from mankind in the last few hours, and he had an absurd feeling that mankind must be as glad to see him once more as he was to greet his fellow man.

As soon as the red lights of the caboose had slipped by he darted across to the bridge operator's shanty. It was locked and dark. He beat upon the door, he shrieked aloud for admittance. No sound answered him.

For a moment he felt as if he must sink down against that harsh portal to close his eyes and let the snows bury him under. But man does not die so easily. Even though his mind and his body be willing, that mysterious thing called life arises in protest. No sooner had he felt that deadly numbness stealing over him again than he shook it off with a mighty effort, and once more stumbled out upon the track.

Another switch light, battling red against its vortex of blinding snow, loomed up before him, and then the bright light gleamed through the window of a small telegraph station. Just as he approached this, a man came swinging down the track from the other direction with a lantern, and he was unlocking the station door just as the Ishmaelite stepped upon the platform.

"For God's sake, mister, let me in a while," pleaded the wanderer. "Just to get warm!"

The agent held up his lantern to look the man over. His eyes were wild and staring. His slouch hat, his grimy face, his unshaven cheeks, his blackened and cracked lips, his entire apparel and appearance condemned him as one whom his fellowman had utterly cast off.

"Can't do it," said the station agent, briskly. "Strictly against orders. I'd lose my job if I did."

He swung open the station door. A rush of heat burst out that turned the man fairly faint. He raised his arms piteously toward that heat and warmth—and the door closed upon him.

Across the track, up a steep embankment, stood a little white house. There was the clear, steady light of a lamp in the front room, and, more than that, there was a flickering red glare upon the ceiling that told of an open fireplace. Summoning his strength anew, the man climbed up and looked in at the window.

A woman sat there, gray-haired, and two stalwart men, who were evidently her sons, sat one upon either side of her. The light of a cheerful grate fire gleamed upon their faces. They were eating apples, and the two men had removed their shoes, their stockinged feet outstretched to the grateful warmth of the fire.

The outcast knocked upon the door. The woman opened it.

"For the love of God, madam," the man exclaimed, "let me in to warm myself by your fire. You have two big men there. I can do no harm. I am freezing."

There was no answer. The door slammed in his face. Why should that woman worry herself to harbor a possible incendiary, a possible thief, a possible murderer, a probable carrier of vermin? And she saw tramps every day!

He half stumbled and half fell down the embankment to the track. The light from the house above streamed upon the station sign. At one end of it, in smaller gilt letters was "Kingsbury, eight miles." He knew by the sign that Kingsbury must be the end of a railroad division. He knew the name of the town vaguely, and guessed that it must be a small city. Eight miles! He had come nearly 10 that day. Could he make the eight? He looked back at the little white house. He was reluctant to plunge again into the blackness of the night, into its cold and into its misery. Why, out there in the unknown dark lurked the very terror of death! He dreaded to leave the place where warmth and good cheer and life abode. It seemed that if he were even in sight of the outer shells that contained fire and food, it must in some vague way help him.

How he made that eight miles he could never tell. He scrambled on blindly, sometimes half asleep, and more than once he caught himself in mid air when he was falling. His feet hurt now like knife thrusts when he stepped upon them. Nearly four hours it took him to stumble that eight miles, and when he staggered into Kingsbury he was almost asleep and wholly numb. He did not stop at the station, but by some blind instinct turned up toward the center of the town, where he felt rather than reasoned, that there must be some place open. If he found such a place, he intended to fight his way in, to kill or be killed rather than be denied warmth and shelter any longer.

He was once more in a paroxysm—it was scarcely less—of walking slumber, when the sound of sharp voices near at hand aroused him. Two men were struggling in the street, and, as he approached, one of them hailed him.

"Help me with this man!" the voice demanded. "In the name of the law."

The other voice was shrieking wild, disconnected imprecations, and the wanderer, quickened for the moment into mental life, recognized it as belonging to a man crazed with drink. He drew himself up stiffly, but with a strange emotion. It was the first time in weeks that a human voice had spoken to him humanly; and that he could be of sufficient use in the world to be called upon for help was a thing inexpressibly grateful to him.

Without realizing his physical uselessness, he threw himself upon the drunken man. He received a blow that burst his lip and staggered him, but that aroused in him, too, that shred of dormant strength which awaits the last urgent call from the human will, which comes, as if God-sent, to the man who has fought, and fallen, and must fight again.

Once more he threw himself upon the maniac. This time he clasped him firmly and hung upon him as a mere dead weight. The Marshal, wind-broken from his own exertions, found his task suddenly easier, and together the three went stumbling and lurching and panting toward the jail, which was less than two blocks away.

At the steps another officer took hold. He and the Marshal bundled the drunken man into his cell, while the chance deputy followed them into paradise.

A draft came in through the iron door behind his back and he quickly closed it. He found himself on a narrow cement-floored corridor, on one side of which was a row of six cells, on the other side a corresponding row of six small, high, heavily barred windows. To ordinary eyes the building would have seemed not only bare and cheerless, but repulsive, but this man was now reduced to the merest rudiment of life, and the place was a paradise because of one object only—a red-hot stove!

On the other side of this was a chair, and while the other men were busy battling to get their prisoner locked up, with themselves outside the cell, he sank into this seat. Oh, it was good, that wonderful fire! It was good, good, this wooden chair that provided a back for his back and arms for his arms! The numbness of his

The former Duchess of Marlborough at the height of her beauty. At her wedding, some 15 years ago, Gladys Deacon, who is to be the new Duchess of Marlborough, was a bride's attendant.

FOR romance of international society none can quite rival the career of the queer if Miss Gladys Deacon who in veteran and a returning party, he most successful emotional dol a Prince suffered colorful ultimo in oft and fight and suited until the eve of years of age before flirtation of her hand, only to yield finally to a thwarted bike.

The formal announcement a few days ago of the engagement of Miss Deacon to the Duke of Marlborough is a forerunner to culminate a socialist life. Mrs. Edith Wharton, who has studied and described with rich romance the careers of fashionable Americans abroad. For Miss Deacon, then a young girl, was an attendant of Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt at her marriage to the same Duke of Marlborough, and Manhattan future of which Miss Deacon will be mistress after her marriage has once been intimately associated with her career.

Already an young girl she emerged from a familiar background of scandal and calamity into brilliant social success than did Miss Gladys Deacon. Foreign fair American girls have received such attention in the highest social circles of Europe.

A tragedy with which two continents rang ushered the Deacon family into international notoriety when Gladys was 10 years old. This was the once celebrated "Campus affair," the killing of Emile Khalil, a Parisian family and flagrant by her father, in a fit of jealousy over Mrs. Deacon.

Edward Parker Deacon was a type of the New England aristocrat, haughty, self-contained and dignified. His father, a sea captain, had married and furnished in Boston a superb mansion which was called "Deacon's Folly." To embellish it he designed a French chateau of ceilings, fadeaus, friezes and tapestries. In this ornate palace Edward Parker Deacon was born.

While still a youthful youth he served as a staff officer during the Civil War. At the conclusion of the struggle he became a conspicuous figure in international society. London, Nice, Paris and Newport knew him and his yacht was familiar in American and European waters. By the time he was 40 he was regarded as an incorrigible bachelor.

But on one of those rovings he met Miss Florence Baldwin, beautiful young daughter of Rear Admiral Charles Baldwin of Cincinnati. She was only 17 years old, with a fortune's figure, hair like pure gold and eyes of remarkable brilliancy and beauty. The gracious, aristocratic Bostonian fell a victim to her blonde and vivacious charms, and they were married in 1874, just before her eighteenth birthday. The wedding, which was celebrated in New York, was one of the fashionable sensations of the day.

They sailed in Paris, and Mrs. Deacon was toasted as the prettiest woman in the French capital, that city of beautiful women. Deacon was connected with a prominent banking house, and Mrs. Deacon a brilliant society woman. Four daughters were born to them during their life in Paris.

In the summer of 1891 they took a mansion at Newport. The name of Mrs. Deacon's social triumphs in Paris preceded her, and the family was received with open arms in the most exclusive circles. But this was the "false dawn" preceding the night. Before another year had passed fate

MISS GLADYS DEACON

Duke of Marlborough, who married the

On Nov. 6, 1895, Gladys was one of the bride's attendants at a famous international marriage at St. Thomas' Church, New York City, when Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, daughter of the late William K. Vanderbilt and of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, was wedded to Charles Richard John Spencer-Churchill, ninth Duke of Marlborough. Nearly $1,000,000 was said to have been spent by the bride's family on this occasion.

Naturally, the young girl was invited to visit at the Duke's ancestral seat, Blenheim Palace, at Woodstock, Oxon, and she spent several summers there. During these visits she grew into her later teens and began the first of the long series of her reported engagements, ranging from commoners to noblemen, Princes and even the heir to a great European empire.

In 1900 dispatches represented her as betrothed to one Claude Lowther, an Englishman. A few weeks later she was reported engaged to the Prince of Lichtenstein. In 1901, six months after her father's death, Miss Deacon's name was coupled with that of Lord Francis Hope, who was accused of aspiring to her hand, and delaying only until he could divorce May Yohe.

But all of these rumors paled into insignificance before one of the most lurid canards ever perpetrated. In 1902, Miss Deacon was a guest at the fateful Palace of Blenheim with Frederick William, then Crown Prince of Germany, whom his father, the former Kaiser, had sent to Great Britain to study English country life. The Crown Prince's visit endured only 48 hours, but this was sufficient to start a sensation which resounded throughout the world.

In August of that year, Le Matin, a Paris newspaper, published, on the authority of a "French diplomat," a series of three articles, the first of which was entitled "The Two Eagles—American and German." The first article asserted that there had been several violent quarrels between the German Emperor and his eldest son, due to the latter's announcement that he was determined to marry an American girl. The Crown Prince was represented as averring that he had pledged himself to marry the young woman "in the face of the opposition of the universe."

Whereupon, the account continued, the Kaiser stamped his foot and swore that no Hohenzollern Prince should marry, morganatically or otherwise, a girl of common American clay, however beautifully molded. Father and son separated in violent anger, it was asserted. The first article concluded with the intriguing question: "For what charmer, for whose heart, does the Prince make such a sacrifice?"

The second article answered the question by giving the name of Miss Gladys Deacon, who was described as "a very beautiful girl, with wonderfully fine shoulders and neck, and an air of great distinction." "No American girl," it was said, "has won a more pronounced social success abroad than she." The "diplomat-author" then proceeded to give "details," of which the following is a summary:

"The Crown Prince met Miss Deacon in England, whither he had gone to visit his great-uncle, King Edward. At the suggestion of the Kaiser, who wished his son to see something of English country life, the Prince visited at Blenheim Palace, where Miss Deacon, one of the dearest friends of the Duchess of Marlborough, was also a guest.

WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XVIII (Continued).

CAPT. BENAVIDES' jaw dropped slightly; with a quiet, deliberate motion his hand stole to his holster flap. Lieut. Arredondo wet his lips and glanced so apprehensively at his companion that Webster was aware that here was a situation not to his liking.

"You should use an open holster," Webster taunted. "Come come—unbutton that holster flap and get busy.

Venavides hand came away from the holster. He was not in the least bit frightened, but his sense of proportion in matters of this kind was undergoing a shakeup.

"In disposing of an enemy in a gun fight, so a professional killer once informed me," Webster continued, "it is a good plan to put your first bullet anywhere in the abdomen; the shock of a bullet there paralyzes your opponent for a few seconds and prevents him from returning the compliment, and in the interim you blow his brains out while he lies looking at you. I have never had any practical experience in matters of this kind, but I don't mind telling you that if I must practice on somebody, the good Lord could not have provided two more delightful subjects."

He ceased speaking, and for nearly half a minute the three men appraised each other. Benavides was smiling slightly; Arredondo was fidgeting; Webster's glance never faltered from the Captain's nervous hand.

"You would be very foolish to draw," Webster then assured Benavides. "If I am forced to kill you, it will be with profound regret. Suppose you two dear, sweet children run along and think this thing over. You may change your mind by tomorrow morn"——

The Captain's hand, with the speed of a juggler's, had flown to his holster; but, quick as he was, Webster was a split-second quicker. The sound of his shot roared through the silent calle, and Benavides, with his pistol half drawn, lifted a bloody, shattered hand from the butt as Webster's automatic swept in a swift arc and covered Arredondo, whose arms on the instant went skyward.

"That wasn't a half-bad duel," Webster remarked, coldly. "Are you not obliged to me, Captain, for not blowing your brains out—for disregarding my finer instinct and refraining from shooting you first through the abdomen? Bless you, my boy, I've been stuck for years in places where the only sport consisted in seeing who could take a revolver, shoot at a tin can and roll it farthest in three seconds. Let me see your hand."

Benavides sullenly held up that dripping member, and Webster inspected it at a respectful distance. "Steel-jacket bullet," he informed the wounded man. "Small hole—didn't do much damage. You'll be just as well as ever in a month."

He helped himself to Arredondo's gun, flipped out the cylinder and slipped all six cartridges into his palm. Similarly he disarmed Benavides, expressed his regret that circumstances had rendered it imperative to use force, and strolled blithely down the calle. In the darkened patio he groped along the wall until he found the swinging rope by which he had descended from his room—whereupon he removed his shoes, tied the laces together, slung them around his neck, dug his toes into the adobe wall and climbed briskly to his room.

CHAPTER XIX.

THE next morning Webster waited until Dolores appeared and then accompanied her into the dining room for breakfast.

"Well, how did you pass your first night in Buenaventura?" she inquired, in the manufacture of breakfast conversation.

"Not very well. Jiggers bit me and woke me up, and finally I fell into a trance and had a vision—about you. After that I couldn't get to sleep again. I was fairly bursting to see you at breakfast and read your palm. I've just discovered a wonderful system."

"Show me," she flashed back at him, and she extended her little hand. He picked it up gravely and with the dull tine of a fork made a great show of tracing the lines on her palm.

"You are about 24 years old, and your ancestors were pure-bred Castilians, who came from Madrid, crossing the Atlantic in caravels. Ever since the first Huey landed on this coast the family has been identified with the Government of the country in one way or another. Also Scotch, French and Irish blood has been infused into the tribe; your mother was an Irish woman. When you were quite a little girl, your father, Don Ricardo Huey, at that time President of Sobrante, failed to suppress a revolution and was cornered in the Government palace, which was set afire.

"Through the bravery and devotion of a cockney gentleman, Col. Henry Jenks, an artillery officer in your father's army, you were saved from perishing in the burning palace. Col. Jenks turned you over to his spouse, now known as Mother Jenks, with ins ructions to raise you a lydy, and Mother Jenks has carried out those instruction. Col. Jenks and your father were executed, and Mother Jenks sent you to the United States to be educated. You had a brother, Ricardo Luis Huey, older than yourself by seven or eight years, I should judge. In some mysterious manner you and your brother lost track of each other, and at the present moment he believes you perished in the flames that gutted the Government palace.

"You are of a proud, independent nature; you work at something for a living, and inasmuch as you haven't been able to set aside a great deal of money from your earnings, you are planning to terminate your visit to your native land at an early date and return to the United States for the purpose of getting back to work. These plans, however, will never be consummated.

"Why? Because you are to be married to a nice man and live happily ever afterward; and about 60 days from now, if all goes well, I, John S. Webster, am going to introduce you to your long-lost brother, Ricardo. You will first see Ricardo riding at the head of his victorious rebel troops as he enters Buenaventura. He will be the next President of this wretched country, if, fortunately, he is not killed in the revolution he is now fomenting against his father's ancient enemy. Your brother does not know you are living, and it will be a proud and happy day for me when I bring him to you. In the interim, what do you purpose having for breakfast? Ham and eggs, sunny side up, an omelette or a cereal?"

He released her hand and favored her with the boyish grin that always had the effect of stripping the years from him as one strips the husk from a ripe ear of corn. She was gazing at him in wide-eyed amazement.

"Oh, don't doubt me," he pleaded. "It will all come out just as I have told you. Of course, I don't go in for telling fortunes very often; I'm a slow old horse to start, but once I sneak into the collar, something has to give."

"Is my brother really alive?"

"He was as late as midnight last night. Do you recall the chap I saved from being assassinated in New Orleans?"

"Yes."

"Your worthy brother. And do you recall the chauffeur whose passage to this port I was forced to pay?"

"Yes."

"The same individual. I sent him ashore in the launch with Billy, and he has been housed at El Buen Amigo, but left early this morning for the back country to open a recruiting office."

"And you have known this all along and wouldn't tell me?" she reproved him.

"Didn't discover it until after I had left him last night; then I put two and two together and made four."

"Oh, I can hardly believe it."

"I never lie."

"Never?"

"I mean on serious matters. And you needn't cry about it, Miss Huey. I do not purpose being the bearer of welcome news and having my breakfast ruined for my reward."

She reached across the little table and squeezed his big brown hand impulsively. "You're the most wonderful man I ever knew. And does my poor brother know I am living, Mr. Webster?"

"No—and I'm not going to tell him. I think it will be much nicer to restore you to each other on the steps of the Government palace on the day when the Huey faction comes into its own again. That will make his victory all the sweeter. I am the innocent bystander who started this little drama, and, by jingo! I want to finish it. Why, it has been years and years since I've had any real sport."

"You're so kind!"

"Not at all. My discovery of your brother was as accidental as falling downstairs." And he related to her his interview with Ricardo, whose statements, when compared with the information gleaned from Mother Jenks, had proved so illuminating. "By the way," he continued, "where was Ricardo when your father's ship of state went on the rocks?"

"At school in a military academy in Kentucky. At least, so I was informed by my cousins here shortly after my arrival, and prior to losing caste with them because of my association, unchaperoned, with Billy."

"It is a marvelous mixup, which Ricardo can doubtless explain, Miss Huey. I know he believes his sister perished with his father; Mother Jenks didn't know where he was and couldn't communicate with him—and there you are. However, little Jack Fix-it will bring you together again in due course. In the interim, how about those eggs? Straight up—or flip 'em?"

She beamed across at him. "We are going to be such good, true friends, aren't we?" she urged. He almost shivered, but managed a hypocritical nod. "While we have only known each other 24 hours, it seems a great deal longer than that—probably because Billy has told me so much about you, and you're—so comfortable and easy to get acquainted with, and I—I can't very well express my gratitude for what you've done—for what you're going to do." Her voice faltered; she smiled rainbowishly through the tears of her emotion. "If I were only Billy, now, I could put my arms across your shoulders and settle the matter by saying: 'Johnny, you old horsethief, you're all right.'"

"The best thing to do would be to cease puffing me up with importance. And now, before we climb out of the realm of romance and the improbable to the more substantial plane of things for breakfast, just one brief word of caution. Now that I have told you your brother lives and is in Buenaventura, forget it until I mention it again, because his presence here is his secret, not ours."

"All right, Caliph," she agreed. "I think I shall call you that hereafter. Like the late Caliph Haroun-al-Raschid, it appears you have a habit of prowling around o' nights in queer places, doing good deeds for your subjects. But tell me about my brother. Describe him to me."

"Not now. Here comes the head waiter with a cablegram for me, I think."

That functionary came to their table and handed one of the familiar yellow envelopes to each of them.

"We'll excuse each other," Dolores suggested. She read:

"Go you if I lose. You are a good, game little scout, and I like you fine. JEROME."

She glanced across at Webster, whose face was a conflicting study of emotions in which disappointment

"What ho, Caliph! Unpleasant news?" she ventured.

"Yes—and no. I had one of the finest jobs in the world all staked out—and now the boss cables me it's filled—by a better man."

"What are you going to do about it?"

"Well—as soon as I've had my breakfast, I'm going to cable Neddy Jerome and tell him I'm satisfied—satisfied to stay here and satisfied he's a liar. You see, Miss Ruey, he objected vigorously to my coming here in the first place—wanted me to take a 30-day vacation and then manage the Colorado Consolidated Mines Co., Limited, for him. I like Neddy and would have been glad to go to work for his company, but, of course, Billy comes first, and so I declined the offer. Later I changed my mind, and last night I cabled him I'd accept if he'd wait 60 days—possibly 90—and now he replies that he's sorry, but the job is filled by a better man. That's why I know he's a liar."

"I see. You figure there isn't a better mining engineer than you—eh, Caliph?"

He looked at her reproachfully. "No, but Neddy Jerome does, and I know he does because he has taken the trouble to tell me so more than once. And as a rule Neddy inclines toward the truth. However, it's just as well"—— He paused, staring hard at her. "By the way, you foretold this! Why, this is amazing."

She could now have wept with laughter. "Well"—soberly—"I told you some other things equally amazing, did I not?"

"Yes, you told me other things more or less interesting, but you foretold this. How do you account for that?"

"The witness declines to answer, on the ground that she may incriminate herself and be burned for a witch."

"Remarkable woman!"

"You were about to remark that it is just as well"——

"That Neddy's reconciled to losing me, because since cabling him yesterday evening I've changed my mind again. I'm going to stay here now."

"Indeed! Why?"

"Just to be obstinate. Apparently I'm not wanted here by the powers that be; so just to rile them I'm going to hang around Sobrante the way Grant hung around Richmond and argue the question with them. By the way, I see you received a cablegram also. Better news than mine, I hope."

She nodded. "I have a little business deal on back home. Haven't got a great deal invested, but it looks as if I might make $10,000."

He arched his eyebrows and favored her with a little, disapproving grunt. Sounded like the prospectus of a fake mining promoter—yes, by thunder, that was it. Dolores was a school teacher, and school teachers and doctors are ever the mainstay of a swindler's sucker list.

"You won $10 from me yesterday," he challenged. "Bet you another $10 I can tell you the nature of your investment."

"Go you, if I lose!" Unconsciously she was learning the argot of the male of the species, as exemplified in Neddy Jerome's cablegram.

"It's a mining property."

"You win. It is," she answered truthfully, starting to open her purse.

"Quartz or placer?"

"I don't know. Explain."

He chuckled at her ignorance. "Quartz is gold-bearing rock and placer is gold-bearing gravel."

"Then my mining property is placer, because it has lots of sand."

"I knew it, I knew it," he warned her solemnly, and he shook an admonitory finger at her. "Black sand, eh? Is the gold very fine?"

"I think it is."

"Then you're stung good and deep—so don't delude yourself into thinking you have $10,000 coming. I never knew a proposition for saving the fine gold in black sand that didn't turn out to be a fizzle. It's the hardest thing in the world to save. Now, listen: You tell me the name of the flim-flam artist that got you into this deal, and when I get back to the United States I'll investigate the company; if it's an out-and-out swindle, I'll take that promoter by the throat and choke your money out of him, the scoundrel! It is just these fly-by-night fellows that ruin the finest gambling game in the world and scare off investors in legitimate mining propositions."

"Oh, you mustn't—really, Caliph. He's an old man, and I only did it to help him out."

"There should be no sentiment in business, Miss Ruey."

"Oh, well, let's be cheerful and hopeful, Caliph, and discuss a more important subject." She was very serious now, for by her meddling she had, she realized, so arranged matters that at a time when John Stuart Webster's very life depended upon his immediate departure from Buenaventura, he was planning to stay and face the music, just to be obstinate. "You must reconsider your latest decision to remain in this country," she insisted. "Your life may be the price of liberty of action, you know."

"Give me liberty or give me death," quoted Webster.

"But isn't Billy capable of developing the mine after you advance the cash?"

"I wouldn't advance him a cent for his mine until I had investigated it myself."

"Then you should make some arrangements to safeguard yourself while making the investigation, and leave Sobrante immediately thereafter. Isn't that a sensible proposition?"

"Very—if I felt like leaving Sobrante. But I do not. If that mining concession is a potential winner, I'll have to stick around and make a winner out of it before I go away and leave Bill in charge. Besides, I'm worried about Bill. He's full of malarial fever, and last night I got to thinking about him and decided to send him back to the Colorado mountains for a few months. This country is going to be in the throes of a revolution; the chances are we will not be able to do much with our property until the war is over, and I will be able to do that little. I want some regular doctors to work on Bill, so he'll be fit when he gets back on the job."

As a matter of fact, this idea of sending Billy to the United States had but that moment occurred to Jack Webster; he reflected now that this plan was little short of an inspiration. It would give Billy and Dolores an opportunity to marry and have a honeymoon; it would leave him free of her disturbing presence, and enable him to leave Sobrante when the Gearys should return. He resolved to speak to Billy about it.

Dolores' voice broke in upon his cunning reflections. "But Billy tells me you already have a fortune sufficient for the needs of a Caliph without a court. Why risk your precious life to acquire more? Money isn't everything in life."

"No, but the game is."

"What game? Mining?"

"The game of life."

"But this is the game of death."

"Which makes life all the sweeter if I can beat the game. Perhaps I can better illustrate my point of view with a story. Some years ago I was sent to Arizona to examine a mining property and report upon it; if I advised its purchase, my principals were prepared to buy at my valuation. Well, when I arrived I found a miserable shanty close to a shaft and dump, and in the shanty I found a weather-beaten old couple. The woman was probably 40, but looked 50. The man had never been anything but a hard-rock miner—$4 a day had been the limit of his earnings in any one day until he stumbled on some float, traced it up and located the claims I was there to examine and try to buy.

"His wife had been a miner's daughter, knowing nothing but drudgery and poverty and continuing that existence after marriage. For 20 years she had been darning her husband's socks, washing his clothes and cooking his meals. Even after they uncovered the ledge, it wasn't worth any more than the country rock to them unless they could sell it, because the man had neither the money nor the ability to develop it himself. He even lacked the ability to sell it, because it requires real ability to unload any kind of a mine for a million dollars, and real nerve on the part of the man who buys it. I examined the mine, decided it was cheap at a million dollars, and so reported to my principals. They wired me to close, and so I took a 60-day option in order to verify the title.

"Well, time passed, and one bright day I rode up to that shanty with a deed and a certified check for a million dollars in my pocket; whereupon I discovered the woman had had a change of heart and bucked over the traces. No, siree! She would not sign that there deed—and inasmuch as the claim was community property, her signature was vitally necessary. She asked me so many questions, however, as to the size of the stamp mill we would install and how many miners would be employed on the job, that finally I saw the light and tried a shot in the dark.

"'My dear Mrs. Skaggs,' I said, 'if you'll sign this deed and save us all a lot of litigation over this option you and your husband have given me, I'll do something handsome. I will—on my word of honor—I'll give you the exclusive boarding-house privilege at this mine.'

"And what did she say, Caliph?"

"She said: 'Give me the pen, Mr. Webster, and please excuse my handwriting; I'm that nervous in business matters.'"

Dolores' silvery laughter rippled through the room. "But I don't see the point," she protested.

"We will come to it presently. I was merely explaining one person's point of view. You would not, of course, expect me to have the same point of view as Mrs. Skaggs of Arizona?"

"Certainly not."

"All right. Listen to this! In 1907, at the height of the boom times in Goldfield, Nev., I was worth a million dollars. On the first day of October I could have cashed in my mining stocks for a million—and I had a lot of cash in bank, too. But I'd always worked so hard and been poor so long that my wealth didn't mean anything to me. I wanted the exclusive privilege of more slavery, and so I staked a copper prospect, which later I discovered to consist of uncounted acres of country rock and about $25 worth of copper stain. In order to save a hundred dollars I did my own assessment work, drove a pick into my foot, developed blood-poison, went to the hospital, and was nice and helpless when the panic came along in the middle of the month. The bank went bust, and my ready cash went with it; I couldn't give my mining stocks away. Everybody knew I was a pauper—everybody but the doctor. He persisted in regarding me as a millionaire and sent me a bill for $5000."

"How perfectly outrageous! Why, Caliph, I would have let him sue me."

"I would have, too—but I didn't. I induced him to settle for 100,000 shares of stock in my copper prospect. The par value was a dollar a share, and I was going to sell a block at 10 cents, but in view of his high professional standing I let him have it for a nickel a share. I imagine he still has it. I bought back later all the other stock I sold, because the property was worthless, and in order to be a sport I offered him $500 for his block, but he thought I was trying to swindle him and asked five thousand."

"Oh, Caliph!"

"Wonderful game, isn't it—this game of life. So sweet when a fellow's taking chances! Now that I am fairly prosperous again, the only thing in life that really matters is the uncertainty as to whether, when finally I do leave Sobrante, I shall ride to the steamship landing in a hack or a hearse."

"But you could go in a hack this morning and avoid that uncertainty."

"The millionaire drudge I told you of could have gone to live in a pretty villa on the Riviera, but she chose a miner's boarding house."

"Then why," she persisted, "did you leave the

QUESTIONING AS A FINE ART

By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR:

I suppose by this time pretty near everybody has read Thos. M. Edison's 77 questions and decided not to go to work for the old boy and personally I hadn't no intentions of same even before I seen the 77 riddles as they's only 2 ways of commuting between Great Neck and West Orange and which is worse is Question No. 78, but I guess people that has read the questions is maybe interested in how many of the mother people can answer so I will write down the 4 that was childs play for me.

Who wrote Les Miserables? Victor Herbert.

In what part of the world does it never rain? San Francisco.

Where does most of our rubber come from? Akron.

What is a monsoon? A reed instrument.

They's one other, "Name the three principal alkalis," that I can only answer 1-3 of it, like, but never heard of the other 2 unless one of them is Mike and they look alike.

Now everybody I have talked to in regards to the old man's puzzle has made the remark that it was silly because it wouldn't get a man nowheres in the Edison plant to be able to tell where our figs come from as long as you know they can't get them from thistles, and why don't Thos. try and find out what people knows that is libel to come in handy in the business, like for inst. here is a set of conundrums that if a man could give the answers offhand he would not only deserve a high salary position in the old boy's studio but maybe be entitled to Tom's job itself.

"What's the matter with the telephone service?"

1. What's the matter with the telephone service?

2. Why don't lightning never strike twice in the same place?

3. Why does the electric lights go out in Great Neck when the papers says cloudy tomorrow?

4. Name the new jazz records for June.

That is the kind of knowledge a young man should have to monkey around Tom's place of business and they should ought to be a special set of questions for other lines as well, like for inst. if you was hireing a livered chauffeur you wouldn't care if he knowed who wrote Main St. as long as he could tell if it was a one way St. and the same if you was in the market for a wife, why it wouldn't make no differents if she didn't know what country we got most of our cork from as long as she could always remember where you put the corkscrew.

Well, along these lines I have mapped out a list of 36 questions which I am going to slip to the next gal that applys for a job as nurse for my kiddies who I sometimes jokeingly call children, and these questions is all practical and necessary and I have divided them in 5 sections which the first section I am asking her myself and the other 4 sections is questions the kiddies will ask her and I may as well explain that their ages is 9, 7, 5 and 2 in the order named but their questions comes in bulk and answers is expected the same way.

PARENTS QUESTIONS.

1. Do you mind being called a old nut?
2. Can you sing about a moo cow?
3. Can you write a picture of a big truck?

JOHN'S QUESTIONS.

1. Who was the best king England ever had?
2. Is Carpentier a better fighter or boxer?
3. If left handed batters is better why don't they have all left handed batters?
4. If you make more money the more you work why don't you work all the time?
5. Why haven't we got a Rolls-Royce?
6. If Dempsey is so good why did you bet on Willard?
7. Why don't you write for the boy scouts magazine?
8. If Brooklyn is champion how can Pittsburg beat them?
9. Why don't you have golf cups like Mr. Rice?
10. Why do people get a divorce?

JIMS QUESTIONS.

1. Where is my hat?
2. Where is my rubbers?
3. Do you know where I left my sweater?
4. Where is my four pennies?
5. Where is my garters?
6. Where is my marbles?
7. Where is the football pump?
8. Where is that book, you know, the one I was reading?
9. Where is the rest of the parchesi men?
10. Where is last night's funny page?

BILL'S QUESTIONS.

1. If Uncle Rex is older than you why has he got more hair?
2. Why wasn't you a soldier?
3. Why don't we have sisters?
4. Why don't you get a mustache?

"If Uncle Rex is older than you, why has he got more hair?"

5. What do people murder each other with?
6. When a murderer murders people when they are asleep how do they catch them?
7. When they catch a murder why don't he say he didn't do it?
8. Could you murder Dempsey if he was asleep?
9. Do men ever murder their wives?
10. How old must I be when I marry Jan North?

DAVID'S QUESTIONS

1. Wha dat?
2. Wha dat?
3. Wha dat?

Any good husky gal that has kind of give up hope can have this situation and its a good home where many a true word is spoke in jest and all as she has to do is answer the above riddles and instead of suprpiseing her with them like Edison does, I give her the list in advance and she can have a wk. to study them over and get the replys. And I don't care who she goes to to get them, har one.

The Most Surprising International Romance

"The Crown Prince fell in love with the American girl at first sight. He paid her the most devoted court, dancing with her constantly and being with her every moment possible. He extended his visit to much greater length than was intended, and departed only when he was summarily ordered home by his father.

"Before he left Blenheim, the royal youth declared his love for Miss Deacon and asked her to plight her troth with him. He gave her a famous ring, known as the 'Luck of Prussia,' which was considered the most valuable heirloom of the Hohenzollern dynasty, and swore to make her his wife in the face of the entire world.

"He wrote to her constantly after his departure, and managed to see her on the Continent. His unexplained absences, his sudden anxiety to visit tain places that had never before interested him, his general demeanor and most of all the absence of the ring from his finger, aroused the suspicions of the Kaiser, who questioned his son.

"The youth of 20 told his father the plain truth, having inherited much of the Emperor's courage and force of character. The Kaiser tried to reason with his son, but could not move him. He clung to his determination to marry the young American beauty.

"When the duties entailed by his rank and position were emphasized, he declared he was willing to sacrifice wealth, rank and the throne itself to wed the woman he loved. During one of the many quarrels the Kaiser struck his son as a punishment for his self-assertion."

Le Matin went on to say that the Crown Prince resolved to escape to France, marry Miss Deacon, abdicate his claim to the German empire, sink his individuality and work for a living. "But," the story continued, "the young American woman dreamed of being an Empress. She wanted to efface the scandal on the family escutcheon." With this, came an account of the killing of Abeille at Cannes.

The paper went so far as to quote alleged extracts from a diary said to have been written by Miss Deacon during the visit of the Crown Prince. It was admitted that these supposed excerpts had a political rather than a romantic character. They ran as follows:

"Miss Deacon: I have grave misgivings as to what will happen in Europe when the Emperor of Austria dies. That will, I think, be a critical period for Germany.

"Crown Prince: Yes, I agree with you; but the crisis can be tided over if we avoid excessive militarism and develop ourselves industrially and commercially.

"Miss Deacon: Do you think you would be a peaceful ruler?

"Crown Prince: Oh, yes; most decidedly so. I have a great dislike for all military pageants and ceremonials. I should leave all that to my younger brother.

"Miss Deacon: Ah, but would that be quite wise? You don't mean that you would let your younger brother become head of the army? Wouldn't that be dangerous? Why, just think of Romulus and Remus."

Miss Deacon's mother promptly dispatched a legal representative to Le Matin, whereupon the editor published the following retraction:

"The story was brought to Le Matin by a diplomat whose truthfulness and usual accuracy are unquestioned. However, in a case of this sort, it is very evident that only the principals know the exact truth.

"Since Miss and Mrs. Deacon affirm that the report of the former's engagement to the Prince Imperial is untrue, Le Matin can only infer that the diplomat was misinformed.

"Courts, like other spheres of society, are great hotbeds of pernicious and mendacious gossip. The author of our articles probably accepted too readily the fancies of court babblers."

An echo of this once world-famous canard was heard only last March, when the London Daily Graphic printed an assertion that "Miss Deacon was banished from Germany, where her name was frequently coupled with that of the Crown Prince." Miss Deacon sued for libel, and obtained a verdict of $500 and costs. The owners of the paper apologized to Miss Deacon, and in a formal statement confessed that there was absolutely no foundation for the article.

But at the time the story went to the four corners of the earth. In London "further developments" were discovered. It was asserted that the ring, alleged to have been given by the Crown Prince to Miss Deacon, was a token which a water sprite presented centuries ago to the wife of a Hohenzollern, the Margrave Johannes Cicero of Brandenburg. The sprite warned the Margravin, the legend continued, that the ring must be kept sacredly by the successive heads of the house, as upon it would depend the fortunes of the Hohenzollerns.

"Prince Metternich, German Ambassador to England," the London correspondent went on, "was instructed to get back the Crown Prince's indiscreet love token, acting privately and unofficially. So the Ambassador approached the Duke of Marlborough, as it was at his country seat, Blenheim Palace, that the Crown Prince met Miss Deacon. She instantly surrendered the ring at the Duke's request.

"In recognition of this ready submission to his wishes—having evidently anticipated some trouble—the Kaiser sent Miss Deacon a letter of thanks, with a handsome diamond and emerald bracelet, which he asked her to accept as a token of esteem and gratitude from himself."

A different account of the ring was that it was a token given to the Crown Prince at his confirmation, by his mother, the Empress, who instantly missed it from his finger when he returned to Berlin.

The Kaiser, according to further accounts, forbade his son to visit England again, and sent Prince Henry

WHAT A WOMAN "MOVIE" PRODUCER - WOULD DO—IF SHE COULD -

"The first thing women would do if they took over the moving picture business, would be to shoo the boudoir drama out into the snow"—

Give her control and she would put the great outdoors into healthy pictures, and cut out the morbid sex stuff, which the public really doesn't want -o- -o- -o-

By SARAH MACDOUGAL.

HAS it ever occurred to you to wonder what might happen to the world's almost leading industry if we should wake up some fine morning to learn that the moving picture business had been taken over by women? Would the films become feminized? Would the censorship agitators gasp and begin all over again?

Taking Miss Catherine Curtis of New York as a criterion, we are assured that the first thing the women would do would be to open the windows and doors, shoo the boudoir drama out into the snow, and give enervated audiences a few refreshing thrills.

Miss Curtis is the pioneer woman producer of big feature films. One reason why she likes her own production of "The Sky Pilot" is because, though there is in it what she calls "a rattling good love story" that ends in a wedding, there is no holding of hands and no kissing. These subtle eliminations, she suggests, may be regarded as an index to the innovations women would like to make in the movies.

Before she studied the picture industry Miss Curtis used to think that men exercised well-balanced ideas about emotional matters and that only weak-minded women were afflicted with a constant preoccupation over sigh-provoking love scenes. Her work behind the scenes has turned topsy-turvy these traditional ideas about men and women. She faced the fact that too many men producers are morbid and that what they need more than anything else in the world is enough healthy-minded women in the business to make competition constant and keen.

"The trouble behind too many of the pictures is that the men who produce them are wrong on their psychology," she said. "I maintain that the average American is clean-minded, and that he would rather see a healthy outdoor play that presents real types than some hectic and artificial acting that leaves the spectators fatigued after an hour of unreal sex stuff. I am sure that objectionable pictures tell far more about the state of mind of the men who produce them than they do about the public that patronizes these pictures. People go to bad pictures, but they would rather go to good ones.

"I am starting in the producing business with a few definite ideas that I want to put across, and I think they are things the average American woman would indorse. It is my opinion that pictures should portray as much of the great outdoors as we can get into them and that the drama should show a few of the cardinal virtues of men in action—courage, loyalty, endurance, skill. I like to give my audiences an opportunity to watch a good fight in a good cause. Intense exercise of that kind awakens a healthy interest. I think that clerks or lawyers or stock brokers or shop girls who go to the movies will come away more refreshed from watching a thrilling adventure in a cattle stampede on the plains than if they had been following the infidelities of a make-believe live tragedy in so-called high life. Most of us find that stuff very depressing and uninteresting."

Miss Curtis is a handsome, healthy young woman of a distinctly Western type. But she was born in Syracuse, N. Y., and lived in Auburn and New York City before she ever saw the West. Finding life in New York too limited, she bought a ranch a few miles from Phoenix, Ariz., and lived there for six years, growing grapefruit, oranges and alfalfa, and driving her motor truck into town three mornings a week to peddle milk from her Jersey cows. On one of her milk delivery trips she stopped in the leading hotel to write some letters, and when she sauntered to the desk to buy stamps a man rose from a leather chair in the lobby and asked the clerk to introduce him to "that magnificent girl." He was Harold Bell Wright.

Miss Catherine Curtis, the ranch girl who became a pioneer woman producer of "feature films."

"Would you consider a proposition to go into the movies?" asked the author of best sellers.

"I had never thought of anything like that," answered Catherine Curtis, "but if it would be any easier than irrigating an alfalfa ranch and staying up half the night to chase a snake out of the house, I might be willing to listen to your offer."

She took two days to think it over. Then she signed up for the role of Sammie in "The Shepherd of the Hills," found a man to manage the ranch and went to California. It was the first time she had ever seen a moving picture studio. Acting was great fun. She liked her part because she dressed as a boy, like she did on the farm. But she had to make some use of her idle hours that are inevitable in a picture studio, and her calm gray eyes were open to see a lot of things a woman might do behind the scenes. The production end of the business fascinated her from the start. She saw things that men were blind to. Some day, she resolved, she would have her own company and do things in her own way.

"When I think of the millions of people in the moving picture audiences in this country I am convinced that it is a crime to waste a film on a trivial subject," she said. "We have an opportunity to give uneducated people an acquaintance with the world's greatest fiction. The movies might be made the most intensive method of education that has ever been devised. Those who know literary masterpieces can gain fresh inspiration from seeing these stories in beautiful settings. But I am thinking particularly of the people who have no time or patience to read great books. To these we can present in dramatic picture form the thoughts that have thrilled and satisfied great companies of mankind. The little task I have summoned for myself out of the void is to portray stories by great authors to the picture public. I am making practical my protest against indiscriminate scenario manufacture.

"When I told one of the biggest producers in New York that I was bringing out 'The Sky Pilot' he asked me if it was an airplane story. When I informed him who wrote it and that I had acquired the rights to other Ralph Connor stories he told me I was crazy. I wanted to tell him that one reason why he likes the rubbish he stands for is because he never lived on a ranch. I really think it might have a good effect on pictures if we could send all the producers out to live on the soil for a while. Acquaintance with the crops and the animals might stir up some new ideas and give them back a grasp on essentials, which they seem to have lost in undue preoccupation with what they consider a trend of the times.

"Perhaps I never would have learned to look over the heads of all these trashy, transient things if I hadn't gone through all sorts of hard experiences on that Arizona ranch," she speculated. "Of course, I do not presume to pose as setting myself up as a leader of a revolutionary campaign in the movies. I do see a lot of things that women could do and some things I am going to do. You might suggest that I ought to stay away from the kind of movies I dislike. But I go a great deal. And what do you think I am looking for? I am searching for just one screen actress who typifies the ideal American girl—some handsome, athletic, fun-loving, resourceful, cultured thoroughbred. I do wish I could find her—and give enervated audiences a few refreshing thrills."

And Miss Curtis is confident that her new type of screen stories will succeed.

Why Innocent People Plead Guilty

ing in yarns and fabulations. Never a lover in the world but told his beloved incredibilities concerning himself. The point is that at a certain vague boundary line this sort of thing becomes abnormal and finally diseased.

At this stage the sufferer is likely to step forth and lay claim to some monstrous deed. Arrested on his own confession, he will strike a dramatic pose, give supporting details which he has previously worked out in his own dreams and visions, go to trial with a defiant, theatrical air, and perhaps even go to his death in the chair or at the end of a rope, histrionic and mock-heroic to the end.

In ordinary cases the sufferer probably knows that he is fabricating and lying, and takes great pleasure in the attention bestowed on him and the credulity of officials. In extreme cases it is quite as probable that the victim actually believes his own fictions.

But the question arises: Why and how does the mere pathological liar, who has previously done no more than romance madly about himself, come suddenly to plunge into the mire of some horrible crime?

Let us remember here Dr. Schlapp's case of the girl in the Bronx who went to the police and charged an innocent old man with an atrocious murder, saying he had confessed it to her. There can be no doubt that this girl was starved for attention and praise. She yearned to be the entire center of things, the cynosure. She certainly must have had the habit of fabulating about herself, in her own thought and probably to others. She was what Dr. Schlapp and the neuropathologists term an unstable, emotional type, afflicted with a too low emotional explosion point. Such people are intensely excited by sensational events about them. Popular emotion reacts on the supra-renal glands of these unfortunates, causing an overdischarge of the supra-renal hermone into the blood. This, in turn, causes other glands, such as the thyroid, to function too strongly, with the result that the emotional point of blowing up is lowered. Now any excitement is likely to lead the sufferer to the most incredible acts.

It is well to remember that at such times the sufferer from these emotional disorders is not able to control himself and thus is not responsible for his acts.

The case of this girl makes clear all the others. Mild egomania plus overstirred emotions lead men and women to confess horrible crimes they had no remotest connection with.

It is interesting to know that women are about twice as likely to suffer from these maladies as men, and young people are more commonly afflicted than their seniors. Most cases occur in or just after adolescence.

The Most Surprising International Romance

to represent him at the coronation, although the Crown Prince used every effort to obtain the mission. This was also the reason, one speculator declared, why Prince Henry was sent to the United States on his famous visit, instead of the Crown Prince.

It was related that, some years later, when the Duchess of Marlborough and Miss Deacon were about to enter Germany, the Kaiser sent a courier to meet them at the frontier, with an admonition that he "wanted no adventuresses in his empire." The former Miss Vanderbilt was furious, it was said, and exclaimed that her family was just as good as the Hohenzollerns.

At the time the Crown Prince story was filling pages in the newspapers of the world, a writer attempted a description of Miss Deacon, in explanation of the havoc she was alleged to have wrought in Frederick William's impressionable heart.

"Miss Deacon," it was asserted, "is conceded to be the most beautiful girl of the very smart set of London and Paris. She is about 5 feet 8 inches tall, and very slight and willowy. She is patrician from top to toe, with small feet and hands, tiny wrists and ankles and slender throat—all the physical hallmarks of the woman of race.

"Her neck and shoulders are incomparably lovely, and there is not a trace of bone or angularity. Yet she cannot weigh more than 115 or 118 pounds. She represents the idealized Anglo-Saxon type in face and coloring. Her hair, of which she has vast quantities, is the palest flaxen, and waves naturally. Her eyes are large, rather long than round, and a deep violet blue. Her eyebrows are almost black, very narrow and exquisitely arched. Her eyelashes, also black, are long and sweeping.

"Her face is almost classically oval, with a broad and high brow, denoting the intellectuality of this American girl, whose wit and mentality would have made her a woman of note, even without her dazzling loveliness. Her skin is fair, very white and transparent. The chin is strong and firm. There are not many sets of teeth in Europe so dazzling and of such perfect form. Of course, she is always perfectly dressed.

"Educated in France, Germany and Italy, she speaks English with a slight accent. But she is very proud of her native country, and never fails, when occasion offers, to declare and boast of her nationality."

It required two years for this romance of the Crown Prince to die down sufficiently for the gossips to resume their sport of discovering fiances for Miss Deacon. In 1903 she was reported engaged to the aged Duke of Norfolk, but soon this rumor was forgotten in the relish of another story as to how the Duchess of Portland was dancing at a ball, and how her slipper, flying off, described an arc and struck Miss Deacon on the chin, cutting a gash.

In 1905 Miss Deacon's mother felt called upon to make public denial of a rumor that her daughter was to marry James Hazen Hyde of the Equitable Life. About this time, the cables informed us, the Duchess of Westminster snubbed Miss Deacon and other Americans, as a result of which the King refused to attend her ball in London. In 1908 "an Italian Prince of ancient lineage," but not otherwise identified, was reported to be at Miss Deacon's feet. This was at St. Moritz, Switzerland. Later in the same year it was a Frenchman named Carette who had won the heart of the American heiress. An American entered the list of gossip's subjects when the Hon. Bourke Cockran was supposed to have paid $1250 for a pedigreed toy terrier which Miss Deacon admired, and which Tammany Hall's orator presented to her.

In 1908, also, Miss Deacon was reported, in lengthy cablegrams from Paris, to have made the terrifying discovery that her nose was not classical Greek in profile. At the point where the brows meet and the nose joins the forehead, there was a tiny depression. So she went to a beauty specialist and underwent an injection of paraffine to build up the tissues, so as to remove the depression. The rumor then was that the penalty she paid was an onset of necrosis of the upper bone, or bridge, of the nose.

Three years before this, however, rumors had reached America that everything was no longer so lovely as it had been between the Duchess of Marlborough and her chum—the girl who had been an attendant at her wedding. There came also reports of differences between the former Miss Vanderbilt and her ducal husband, which crystallized into an authentic report of a separation. They have two children, John, Marquis of Blandford, who is heir to the title, and Lord Ivor.

On March 20, 1920, the Duchess of Marlborough instituted a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights—which is the usual preliminary to a divorce in England. Two days later, the court granted her petition, and ordered the Duke to obey within 14 days. The suit was not defended. Sir Edward Carson appeared as counsel for the defendant. He said that the couple had been separated since 1907, or 13 years, except for a few weeks of "trial reconciliation" in November, 1919, at the end of which the Duke took his departure, writing to his wife as follows:

"We have tried our best to mend the past and start life afresh, but I fear, after a long period of separation, we have broken too far apart to live happily together again. I appreciate all you have tried to do, but I am now convinced it is impossible to live together any longer."

The Duke failed to obey the order of the court, and the Duchess brought suit for an absolute divorce, alleging desertion and misconduct. The case was tried in November, 1920. Formal denial of the charges was made by counsel for the Duke, but the defense offered no evidence.

The hearing lasted 25 minutes. Only two witnesses were heard. One was a clerk, who testified to serving papers in the case upon the Duke, and the other was a detective, who testified to the defendant's presence at a Paris hotel with an unnamed woman, "21 or 25 years of age." The Duke occupied a front seat in the courtroom, but the Duchess was absent on account of illness. At the conclusion a decree of divorce was granted, to become absolute after six months. This term expired in May, 1921. The Duchess announced that she would make her home in Paris, and soon rumors, which have not been confirmed, spread that she was to marry Jacques Balzan, a rich French sportsman.

A month after the decree was made absolute the London Times announced the engagement of Miss Deacon to the Duke of Marlborough, recalling the fact that Miss Deacon was an attendant at the wedding of the former Duchess of Marlborough, under whose chaperonage she made her debut in London society. The announcement took few of their friends by surprise.

The wedding was expected to be as quiet as possible—at some registrar's office in England or at some British embassy abroad, probably Paris. The Duke, who is in his forty-ninth year, has a residence in Westminster, where he lives when in London. He has also, of course, Blenheim Palace, which is growing more and more a white elephant. The bar against divorced men in English society has become virtually nonexistent of late years, and when the individual is a Duke it has no effect whatever. So that the new Duchess of Marlborough will have whatever social position she chooses to occupy, short of being received at court. Queen Mary has strict ideas concerning the remarriage of divorced persons.

PRECAUTIONS TO TAKE WITH MILK.

A BOTTLE of milk should never be opened until the bottle has been thoroughly washed, says Gas Logic (New York). The same hands that grasp the greasy reins of the milk cart horse handle your morning's delivery of milk. A stray cat, hungry after a night of revelry, may be inclined to give an idle milk bottle "the once over" before slinking to cover in some back alley.

Once the cap of the bottle has been removed, the milk should not be allowed to remain uncovered an instant longer than is absolutely necessary. Milk spoils easily, so that it is essential that it be kept as free as possible from all souring influences.

"Clean, cold and covered," should be the housekeeper's motto with regard to her milk supply. There should be a special place in the icebox for the bottles; if actual contact with the ice is possible, so much the better. Ice itself must never be put into the milk for the purpose of cooling it, for there is no way estimating the amount of filth contained in one small piece of ice. The best method of covering a bottle from which the cap has been removed is to invert a tumbler over the neck of the bottle.

"MOVE ON" - -

chin and his cheeks began to smart in the heat, now, and he pushed back a little way just as the lock clicked.

For the first time the Marshal found an opportunity to thank the man who had assisted him; but when he turned to do so he caught himself abruptly, and a slow grin of astonishment spread upon his face. The man's tattered hat had fallen upon the floor, allowing his brow, his only prepossessing feature, to be plainly revealed. The Marshal looked him over, detail by detail, from head to foot.

"Who are you?" he demanded, suddenly. "Just a plain hobo, eh?"

"Yes," admitted the man, wearily, and he struggled to rise.

He expected nothing less than to be turned out again, away from this precious fire.

The Marshal's eyes turned for a second time to the reddened and cracked and battered shoes. At the place where the widest crack had been, a blister visibly protruded.

"Aw, set still," gruffly commanded the Marshal. His guest sank gratefully back in the chair—the divine chair. "What's the matter with you?" the Marshal asked.

The man's chin and lips were more numb than ever, but he managed to articulate slowly, and with many unintelligible efforts:

"Frozen—hungry—half dead!"

"Take off your shoes!"

The man tried it, but his fingers were powerless. He gave it up in despair. The Marshal swore, and, stooping down quickly, removed the shoes. There were no socks to take off. The blistered feet told their own story.

"Huh!" grunted the Marshal. "They're not froze, anyhow, but, great snakes, man, how did you ever get 'em here?"

A pail of water stood upon the top of the stove. It was steaming hot. He grabbed this pail and poured some into a tin basin; then he thrust the quivering feet into the hot water. The man cried out with pain.

"Rats!" exclaimed the Marshal. "That don't hurt!"

He hurried out through a door at the end of the corridor. The other officer had taken a bottle of whisky from the mania in the cell, and now he gave the stranger a small drink of it. It ran through his blood like wild fire.

"Where did you come from?" asked the under officer, with an impulse to display the friendly interest that should go with the whisky. He took a drink himself, even, for sociability's sake.

The man told him, speaking with the halting accent of one who had just been awakened from a deep slumber.

"You didn't walk?" exclaimed the officer.

"Yes, today; all the way."

"Well, I'll be danged!"

He surveyed the man in astonishment. He might have doubted, remembering the storm, but the feet of the man bore mute and pitiful witness to the truth of the statement. The officer was so much overcome that he took another drink of whisky, quite mechanically.

The Marshal came in with a pot of hot coffee. He poured out a generous bowl of it, and set it on the arm of the man's chair. He had brought, too, a tin plate heaped with the heels of loaves of bread. The man reached ravenously for the proffered bread, but he could not unbend his fingers. He had to grip the bread between their tips and the ball of his palm. He dipped the bread in the coffee and conveyed it to his mouth. He groaned as he ate, a mumbling groan with every bite.

The two officers stood at the other side of the stove, looking at him.

"He don't look like a crook, nor a real froway," the Marshal observed. "Give him a shave and a clean shirt and he'll be all right. Poor devil!"

"Did you notice the inside of his hands?" asked the under officer, who, chosen by the Marshal, was much like him in thought and character. "He's got knobs in his palms like the horns of a Jersey heifer. He got them knobs by workin'. Be a shame to put the 'vag' charge against him, but he certainly does need a rest. Tell you what I'll do—I'll pay half his keep for two or three days till he rests up, and then we'll send him around to the churn factory. Draper'll give him a job. He's strong on hoboes!"

It was practical charity, this, from rough men, who would have indignantly resented the idea that they were inspired by any specially commendable motives. They glanced over again at their strange guest. His head had sunk back and his mouth was open. He was uglier than ever. One arm was hanging limply toward the floor, the other rested upon the arm of the chair, and a half-eaten heel of bread was still gripped between the tips of his fingers and the ball of his palm.

The homeless one, fed, was asleep—and before a fire!

WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN

United States with the firm intention of remaining in Sobrante indefinitely, change your mind before you were here eight hours, and cable this Neddy Jerome person you would return in 60 or 90 days—and the following morning decide to remain, after all!"

"My dear young lady, if I changed my clothes as often as I change my mind, the what-you-may-call-'em chaps that manufacture Society Brand clothes couldn't keep me dressed."

"But why?"

"That," he answered gravely, "is a secret."

"Women delight to pry into men's secrets."

"I know it. Had a friend once—married. Every night after dinner he used to sit and stare into the fire and his wife used to ask him what he was thinking about. He would look up at her owlishly and tell her it was something he couldn't explain to her, because she'd never understand it—and that was all he would tell her, although right frequently, I dare say, he felt like telling her something she could understand! She brooded over his secret until she couldn't stand it any more, and one day she packed her duds and flew home to mother. He let her stay there three months, and finally one day he sent her a blue print of what he'd been thinking about."

"What was it?"

"An internal combustion engine. You see, until she left him, he'd never been able to get set to figure out something in connection with the inlet valves"——

"Stop right there, Caliph. I'm rebuked. I'll let you get set to think"——

"I didn't mean that. You let me get set yesterday—and I figured it all out then—and last night—and a minute ago. I don't care to do any more thinking today. Please talk to me."

"And you refuse to tell me why you cabled your friend Jerome?"

"You will never know. I told you it's a secret."

"Bet you I find out."

"How much? That $10,000 you expect to make from the flour-gold in your black-sand claim? And by the way, $10, please. I won it for guessing you were interested in a mining proposition."

She returned to him the bill she had won from him the day before. "Ten thousand dollars suits me. Of course, I haven't got the money just now, and this is what Billy calls a finger bet, but if I lose, I guarantee to pay. Are we betting even money? I think that is scarcely fair. Under the circumstances, I should be entitled to odds."

"Nothing doing! No odds on a bet of this nature to a seeress who has already jarred me from soul to vermiform appendix by making good! You know too blamed much already, and how you discovered it is a problem that may drive me crazy yet."

After breakfast they repaired to the veranda to await the result of Webster's experiment with Don Juan Cafetero. Sure enough, the wreck had again returned; he was seated on the edge of the veranda waiting for them; as they approached, he held up a grimy, quivering hand, in the palm of which lay—a $5 gold piece.

"What?" Mr. Webster said, amazed. "Still unchanged!"

"I thried to change it at half a dozen cantinas," Don Juan wheezed, "but divil a bit av systim did any av thim have. Wan offered this in spiggoty money an' the other offered that, an' sure if I'd taken the best that was offered me in exchange, ye might have t'ought I'd tuk more nor wan dhrink."

"Bravo! Three long, loud, raucous cheers for Don Juan Cafetero!" Dolores cried. "That's just exactly what he expected you to do, Don Juan."

"Give a dog a bad name, an' 'twill shtick to him," the derelict replied resignedly.

"Was it a terrible task to come back without a drink, Don Juan?"

He shivered. "A shky-blue kangaroo wit' a pink tail an' green ears chased me into this patio, ma'am."

"You're very brave, Cafferty. How does it feel to win back your self-respect?" Webster asked him.

"Beggin' the young leddy's pardon—it feels like hell, sor."

"Caliph, don't be cruel," Dolores pleaded. "Call a waiter and give Don Juan what you promised him."

So Webster went into the hotel bar and returned presently with a bottle of brandy and a glass, which he filled and held out toward Don Juan. "One of the paradoxes of existence, Don Juan," he observed, "lies in the fact that so many of the things in life that are good for us are bad for us. This jolt will disperse the menagerie and quiet your nerves, but nevertheless it is a nail in your coffin."

Don Juan proved himself a true Hibernian soldier of misfortune by jesting under fire. "Whilst ye have the hammer in yer hand, sor, dhrive in another," he pleaded. Webster declined, however, and returned the bottle to the bar, where he had it marked for Don Juan and set aside, for it was his opinion, evolved from a vast experience with hard-drinking miners, that the only cure for poor, diseased Don Juan lay in a judicious application of hair from the dog that had bitten him.

"And this is another reason why I must stay here longer than I intended," he said softly to Dolores, indicating Don Juan with his thumb. "He's just about ready to be poured back into the bottle, and I'm going to see if I cannot restore him to his original solid state. Experiments in chemistry always did fascinate me."

He bade her adieu and, accompanied by his protege, strolled uptown on a shopping tour. Here he outfitted Don Juan neatly but not gaudily and added to his own personal effects two high-power sporting rifles, three large-caliber automatic pistols, and a plentiful supply of ammunition—after which he returned to the hotel, first having conducted Don Juan to a barber shop and given him instructions to report for orders and his midday drink the instant he should have acquired the outward evidences of respectability.

At the hotel Webster found two messages awaiting him. One was from Billy Geary, up at San Miguel de Padua, advising him that everything was in readiness for a trip to the mine; the other was a note from Ricardo Ruey, but signed with his alias of Andrew Bowers. Webster read:

"My Dear Friend: Permit me to congratulate you on your marksmanship last night and to commend your forbearance in winging a gent where killing was not only justified but to be encouraged. You have, so I am authoritatively informed, completely buffaloed your two gentlemen. They cannot, in our own classical English, 'quite make you.'

"However, this letter is not all gossip. A certain higher-up has at length been convinced that it would be extremely inadvisable to eliminate you now. It has been pointed out to this person that you are a prom. cit up in your neck of the woods and dangerous to monkey with—personally and because such monkeying may lead to unpleasant complications with your paternal Government. A far more artistic and effective way of raising hell with you has been suggested to this higher-up individual, and he has accepted it. Indeed, the plan pleased him so much that he laughed quite heartily. Really, it is quite diabolical, but remember, he who laughs last laughs best—and I'm the villain in this sketch.'

"Barring accidents, my dear Webster, you are good for at least six weeks of existence. Beyond that I dare not guarantee you. Thine,

"ANDREW BOWERS."

"That makes it nice," the recipient of this comforting communication soliloquized. He went up to his room, packed a duffle bag with such belongings as he would find necessary during a prolonged stay in the mountains, and at luncheon was fortunate enough to find Dolores in the dining room when he entered. Again she motioned him to the vacant chair opposite to her.

"I'm going up to San Miguel de Padua this afternoon," he announced as he took his seat. A look of extreme anxiety clouded her lovely face, and he noticed it. "Oh, there's no risk," he hastened to assure her. "That scamp of a brother of yours, through his friends in high places, has managed to get me a reprieve." He handed her Ricardo's letter.

She looked up, much relieved, from her perusal. "And how long do you expect to be gone, Caliph?"

"Quite a while. I'll be busy around that dratted concession for a couple of weeks, shrveying and assaying and what-all; then, while waiting for our machinery and supplies to arrive from the United States, I shall devote my spare time to hunting and fishing and reforming Don Juan Cafetero. The cool bills for mine."

"What a selfish, unsociable program!" she reflected. "I wonder if it will occur to him to come down here once in a while and take me for a drive on the Malecon and talk to me to keep me from dying of ennui before I meet Ricardo. I'll wait and see if he suggests it."

However, for reasons best known to himself and the reader, Mr. Webster made no such interesting suggestion; so she decided that while he was tremendously nice, he was, nevertheless, a very queer man and thoroughly exasperating.

Before leaving Webster turned over to her a steamer trunk filled with books, and with something of the feeling of a burglar about to rob a bank, asked her if she would care to ride down to the station with him. "Sort of speeding the parting guest, you know," he explained, comfortably, for somehow, at that moment, he felt a trifle untrue to Billy Geary. Of course, Dolores, having nothing more pleasurable or exciting to do, would—and did. At the station they found Don Juan waiting, in charge of the baggage.

Just before the train pulled out John Stuart Webster took Dolores' hand. "Good-by, Seeress," he said, very soberly. "The trail forks here for the first time—possibly the last, although I'll try to be on hand to make good my promise to present you to your brother the day he occupies the palace. However, if I shouldn't be in town that day, just go up and introduce yourself to him. It's been wonderful to have met you and known you, even for such a brief period. I shall never forget you and the remarkable 24 hours just passed."

"I shall not soon forget them myself, Caliph—nor you," she added. "Haven't you been a busy little cup of tea, Caliph! Within 24 hours after landing, you have changed your mind three times, lost the best job in the world, had your fortune told, been marked for slaughter, acquired a new-found friend and commenced actively and with extraordinarily good results the work of reforming him, soused a gentleman in the fountain, spurned another with the tip of your boot, rode with me around the Malecon and listened to the band concert, bundled poor Billy off to San Miguel de Padua, received a challenge to fight a duel, accepted it, had it rejected, engaged in a street fight and shot a man through the hand, discovered my brother presumed to be dead and received a reprieve from your enemies, while they perfect new plans for destroying you. Really, you are quite a Caliph."

"Oh, there's a dash of speed in the old horse yet, Miss Ruey," he assured her, laughingly. "Now, listen: don't tell anybody about your brother, and don't tell Billy about my adventures since he left for San Miguel de Padua."

"But I'm not liable to see Billy"——

"Yes, you are—extremely liable. I'm going to send him back to you as soon as I can spare him, because I know you'll be lonesome and bored to death in this lonesome town, and Bill is bully good company. And I don't want you to tell him about the mess I'm in, because it would only worry him; he can't aid me, and the knowledge that I was in any danger, real or fancied, would be sufficient to cause him to rebel against my plans for his honeym—for his vacation. He'd insist on sticking around to protect me." He looked down at her little hand where it rested in his, so big and brown and hard; with his free hand he patted her hand paternally. "Good-by, Seeress," he said again; and turning to the steps, he leaped aboard just as the train started to move out of the station.

"Go—good-by—Caliph," she called mournfully. Then to herself: "Bless his heart, he did remember I'd be terribly lonely, after all. He isn't a bit queer, but, oh, dear, he is so exasperating. I could bump his kind old head against a wall!" She turned her back on the train, fearful that from where he clung on the steps he could, even at that distance, see the sudden rush of tears that blinded her. However, Don Juan Cafetero, with his rubicund nose to the window of the last coach, did see them—saw her grope toward the carriage waiting to take her back to the hotel.

"Why, shure, the poor darlin's cryin'," he reflected. "Be the Great Gun av Athlone! Shure, I t'ought all along 'twas Billy Geary she had her eye on—God love him! An' be the same token, didn't she tell me I was to shtay sober an' take care av Misther Webster? Hah-hah-a-a-a! Well! I'll say nothin' an' I'll be neuthral—but—but"——

From which it may be inferred that romance was not yet burned out of Don Juan's Gaelic soul. He would be "neuthral," but—but—but—he reserved the right to butt in!

"The Pluckiest Man I Ever Knew"

those of the James and Younger boys, and Pinkerton alluded to them as "the original train robbers."

Levi Farrington was arrested in Illinois by Robert A. Pinkerton and taken back to Union City, Tenn., where a mob of Farrington's friends tried to rescue him and a "partner" who had been arrested with him, the Marshal and a night watchman being killed in the attempt. Then a mob of citizens shot Levi to death in his cell and took the partner out and hanged him.

Col. Pinkerton traced Hilary Farrington to the Indian Territory, made the capture and was nearing the end of the return journey with his prisoner when, aboard the steamship Illinois, Hilary tried to escape. The two men were struggling near the rail of the vessel when Hilary succeeded in breaking away and threw himself overboard. The current drew him under the paddle wheel and he was cut to pieces. Both the Farrington brothers were noted for their exceptional boldness.

H. D. Harper, Chief of Police at Colorado Springs, Colo., related the exploit of a fellow officer as having been the most courageous in his own experience. It occurred during a pitched battle with a party of auto bandits (including several St. Louisans) who had attempted to hold up a filling station, four years ago. John Rohan, Chief of Detectives at Colorado Springs, was the "pluckiest man" in Harper's recollection.

"We had a tip that they were planning to rob the filling station, and we waited for them there," said Harper. "As they drove up we commanded 'Hands up!' and they put their hands up, all right, and brought them down immediately holding pistols, which had been concealed in the top of the car. The fight was on immediately, the bandits crouching down in the tonneau and firing as from behind breastworks, while one of the women sat on the back seat firing a rifle at us.

"Rohan was standing behind a brick pier of the building and shot at Dale Jones, one of the bandits. None of them fired back at Rohan, but were trying to hit the rest of us. Jones, in particular, was sending all his fire at Rohan's partner, Dolan Riley, and this made Rohan angry.

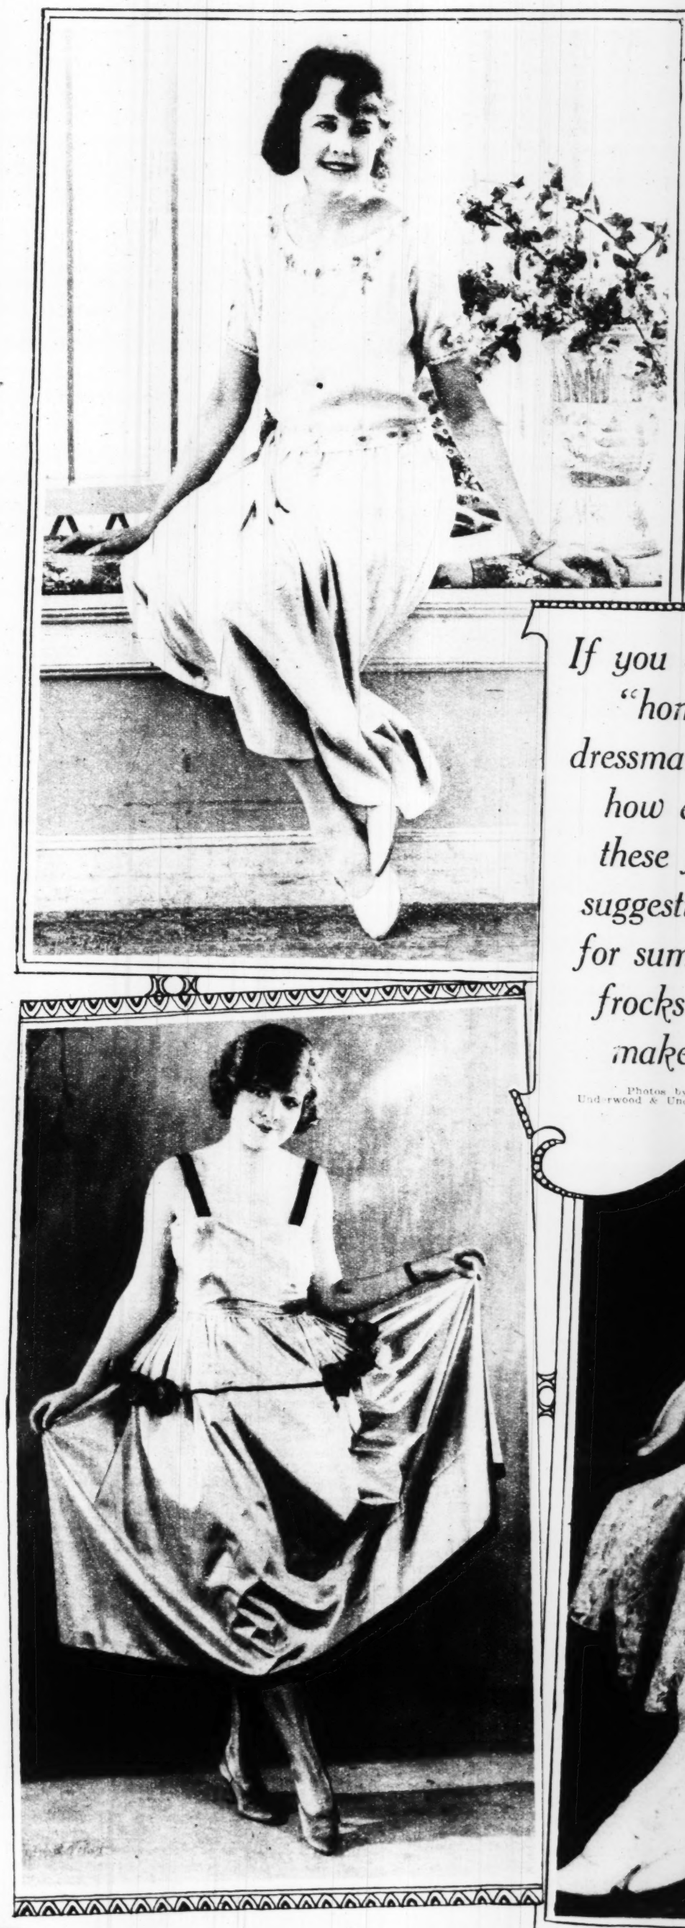
"After firing several cartridges without effect, Rohan, in a crouching position, ran from his sheltering pier a distance of some 25 feet to the car and crawled under it, hoping to kill Jones from beneath. Just then Jones' wife ran up and began striking at Rohan with a sweater, and cried out:

"'Quit shooting at my husband!'

"This attracted the attention of Jones, who arose and, leaning over the edge of the tonneau, killed Rohan with a single shot. He had paid for a brave deed with his life."

Harper said that of the party of bandits, some of whom attempted the Colorado Springs robbery, at the same time that the others made a similar attempt at Denver, the ultimate fates were as follows:

Frank Lewis was captured, and died from wounds while held in jail at Topeka, Kan.; Dale Jones and wife were both killed in a battle with the police at Los Angeles, two weeks after the Colorado Springs incident; "Kansas City Blackie" was killed at Kansas City, 10 days after the Colorado Springs fight; Roy Sherrill is serving a 30-year sentence at Leavenworth; George Daly is serving a 30-year term at Canon City, Colo., and Eva Lewis is doing 10 years at Canon City.



If you are a "home dressmaker," how are these for suggestions for summer frocks to make?
